Dreams

We are the music makers
We are the dreamers of dreams
Wandering by lone sea breakers
Sitting by desolate streams
World losers and world forsakers
On whom the pale moon gleams
And yet we are the movers and the shakers
Of the world forever it seems hectic memorable peaceful fun boring exciting spirited unforgettable long

Student Life

Countdown—August 19 came much too soon.

Students gave up their summertime freedoms for note-taking in History. Staying up until 3 a.m. and sleeping until noon swiftly changed to catching some Z's in a spare moment. The unrushed feeling of only having to go to work in six hours was replaced with the hectic two hours for homework before bed. That dream within a dream ended when school life, as teens knew it, began.

Freshmen got acquainted with their new home-away-from-home at Fish Camp. Students in all grades piled into the halls, finding their way from class to class all over again. As each tri ended and the new one began, the madhouse reappeared. The weekend arrived, adding hours of sleep and dream-time to the school-year mix. The students' stands at football games were packed every Friday. Weekend plans were filled with local bands at Microplay on Saturdays, and Sundays were crammed with last-minute, forgotten homework. Then the week began anew.

Job-hunting and the consequences of job-finding made the day a little longer. Hours were changed, paychecks cashed and students fattened their bank accounts. These porky piles of money lost a little weight when the holidays arrived. The Key Club had excellent turnout for Thanksgiving boxes and Christmas angels, once again. The Beta Club also collected tons of toys in their mandatory Toys-for-Tots fund-raiser. The Student Council bought a new Christmas tree and decorated it beautifully with the money compiled by "a good-parking-spots" raffle. Generosity flowed from students' hearts as the cold weather turned the school into a dreamland.

Schedules for next year were filled out and the end-of-term fever grew steadily. That almost-summer excitement overcame the students as they anticipated their months of rest and relaxation. The R & R wasn't permitted by the teachers, though, as they kept students right on working until the last day finally arrived. Watching the clock became almost every student's favorite hobby as they endured that one long class. No matter how many years they thought they would have to live before the bell finally rang, the time seemed impossibly slow. But before they knew it, the weeks dwindled into days, days into hours and hours into minutes until the final second arrived and the last Senior walked across the stage—diploma in hand.

The year wasn't perfect, but it passed quickly. The unfulfilled dreams of the school year are stored in the sleeping subconscious maybe to come true next year.

The freshmen boys chow down at Fish Camp. Many of them just stared at Mr. Marchel's presentation, bewildered.

Even though I have friends from many other schools, I will remember the ones from CHS forever.

Bodacious Blaze

Young freshman boys dream of being big seniors, missing that one day of class to be a part of the bonfire tradition.

Collecting and stacking pallets of wood turn unused muscles into quivering, aching, throbbing rock-hard biceps. Those long ago freshmen had now fulfilled their dreams of manhood. They had accomplished what generations of CHS men had done. They had created the perfect bonfire!

For the freshmen, the lighting was thrilling.

As they watched their first bonfire ignite, their dreams took hold and thrust them four years into the future.

For others it signified the beginning of the end of their senior year. The last true bonding experience. Whereas the freshman looked to the future, the seniors looked backwards with sadness and at the same time looked forward. Their dreams had been answered and new ones were beginning even as the last embers of the 2003 bonfire faded and extinguished.

Calvacade of Dreams

Homecoming Queen Michelle Wilson proudly wears her crown.

Warm weather greeted homecoming parade attendees and participants as floats, decorated cars and the Golden Pride marching band circled the courthouse square.

The homecoming queen and her court waved and smiled to the enthusiastic crowd. The Coming-home queen beamed as she recognized acquaintances from by-gone years at CHS.

The cheerleaders offered candy to eager children, and the football team basked in reflective glory after winning the Homecoming game the night before.

Pee-Wee football squads and cheerleaders dreamed of one day marching as high school participants.

Homecoming and all the festivities remain a well-loved tradition.

Mike Moore, Winston Dawson and Chris Irvin wave to the crowd.

Jeffrey Payne, Dustin Burk, Preston Pohler and Justin VanMatre stare off into the crowd. They were looking forward to the end of the parade.

Coming Home Queen Cheryl Hudzietz waves cheerfully to the crowd.

And the Band Played On

A jubilant crowd cheered as Michelle Wilson was crowned Homecoming Queen 2003. Michelle, a Golden Pride member, appeared suprised when the public address announcer called her name. Her fellow band members watched from the sidelines as one of their own walked to the 50-yard line to receive the crown from last year's winner, Molly McCoy.

"I never expected it to be me." Michelle said. "it wasn't until

I walked off the field that it started sinking in."

Her classmates were not suprised that she won.

"We all love Michelle," Senior Lizz Reynolds said, "She is sweet and friendly to everyone."

If the smiles of her fellow band members were any indication, they thought Michelle was representing them well.

Michelle and her dad stop and smile for the camera during the busy half-time ceremony.

A Brand New Spirit

Just an excuse to get out of class? Maybe to some but for most, pep rallies are a fun tradition to show school spirit and to just have fun. Each Friday during the football season, students of all grades piled into the gym to try to out do each other to win the spirit stick, but for one class this proved to be a challenge.

Week after week the junior class screamed their hearts out, but to no avail. The juniors' efforts dwindled after the spirit stick evaded them, but in the end their efforts paid off. The juniors cheered wildly as they recieved the spirit stick for the first time in three years.

This year among the jungle prints and the leis a new source of entertainment surfaced. A senior and sophomore rivalry made itself present each Friday, whether by chants being thrown back and forth across the gym or by outside means.

"The seniors tagged my car." said sophomore Natalia Ferrante.

Many seniors were annoyed by their rivals' actions. They thought the sophomores were immature.

"The sophomores need to grow up." said Kincade Benson.

Out with the old and in with the new, was the general feeling about the judging system at the pep rallies. Previously the spirit stick winner was chosen by the students of the week along with the teacher of the week but after a few mishaps the system was changed. Mr. Marchel, Mrs. VanSteenburg, and Mrs. Paxton now have the responsibility of choosing who deserves the spirit stick.

In the end rivalries were forgotten and assembly life became normal after the football season came to an end but to many the pep rallies made a few dreams come true.

Casey Morgan and Delia Fuentes cheer with the seniors during the Homecoming pep rally. The seniors used their pompoms to attract the gaze of the judges and to win the spirit stick.

The Golden Pride drumline has always been a crowd pleaser. Whether performing at pep rallies or during half-time or in the stands, the group never fails to entertain. This year's pep rally show featured Braden Moore as soloist on the snare drum. The fan favorite "Spider" continually entertained the crowd as well as the other band members. "Low Rider," another crowd pleaser, kept time during parades. Overall the season was great and the members look forward to marching with college bands in the future.

The crowd loves us. We love to perform. I just wish we could have done more pep rallies.

-Lizz Reynolds

Mack Cumby inspires the crowd to attend the Friday night game. Cumby played played linebacker and tight end for the Jackets.

The BIG Guy on Campus

He's Back...

Whether it's playing tag with the students on the commons area or enforcing the dreaded dress code, he makes his presence known.

Mr. Justin Marchel, back for second term, took over as principal when Mrs. Judy Senter decided to accept a job at Central Office. He immediately left his mark.

The first order was enforcing the redesigned dress code. Not an easy task by anyone's standard.

"If we enforce the policy fairly and consistently, the students will comply," he said.

He was right. By the end of the first six week, 90 percent of the students were in dress code compliance.

His attitude isn't all about enforcing rules. He also believes in having fun with the students. He has been known to play tag on the commons with the yearbook staff, participate in the "Meet the Teachers" night and during the Teacher Talent Show exhibited his singing ability was a resounding rendition of "Johnny Be Good."

A big man on campus with an equally big heart.

The students and staff look forward to many years of the "Marchel plan."

Marchel address the student body during an assembly program.

Trying on wigs isn't part of the job. However, he does look fetching.

Dressing up appears to be a favorite pastime.

What time is it?

Dancing the Year away!

School dances are traditional fundraisers held by various school organizations. In light of last year's MORP incident the attendance rate has not been as high as in the past. Yet, Cleburne High School dances remain special occasions, when everyone can sport a new outfit, dance, or visit with friends.

Each year is jump-started with MORP (prom spelled backwards) in the first week of school. This dance is "backwards" from most other dances. The girl is the one to buy tickets and ask the guy for a date. They conclude plans by choosing matching ensembles to attend the dance in.

Next was the Homecoming dance, in which Butch Eby and Michelle Wilson were named king and queen. This was the best in five years, simply due to the fact that we were celebrating a victory over Fort Worth Southwest.

After that, was the annual Christmas dance, a semi-formal where the student body gets the opportunity to show how nicely they all clean up.

Beta Club dance was a flop, mostly because it was the same night as a varsity Baseball home game, yet the ones who did make it, enjoyed a game of twister and hide-n-go seek upstairs.

Prom was to follow, the food was divine and decorations "Heavenly", yet again Butch Eby and Michelle Wilson were named King and Queen.

Spring Fling brought the school year to an end, with a student vs student sand volleyball game held in front of the school.

School dances are events everyone dreams of attending. When dreams become reality we are left with memories to last a lifetime.

SHINING STARS

Cleburne High is full of diversity. Everywhere you turn, there's a new face. Whether at lunch, in the computer lab, sitting on the stairs or showing spirit for a pep rally, everyone adds a different perspective to our school.

Each individual comes together to create a spectacular array of shining stars. Each of their smiling faces are eagerly dreaming of the day they will graduate from the High School crowd to become a face in the crowd of adults.

Best Foot Forward

With so many students wandering the halls of Cleburne High, students strive to stand out. To achieve such a goal, many turn to fashion. The way people dress can influence people's impressions.

Still, many dress a certain way to show off the bands they enjoy or their originality.

"I have a lot of patches and pins on my jacket to let people know what kind of music I like and what I'm all about," Tiffany Villaire said.

Some dress the way they do to get attention, especially from the opposite sex. Lets face it, clothes are a definite factor when it comes to attracting a boyfriend/girlfriend.

"I dress the way I do because it's what gets all the females," Cedric Cephus said.

Whether people dress to impress or dress to be an individual, style is important factor in everyone's high school experience.

Star Search

Future stars reside at CHS. At this year's talent show, talents ranged from punk rock bands to a martial arts performance. Some students sang self-composed songs. The 40 minute program had enough diverse musical styles to please the large audience. First place winner Tyler Hewlett sang the popular country song "Traveling Soldier." Another top ranking performance was given by Gabriel Pancerczewski who played a classic piece on the piano.

"I really thought that Gabriel did a good job," Linda Kent said. "I was impressed that someone my age could play something that complicated."

Dreams Shattered by Deadly Decisions

Officer Veronica Cox smiles because of the tremendous positive responses she received after coordinating the Shattered Dreams program.

The crowd appears shocked that something they know is fake can affect them so much.

A quiet murmur ran through the crowd sitting on the Harlin Drive curb. Students stared as their classmates were wrestled out of the two totalled cars in front of the school. Their classmates heads, legs and arms covered in blood as paramedics rushed around.

The Shattered Dreams program was well underway. The program, designed to make students aware of the danger of driving drunk, simulates an accident caused by a drunken driver.

About a month before the program took place, which was scheduled two days before prom, Officer Cox announced that she was accepting applications for participation.

"It's a program that had worked well in other communities," she said. "It's a costly program, but worth the effort. We were selective in choosing the participants."

Students' applications poured in, but eventually only 43 students were accepted into Shattered Dreams.

"I felt really privileged to be chosen," Heather Rodriguez said. "It was really exciting because I know I'll never forget this."

They prepared for the mock car wreck and funeral the week of prom.

Cleburne's police department, fire department and EMS were also brought in to add realism to the accident scene.

For added emphasis, a CareFlight ambulance arrived to transport an injured Brittany Dickey to the hospital. Dickey "died" after arriving at the hospital.

In all four students "died" either at the scene or at the hospital. Several were injured.

The "drunken driver" Jessica Nare was arrested at the scene and transported to the County jail where she was charged with manslaughter.

"I really learned a lesson," Jessica said. "I don't think I'll ever drive and drink after this experience."

The two-day program ended with mock funerals. Family and friends of the "victims" eulogized them. Sobbing could be heard throughout the PAC. As the students exited the auditorium, they talked quietly among themselves. A few were still sobbing.

Officer Cox said the program appeared to be a success.

"At least it made them stop and think about how they would feel to lose a friend," she said. "If we stopped just one kid from drinking after prom, then the program was a success."

Windell Willis tries patiently to remain still during the mock accident. Windell was one of 43 participants in the alcohol awareness program.

CareFlight paramedics load "victim" Brittany Dickey into the helicopter. Brittany "died" after arriving at the hospital.

Unfulfilled Dreams

Dreams, dreams
we all have them-
or so it seems.

“We are invincible,”
To ourselves
We were so believable.

“It’ll never happen to me”
That’s what we always said
But now-don’t you see?

One drink, one choice
Left behind are family & friends
Never again to hear their voices.

So many things left unsaid
But you’re still here-
And they are dead.

-Kim Bailey

Eric Cortez survives the mock accident, but many of his friends did not.

A severely injured Brittany Dickey arrives at Walls Memorial Hospital. Brittany said the hardest part of playing a victim was having to lie still while her father held her hand. “All I wanted to do was reach up and hug my parents, but all I could do was hold still,” she said.

Above: Students sit around Mrs. Laning as they watch the mock accident. Some said that it looked all too real.

Paramedics arrive at Wall Hospital with one of the “victims” of the mock accident. Cleburne police officers, EMT’s and firemen along with 43 students were involved in the two-day program.

The Grim Reaper takes another drunk driving victim. Every fifteen minutes someone dies from an alcohol related accident.

And the legs have it...

“The only person I contributed to was Ryan.”

— Jonas Cofer

The bleachers buzzed with excitement. Students avidly stared at the line of boys on the gym floor. The boys, decked out in short-shorts and theme clothing, waited anxiously.

Money for the Mr. Legs contest was collected the previous two weeks in the cafeteria, the commons and in the halls. When the students donated money, they were voting for the boys.

There were Scotsmen and cowboys, the Karate Kid, and a cabellero collected on the gym floor. Brian Cravey wore a huge black wig. Travon Rudd donned his everyday duds.

The winner of the traditional contest is announced at a pep rally in front of the entire school. This year's winner, Ryan Barlen, posed as Hugh Hefner. His entourage was decked out in Playboy bunny ears.

When the announcement was made, the pep rally stands once again filled with ear-splitting noise. The competition was tough, but the student body was mostly pleased.

Even though the winner's legs were in short supply, the student body gave Ryan the most money during the donation collecting period.

The sophomore and freshmen classes get a year closer to the title, but their hopeful dreams lie dormant until they get nearer to being seniors.

The junior boys anxiously await the day they can make their Mr. Leg dreams come true.

Kool-Aides

Where would the CHS faculty be without aides? Students lend a hand to their teachers and principles by using a class period to be an aide.

"I really like being an aide because it's a lot easier than being in a real class," counselor's aide Jessica Nare said. "But sometimes I have to do some work."

Not everyone can be an aide though, only juniors and seniors are eligible.

"I wish I could have been an aide throughout all my high school years," Stacey Crumb said. "But I think it's more of a privilege that should go to upper classmen."

Being an aide gives students a chance to gain experience in the office, learn responsibility and have fun. . . That's what school is all about.

Right: Jessica Nare takes someone's name before running an errand for the counselors.

Above: Counseling aides like Jeromy Peacock make the counselors lives much easier. "Besides all the filing I have to do," he said, "It's fun."

Amber Oakes

Friends: We have a few the same.

Dating the same person: We have but not at the same time.

Doing the same thing: She could be talking and I could finish her sentence.

Hobbies: working, hanging out with friends, talking on the phone and most of all shopping

Favorite color: Blue

Future plans: My goal after I graduate is to go to Tarleton State University and major in business.

April Oakes

Sharing: We share clothes, shoes and a room.

Confusing mom: We confuse her, especially on the phone.

Hobbies: working at Hallmark, collecting cow things, crafting and hanging out with my friends

Favorite color: Pink

Dream date: Matthew McConaughey

Future plans: I am going to school to be a dental hygentist.

Cassie and Cadie Elliott look so much alike teachers can't tell them apart.

Kyle Kelley

Sharing: We share a room and sometimes clothes.

Switching places: We switched in 6th grade but got caught at the end of the day.

Dating the same person: We have never dated the same person.

Hobbies: hanging out with my friends and drawing

Favorite color: Blue

Future plans: I want to get a good job and have a family.

Kirk Kelley

Confusing teachers: We confuse teachers all the time.

Being a twin: I like having a twin.

Doing the same thing: Sometimes I'll be humming a song and he will do the same.

Hobbies: being with my friends

Favorite color: Green

Future plans: I plan on going to college and majoring in business.

Karl and Rex Long don't look like twins. It's hard to believe they're brothers.

Dream a Little Dream of Me

Sleeping during class is every teacher's nightmare. Yet, it is an unfortunate reality. Some students show no shame when sleeping in class. Yet, others create ingenious ways to to mask their sleeping habits. Even teachers will admit "snoozing" through class. Brenda Davis said, "If I had known I was going to have to teach Photojournalism, I wouldn't have slept through my class at UTA." But now that these students have been caught, they probably won't get by with sleeping next year.

Sleeping in class 101: This may be the only class in history where everyone is passing. Looks like a success.

Rising Stars

CBS has its Star Search and Fox its American Idol — CHS has Golden Girls.

This year 16 talented young women sang, danced and acted in their attempt to wear the coveted crown.

Senior Tyler Hewlett, who sang “I’ll Be There for You,” was named Golden Girl 2003 proving perseverance pays off.

“I’ve competed before. I placed last year,” she said. “I was surprised I won. There was a lot of talent this year, especially Cara Cook.”

Cook, who offered her own interpretation of Thoroughly Modern Millie, finished as first runner-up.

Whitney Bundock was second runner-up with the presentation of Dorothy Parker’s “The Waltz.”

Ann Marie Johnson finished a third runner-up singing “Green Fingers and Linnet Bird” from the musical Sweeney Todd.

Jenna Taylor performed and original guitar composition and Mary Mason performed various djimbee beats. They tied for fourth runner-up.

A Senior's Prom Night

The day starts with getting ready. For the girls, this means getting up early, makeup, hair appointments and all that jazz.

For the guys, the day goes a lot easier. You wake up about an hour before time to leave, take a shower and get dressed.

The night really started after dinner, when you arrived at prom. Whether you rode in a limo, or drove yourself, everyone arrived in style. For those who drove, the teachers provided valet parking. Parents were clicking off pictures like bright, flashing machine-gun fire.

The nervousness sets in when you're waiting in line, for what seems like forever, for promenade. When you actually got up there and walked through those big pearly gates, you realize how many people are in the audience. With all those eyes starring at you, you get really afraid you're going to fall or do something really stupid like burp.

After all of that, and hundreds of pictures, you actually get into prom. By that time, you just want to lie down. It's exhausting. The decorations were beautiful. The kids danced the night away, and had a great time. Then it's on to Project Celebration—where I had much more fun!!

This year Mrs. Linda Williams co-sponsored the Senior class along with Mrs. Jackie Barbee. The dynamic duo accompanied the robust seniors on their trip to the amusement park. A few seniors challenged them to ride the newest rides while there.

"Everytime one of them sees us they ask if we've ridden a particular ride," Mrs. Williams said. "We just smile and nod like we've done it twice, but in fact we probably haven't."

"I was hungry. But you really shouldn't eat before riding."

Letting go of one dream, reaching for another

Graduation is the culmination of 12 or 13 years of dreams and expectations. In kindergarten, reading and counting to 100 was the ultimate wish. Cursive writing was the ambition of fourth grade. Around about seventh grade the dream turned to that special someone and looking forward to high school.

High school fueled the dreams of a bright future. Freshmen eagerly anticipated that first big day. They soon realized they were but small fish in a big pond. Sophomores found the way a little easier, but dreams turned into a few nightmares when upper classmen complained about pre-cal, biology and the dreaded senior research paper. Then almost overnight, they were seniors with still another challenge facing them. The challenge of leaving the safe and familiar and entering into the unknown future. The dream began to change. Some aimed for higher education, others opted for marriage and starting a family, while others drifted into the future uncertain of what was ahead for them.

Whatever the dream, the Class of 2003 faced the future with expectations, hopes and desires that will be fulfilled — just as surely as the sun will shine tomorrow.

Principal Justin Marchel hands Harold Cox his long overdue diploma as Superintendent Robert Damron and Valedictorian Chris Homan looks on. The veteran became the latest WWII veteran to benefit from a 2001 state law that allows former students to receive a diploma without finishing high school. The 82-year-old Cox entered the Army in 1940. The ever-humble Cox didn't want to overshadow the senior class. "I sure don't want my part to interfere with these kids. It's their night, not mine," he said.

Jesus Ramirez almost didn't get to celebrate graduation. In 2002, the popular senior was seriously injured in an automobile accident. He was hospitalized for several months and had to miss weeks of school, but the determined young man caught up and graduated with his class.

Be Yourself

by Chris Homan

Valedictorian

The senior Class of 2003 and I would like to thank you all for being here tonight. It is going to be a night that we will never soon forget. Without help from our parents, families, friends and teachers, we might not have found ourselves here tonight. Years of hard work have finally culminated. Tonight is a new beginning for all those you see before you. Thank you for coming.

History is here in front of you tonight. Each of these graduates has the potential to change the world. Within this group are future doctors, lawyers, military personnel, engineers, authors and a variety of others. All of these people are individuals who will make an impact on the world. With our graduation, a new chapter of history begins here, tonight.

Some of us have already discovered how we can make our footprints in history. For others, the path may not be so clear. Either way, time will help us to discover who we are. With each passing day, we all learn new things about ourselves. As the Roman poet and philosopher Horace once said, "Carpe diem" or "Seize the day." Let not a day go by where you do not "go out on a limb" and try new things. These discoveries allow you to find your true self. History is filled with these individuals. Tonight, as you see us cross this stage, these are our first steps as individuals into the never-ending record of history.

As we grow as individuals, we begin to have our own unique perspectives. This originality allows us to make our mark on the world. Success lies in this originality. As the philosopher John Stuart once said, "All good things which exist are the fruits of originality." Without the originality of individuals such as George Washington, Benjamin Franklin and Thomas Jefferson, our great nation may have never been founded. Furthermore, it is the protection of such originality that has allowed America to survive and prosper to become the super-power it is today. However, all great things must start somewhere. For us, that somewhere is here, tonight.

Looking at the graduates, it may be tempting to just see a group of students in black gowns and caps. In reality, each student is an individually shaped part of a bigger picture, just like the shards in a stained-glass window. As the dawn of a new future draws nearer, a reflection begins to form behind the window. This reflection is the promise of great things to come, bringing hope for our future.

Seniors, we must not be afraid to make our impact on the world. Live each day to the fullest and discover your own individuality. It is this individuality that sets you apart from everyone else and assures that you will always be remembered.

Salutatorian

Live the Adventure

by Jordan Holmes

The ceremonies of tonight call for a time of fond reflection as well as renewed ambition for the future for many graduates. As we step on this stage in a few moments, most of us are walking away from a life of security where we acquired our first timid steps in the world. We found our comfort in the familiar: the friends we have known since kindergarten, the high school where a speech about Adidas soccer balls could “seriously” end up on a T-shirt, the town where only the truly creative could find a means of entertainment on a Saturday night.

We embraced the familiar these past 18 years and carefully found unforgettable memories and life-altering experiences amidst our comfortable place in the world. To the friends, family and teachers that formed this foundation we will forever be in their debt. These experiences will never quite find their way into the recesses of the past, however. For today we carry these experiences with us, better for having lived through them.

Yet, as each graduate steps off this stage, we must let go of the familiar and enter into an inconsistent world of hope and fear, failure and success. We lose our comfortable place in life to gain a world where we are expected to find our own way. A world where nothing is predetermined and we have everything to lose, yet everything to gain.

Every graduate faces a challenge tonight to let go of the initial reluctance and flourish in this uncertain life in such a way where no opportunity is left unrealized and fully taken advantage of.

Helen Keller encourages us that “Security is almost a superstition. It does not exist in nature. Avoiding danger is no safer in the long run than outright exposure. Life is either a daring adventure or nothing.”

With God’s guidance, we should not be afraid to take risks or move out of the ordinary. The fear of the unknown should never keep us from going out and experiencing life to its fullest.

The class I have come to know these past four years has never been one of timidity and has never backed down from a challenge. This is why as we face the greatest challenge and risk of our lives, the potential for future success and happiness is limitless for this class. Every graduate is unique and offers a great service to the world by meeting their potential. We have waited 12 long years and now it is finally our time. So, congratulations Class of 2003, the future welcomes us with the promise of a new and exciting life.

Best Friends Forever

Friendship Survival

If your friends can't beat you up who can? J.D. Glenn and Brad Moore know better than anyone that you can beat each other up and still be friends.

"One time at my friend's house we were all sitting around being bored. We decided to go to my house and get boxing gloves," J.D. said. "We went back to Brad's house to box. I messed up Brad's nose. I beat him down like a little girl."

Brad gave J.D. a bump on the head, and they are still friends.

While visiting the lions den, Kelly couldn't quite see over the edge. Being such a good friend, Kristen decided to give Kelly a boost. When Kelly leaned forward, Kristien lost her grip nearly dropping Kelly into the lion cage.

"It was scary at the time, but now I think it is hilarious," Kristen said.

With friends like these, who needs enemies?

Things only friends would know.....

Cody Stanley and Daniel Castaneda were at Lake Pat Cleburne. When Cody got out of the car visit the facilities, Daniel left him there and returned to town to pick up Kyle Braswell. After Cody realized the car was gone, he started walking back to town. The other two returned to the lake and couldn't find their friends. They were frantic. Several hours later, Cody called Daniel's cell phone to tell him that he was at a convenience store looking for them. "I saw them drive by when I was walking," Cody said. "I tried to catch them but I wasn't fast enough."

Academics

Every teacher has their own way of teaching, and every student their own way of learning. This year, students at CHS learned to make their dreams come true, even if it meant staying awake through another day of stylistic analysis in English class. Each class helped each student to achieve their goals.

A dream-like Christmas “magic show” was put on by Mrs. Jenkins and Mrs. Sloan in their classes. Students celebrated the coming holiday by eating Christmas snacks and watching the duo light up Christmas trees with chemical reactions and turn “Kool - Aid” into “milk” for Santa.

In English, freshmen read Homer’s “The Odyssey,” and discussed Greek and Roman mythology. Sophomores read To Kill a Mocking Bird, juniors read Huck Finn and suffered through months of AP terms. Seniors slaved away on their research, and thanked the stars when their dream of finally being finished with high school English came true.

Students forgot about their dreams and focused unwillingly on their nightmares as they drug out their calculators and trudged their way through Algebra, Geometry, and Calculus. Mrs. Settemeyer’s honors Geometry class constructed geometric shapes out of dowel rods and string. Mrs. Mariott’s PreCal class used line graphs to draw Mickey Mouse.

Dreaming in History class became next to impossible as teachers cracked down on in-class sleepers. Geography students colored an endless amount of maps, World History learned the causes of the World Wars, U.S. History learned about McCarthyism, and Government and Economics students crammed in as much information as their senior-minds would allow.

The homework piled on during the tris, dwindled as final exams drew closer, and died completely when the year ended. This year may not have been everyone’s dream-come-true academics-wise, but it certainly made the school year an eventful one.

Great Expectations

Whether it’s cooking Thanksgiving dinner for their parents or participating in a tri-county Special Olympic meet, these fantastic students leave their mark. The life skills class here prepares the students for life beyond the classroom. They learn how to write a check, buy groceries and countless other duties that they will need to co-exist with the general population.

One exercise that the students do every year is write a letter to someone they don’t know describing themselves and the purpose of the letter. This year Ashley Irons wrote to her favorite rock band *N Sync. She received a package from the boys a few weeks later. Not all letters are answered, but that doesn’t stop the students from trying again.

“When the band’s rep called to verify Ashley’s letter, I just couldn’t believe it,” Sherri Repenning said. “The lady assured me that she was who she said and a few days later the package arrived. The hardest part was waiting until our awards program to give the package to Ashley. All of us were just dying to see what was inside.”

Every year the students compete in a Special Olympic meet. The meet was held here this year. They competed in such events as softball throw, throwing a football through a hoop, Wiffle ball version of T-Ball and running events.

“I had a really good time,” Ashley Irons said. “I got to meet a lot of new kids.”

GRADUES

It pays to do your homework

Each year the faculty selects recipients for departmental awards. This year's Seniors who were recognized are as follows: Aristotle Award - Chris Homan; Woodman of the World American History Award - Austin Mertz; Most Valuable Chorus Member and Leonardo Da Vinci Award - Codey Whitt; Beverly Potter Memorial Scholarship - Stephanie Potter; Newton Award - Chris Homan; Christa McAuliffe Award - Whitney

Bundock and Christina Eaton; Louis Armstrong Jazz Award - Kyle Miller; John Phillip Sousa Award - Bonnie Wilson; Shakespearean Award - Trey Estes; One Act Play - Steven Goodloe and English Outstanding Student - Christina Eaton.

Many more awards were given that were too numerous to recognize, but congratulations go out to all the students who received these academic awards.

Peter Chan, Artavius Rogers, Joey Sanabria, Preston Pohler and Brent Webb are recognized during the annual awards program. These Seniors showed their leadership all year and will be missed.

Sports

The football was snapped under stadium lights...

A hushed audience watched as the golf ball rolled closer to the hole...

The crowd cheered as the basketball swished into the net...

Led by Katie Benson, Stacey Lasater and Anna Parker, the girls varsity soccer team charged to the third round of playoffs for the championship. After a tough game they lost to the state defending champions, Highland Park. The team's dream seems one step closer now.

The varsity football team and the swimmers advanced to post season play. The football guys' dreams came true this year when they went to the playoffs. They too were defeated, though, by defending champions, Ennis. Both swim teams received second place in District. Leah Parker, Luke Chambless, Sean McCutchen, Drew Goins, James Humphries and Jack Mason were named to the All-State Team.

Lack of experience proved too much for the dreams of a couple teams against tough competitors. Both basketball teams fought hard for victories, but ultimately faced losing seasons.

Injuries plagued some players' dreams. Twisted ankles and pulled muscles invaded the track team. A few students endure broken dreams as they sat out a game or two due to their injuries.

Achievement exceeded dreams for some teams while others walked away empty-handed. A few teams won, a few teams lost, and some broke even. Those whose dreams slipped through the cracks of the playing field still have hope for next year.

PLAYOFF GAME

vs. Ennis
7-62

Two goals of this year's Varsity football team was to win the Homecoming game and to advance to the playoffs in their new district alignment. They accomplished both.

Coming into to the Homecoming game, the team was 2-1 for the season. Fort Worth Southwest had never been an easy victory for the Yellow Jackets, but the guys were hopeful. Their faith was rewarded. They won 43-0.

They opened district play against a new rival, Waxahachie. Despite a valiant effort, the team lost the opening district game by a score of 16-12.

They won the next game beating Midlothian 20-10.

A loss to Waco University followed by a win over last year's 3A powerhouse, Alvarado, the Jackets faced elimination if they lost the next game against Waco Midway.

Facing a powerful Midway defense, the Jackets battled the entire game. A last minute field goal pushed the Jackets ahead by three points allowing them to advance to the state playoffs.

Traveling to Irving to face defending State Champion Ennis, the Jackets knew that they faced an uphill battle. Playing Ennis was daunting. With less than a minute off the clock in the first quarter, the Jackets were down by 14. They eventually lost the game 62-7 ending the Jackets playoff hopes.

Unlike the football players, cheerleaders don't have padding, therefore they must trust their team to catch them if they fall.

The varsity cheer squad executes the traditional collapsing pyramid during each pep-rally.

Alicia Hannah cheers the crowd on to pep up the football team to win the game. "I had a good time this year. With all the changes of people and routines I enjoyed all of it," Alicia said.

Behind the Scenes

Win or lose, the cheerleaders supported all of the CHS sports teams. Some would dare to say they were the voices of CHS. Many people don't realize the hard work, time, and effort put in everyday. After school practice consists of running, strength-training, tumbling, and dancing.

"This season was really hard but I had a good time and at the end it was all worth it," Megan Helton said.

Each member took with them unique memories.

"The tri-squad pep-rally was my favorite because all three squads came together and accomplished that awesome pyramid," Ryan Schwartz said.

Even in the freezing cold and rain the squad never forgot they were a team.

"My favorite game was the one where it was pouring down rain,"

Danielle Adair said, "because it was funny to see all of us soaking wet and still cheering. We would try to jump and we'd slip and fall."

Megan Helton said her best memory was having a party in her room at cheer camp. Her worst memory was when some of the team left the squad.

"It was hard when we lost some girls for various reasons and we missed them, but the rest of the team came together and proved that you can't let adversity color the rest of the year," Helton said.

Despite hard times and shrinking squads the team didn't lose their focus. Overall it was a good season and they continued everyday with their practicing and nonstop commitment to the team.

Megan Helton smiles for the camera during the football game. "I enjoyed being on the Varsity squad and will remember always the experiences. Overall, through all the changes it was a good year," Megan said.

Ashley Adrin must have psychic powers. She flashed a victory sign with her arms and the varsity won the football game that night.

First year Varsity cheerleaders bond during the Homecoming game. All of these young ladies were first year squad members.

The Varsity squad perform one of the stunts that they worked on all week in the pep-rally. They execute the stunt and show their talents and abilities.

While some cheerleaders are still dancing, the others anxiously wait for Danielle Adair to fall from the air, hoping that they catch her right.

Kamille Valerio must trust her team members to allow them to catch her in a stunt like that. Wonder if she trusted the people in New York?

Setting Sky-High Dreams

The Lady Jacket Volleyball team once again showed just what they are made of when the Lady Jackets won district for the fourth time in as many years. They breezed through bi-district but fell short to Pine Tree on their way to state.

The Lady Jackets were fortunate to be lead by seniors: Jessica Nare, Lezlie Logan and Tara Keil.

"Our seniors stepped up and guided the younger players," assistant coach Shelley Sonntag said. "They never gave up."

Even though they entered into a new UIL district, the Lady Jackets were determined to repeat and didn't let the diverse age groups prevent them from a goal set at the end of the last season.

"Even with our different age groups we communicated well," Jacyln Heflin said. "The chemistry was there. Everything just came together."

RUNNING DOWN

Left: Senior Joni Simmons competes in one of the last meets of her high school running career.

"I love the fact that it's not just in fantasyland that hard work really does pay off." Monica Vasquez said.

"It was really awesome being on such a bonded team. We were all really close because we all had the same focus and worked really hard to become DISTRICT CHAMPS!" Elizabeth Wilson said.

"This is the hardest working, most committed group of athletes that I've ever had the privilege of working with," Coach Bird said.

A few years ago, no one would have believed that the Lady Jackets Cross Country team would be District Champions. No one would have thought that they would win an invitational meet, let alone three. No one would have imagined that they would even qualify for regionals, let alone place 5th.

This year's team accomplished all these things. Coach Coby Bird attributed this great season to the girls' commitment to running over the summer.

"These girls came to practice in the best shape they have ever been in at the start of a season. We didn't have to spend the first few months conditioning," Bird said.

All this hard work paid off because the girls' season was overall the best in school history.

Nicknamed the "Sunrise Club" because of their 6:15 practice time, these athletes ran an average of 3-5 miles daily plus speedwork on the track, all while most of the school was still dreaming.

The Lady Jackets are off to a running start in the District cross country meet, at Cleburne's Byron Stewart Park. The varsity and junior varsity teams captured the District title to qualify for regionals.

"I've run cross country since I've been in high school, but this year was the best. We had a good chance to go to State but missed it by one place," Andrew Stiver said.

"My favorite thing about cross country was going to the races. Mostly before the races and after they were over because it consisted of goofing off," Chris Bergman said.

AND THEY'RE OFF!!! The varsity boys cross country team got off to a good start, finishing in second place finish at the District meet.

Senior Cody Allen sprints toward the finish line at the district track meet.

"This year the guys went way above my expectations. We had good senior leadership from Rob Hazel, Casey Wu and Cody Allen. The work ethic of these guys was great," Coach Naylor said.

At 6:15, long before sunrise, a group of dedicated athletes is running up to 8 miles. The early morning practices and long runs were well worth the effort as the boys Cross Country team ran their way back to the Regional meet in Arlington. However, placing 4th at regionals just wasn't enough.

"We had a good chance to go to State but missed it by one place," Andrew Stiver said.

The guys placed 2nd at District with great senior leadership from Rob Hazel, Casey Wu and Cody Allen. This year's seniors will be missed but they leave behind a group of hard workers as a good foundation for another successful season. With all the growing success and traditions, CHS has big dreams for next year's team.

It's Time to Sink or Swim

Senior James Humphries prepares mentally for his race. This year's seniors were on the first CHS swim team as freshman 4 years ago.

For the second year in the team's 44 year history, members of the CHS swim team qualified for the state UIL state championship swim meet in Austin.

"It's awesome that these kids were able to qualify," said Coach Terrie Chambless in a Cleburne Times Review interview, "Even more exciting that they have a chance to swim well at the state meet."

Qualifying in individual events were Luke Chambless, in the 100 breaststroke and 200 individual medley, and Leah Parker in the 100 breaststroke. The two boys relays to qualify were the 200 medley relay (Drew Goins, Luke Chambless, Sean McCutcheon, James Humphries) and the 400 freestyle relay (Jack Mason, Luke Chambless, Sean McCutcheon, James Humphries)

This season was also the first year for a Cleburne girl to compete at State.

"It was really an honor to represent Cleburne," said sophomore Leah Parker, "but I'm even more excited about next year because I know that there will be many more Cleburne girls."

To qualify for state, a swimmer must either win their regional meet or be among the next eight fastest time from across the state.

"The state swim meet is really exciting," said senior James Humphries, "The pool at the University of Texas is one of the best we have ever been in."

But, the state meet was only the ending to an awesome season.

"I am awed by the dedication that these swimmers have. They are swimming before most of their peers are even awake" said Chambless.

The team practices every morning from 5:30 to 7:30 at the Hulen Pool, and when the weather gets colder, the Cleburne Fitness Center.

"We are at somewhat of a disadvantage compared to other teams, because we don't have our own pool," said junior Sydney Saradett, "so we are pretty crowded at practice, but we work around it, and it has made us better. Also, we are all good friends, so that makes it easier."

At the district swim meet, both the girl's and boy's teams took 2nd place, and a high majority of the team qualified for regionals. In a region that stretched from Austin to San Antonio to Texarkana and included swimming powerhouses Austin Johnson, Anderson, and Texas High, every one of Cleburne's sixteen swimmers swam personal best times.

Stretching is important to all sports, and these Jackets prove that swimming is no exception. "Pre-meet stretching is always the most strenuous part of the day!" said Junior Corey Meeks. Stretching in their Speedos is just one of the ways that the swim team is unique.

At the state meet, junior Jack Mason swam the first leg in the 400 freestyle relay

Mandy Wooten displays great stroke technique in the 100 breaststroke.

“As a senior, its good to see all the hard work paying off. It’s been fun.”

Continuing the Tradition

Starting the season with big dreams of impacting a brand new district, the 2002-2003 Lady Jackets basketball team did that and much more. In the pre-season district ranking, the Lady Jackets were expected to place third, but surprised everyone by finishing with a 21-12 overall record, and a 9-1 record in district play, earning them a Co-District Championship. They advanced to the Regional semi-finals before losing to Lincoln. Coach Mitzi Marquart attributes the successful season to good chemistry and leadership from all eight players, and was unable to name just one team leader.

"All eight played important roles, and stepped up at different times," Marquart said.

That chemistry and leadership were rewarded when several of the team members received All-District honors.

District honors included: Co- Most Valuable Offensive Player to Haley Tull, first team All-District Tara Kiel and Ashley King, second team All-District to Robin Burgess and Honorable Mentions to Chelsea Ginn and Lucy Connerway.

With only two seniors graduating, the Lady Jackets hope to carry on the winning tradition next season, and make it to the state play-offs.

The guys Varsity baseball team had an outstanding season this year. They started their season with 22 straight wins. Their winning streak brought Coach Taylor is 200th win. The guys fought hard to the finish, earning District and Area Champion titles.

"I think that overall this was a great season." Dillion Gee said. "I'm just glad that I had the chance to play with one of the best teams to ever come through Cleburne High

The guys finished off their seson against Hewitt Midway. Even though the Jackets lost to Midway for the third time, this game was by far the best. The Jackets lost 2-1 after Ryan Stepp hit the only homerun. The Jackets had a great defensive game and turned three double plays. Although the season ended after the Hewitt Midway game, the guys' dreams still have the opportunity to come true next year.

One Team, One Dream

The Cleburne Lady Jackets made school history this year making it all the way to the play-offs. The Lady Jackets were "the first" in what they hope will be a tradition that is carried on for years to come.

"Softball was so much fun this year, everyone got along and worked together," Chelsey Jordan said. "It's going to be sad seeing Sara and Kayla go this year, they were both looked up to a lot by everyone on Varsity and JV and it is going to be hard because now we are the older ones that have to be the leaders."

The Lady Jackets played their first playoff game at Baylor University against Ennis. Although the Lady Jackets did not receive a victory they were still very proud to have been able to play their first game at the Baylor softball field.

"The field was so much nicer than what we are use to playing on," Kala Taylor said "but once you get out there and start playing the feeling of where you are goes away and all that starts to matter is that you play your game and give your all."

With the conclusion of the 2003 season, a dream was captured and another is born.

Walk the walk

Utility player Elizabeth Mandich helps team her ability to play every team position.

Dedication and hard work paid off for the Junior Varsity Lady Jackets softball team. Coming off a one win season last year, the team finished the season with a 10 and 5 record.

Some would say the JV made a complete turnaround and kicked some major booty.

"I wasn't sure how we would do this year, seeing how there were so many freshman on the team this year," third-year member Tracy Rogers said.

Pitcher Mimi Graff credits Coach Sonntag and Coach Achorn for their success and looks forward to next year.

"It was nice having such a good defense behind me," Mimi said. "I know this year was good, but I know next year will be better."

Lyric Lain knows a warm-up practice is important as she readies for a hit from Coach Achorn.

"Big Red" AKA Staci Street goes two for three against Alvarado.

Lead-off hitter Kelsey Shaw readies for the pitch. Kelsey lined to center field for a triple.

One dream ends, another begins

The CHS Boys Varsity soccer team started out strong but weakened as the season continued. They finished 7-5 in the final district standings.

"We thought at the first of the season we had potential, but as the season went on our hopes faded because of some players selfishness," Shane Greenslade said. "Some of us weren't dependable and may have cost us the season."

His brother agreed but looks forward to next season with a renewed faith and resolve.

"Although we may have missed the playoffs," Shawn Greenslade said. "We still felt good about ourselves and are still looking forward to next season.."

Next year looks hopeful and if determination counts then the Jackets are more than ready.

Guy Muller dives to block the score, but he was unsuccessful.

Right: Cody Callaway watches Raul Rodriguez as he steals the ball from an opponent.

No Boundaries

Lady Jackets look past polls and predictions to gain playoff berth.

The Lady Jacket soccer program had an outstanding season. At the beginning of the season, the team was not predicted to do well in the new district. Midlothian and Waco Midway were pre-season favorites. The Lady Jackets paid no heed. They just went out and did their job.

Sometimes their work ethic was tested, especially when it came to play in freezing cold weather and rain, but the hard work paid off when the Lady Jackets advanced to the playoffs.

"I was so proud of these young ladies," Coach Coby Bird said. "They have so much heart and just never gave up."

On the way through the playoffs, the team defeated Dallas Kimball.

"We were so excited to win a playoff game," Stacy Lasater said. "It was fun and exciting."

The season ended on a heartbreaking loss to defending state champions Highland Park. The Lady Jackets lost 4-0.

"I could not have been prouder of the girls, the parents and especially the student body," Bird said. "Despite our being down by four, the students and fans kept right on cheering and encouraging the team. That kept our spirits up, and the play reflected it."

Look out Waco and Midlothian, the Lady Jackets want more of the same for next year.

1. Amy Sweeney and dribbles upfield against a Dallas Kimball opponent.
2. Goalie Abbie Rader punts the ball thus defending against a goal opponent.
3. Kristi Huffman and Lindsay Slough in actions against playoff opponent Dallas Kimball.
4. Controlling the ball is a basic element in soccer. Anna Parker demonstrates she learned the lesson well.

Stride to Victory

The Jacket and Lady Jacket Track and Field teams went into the season with the goals of increasing the number of athletes in the program, and qualifying as many athletes for regionals as possible. According to coaches Coach Dagley and Richard Naylor the teams achieved these goals.

The teams consisted of mostly underclassmen. Although the teams were inexperienced, Dagley was impressed with their performances. He feels the Track programs will be stronger next year and will challenge the District leaders in all categories.

Rob Hazle and Jamison Newby qualified for the regional track meet, in the 3200-meter and discus, respectively. Newby qualified for a trip to Austin to compete in the state championship meet with a personal best throw of 168 feet 9 inches

The Jacketts look forward to next year and a state championship as a team.

Far Left: Chelsey Kelley displays the great form that won her a bronze medal at the District track meet.

Near Left: Katie Shaw, Davey Green and Diane Green form an unbeatable trio in the 3200 meter run.

Brandon Fuller leaps over a hurdle as he races to the finish line.

Macoyia Malone leans into the finish line.

Senior pole vaulter Joey Sanabria stretches for just one more inch.

Ricky Santos grunts and strains to lift just one more pound.

Larry Trevino appears to be laughing as he tries press wrights during a competition. He broke a school record with this lift.

Reese Threadgill believes in whistling while you work.

Adam Rogers lies on his back to bench press his way into the next level of competition.

Larry Trevino strains and strains to lift enough iron to advance in competition.

Devin Williams makes it look easy as he lifts weights than more than double his body weight.

Fairway Friends

A guys' night out leads to a lot of horse play.

I am very proud of the seniors on this golf team. They were good leaders, students, and most importantly well behaved. I know each and every one of them will have tremendous success in their future endeavors.

Overall I thought this was an extremely successful year. We were seven strokes from becoming the first team in thirteen years to qualify for regionals. I was very proud of Kyle Kerbel placing second in district and qualifying for regionals. I think this year is the beginning of many successful years for the golf program.

- Coach Lackey

GAME, SET—MATCH

Cary Bruner tricks his opponent by sending an easy shot over the net instead of with his usual power hit.

Austin Mertz delivers a powerful hit across the net and into his opponent's side of the court.

"Return to Sender" is what Nathan Hood sings as he sends the ball flying back across the court.

TENNIS

Front: Megan Holleman, Michael Hoover, Ruth DenHartog, Cary Bruner and Alex Buckingham Second: Wendy Spurgeon, Matthew Hood, Casey Morgan, Kyle Spurgeon and Ashley Gatewood Back: Nathan Hood, Austin Mertz, Whitney Giddens, Melinda Calder, Joel Bailey, Jonathan Esparza and Coach Stacey Foster

"Service" yells Joel Bailey as he blows his opponent out of the water on a remarkable serve.

Cary Bruner hip hops his way to a victory. Love the hat Cary!

Jonathon Esparza sends a soaring serve across the court.

Austin Mertz executes a nice save.

Look out Venus and Serena Williams, here come the Lady Jackets

The thwak of the ball hitting the court echoed through the stadium. A few people muttered "good shot" quietly, but the stadium remained otherwise silent.

Although many people think hitting the ball over the net is all there is to tennis, it takes a lot of hard work and dedication to be successful.

"We did really good this year," Matt Percy said, "but we do good every year because we try."

It takes a lot of concentration to be a talented tennis player. The ability to anticipate an opponent's next move is important. Two students did so well this year, they blew previous records away.

"Austin Mertz and I went further in regionals that anyone has in the last two decades," Cary Bruner said.

The tennis team's dreams came true this year because of all their hard work. With several members coming back next year, the dream is sure to be a reoccurring one.

Ruth DenHartog delivers an across the body shot against Midlothian.

Melinda Calder uses two hands to deliver a shot back at her opponent.

Ashley Gatewood's backhand looks as good as Serena Williams's.

Determination and hard work pays off for Casey Morgan.

Casey Morgan intimidates her opponent with a nice return.

Alex Buckingham waits for the perfect opportunity to return the shot.

Whitney Giddens returns the ball to her opponent.

Casey Morgan taps the ball over the net to score as her teammate, Whitney Giddens, looks on.

Wendy Spurgeon returns the ball, and scored a point.

People

I'm sitting in the Yearbook room, slouched over a Macintosh computer that keeps freezing. The cursor blinks furiously at me, urging me to fill up the blank space with words.

This is the hardest story I've ever had to write.

I mean, what is there to say about people? There are a bunch of them in our school, and they clog the halls when you're already late and still have to get by the Science hall stairwell.

As you're rushing to your next class, all the people in the way blur together, indistinguishable and innumerable. But if you slow down and take a closer look (your teacher won't care if you're late anyway), those people aren't the misty fog you think they are.

As many times as we hear it, we should know it by now: people are unique. And as cliché and corny as it sounds, it's true. Right in this very room are people who love country music and people who'll only listen to alternative. There are people wearing Holister and Abercrombie, people wearing Levis, and people who can't remember the last time they went into a real store to buy clothes.

There are people who can't wait to leave this little town, and people who love the atmosphere. There are writers and photographers, actors and dancers, teachers and students. Some people are so far behind with their homework they'll never catch up, and there are some so prepared they could graduate a year early.

The hall you're in is full of different people. They have different hopes and dreams and different goals. They'll grow up to live productive lives, following different careers and different lifestyles. You realize this and speed back up, hoping to make it to class.

You slide into your seat just as the tardy bell rings.

The English teachers dressed alike for StuCo's twins day. StuCo assigned a different theme for each day of Red Ribbon Week.

I love being a part of such a great group of people.

The average age of the military man is 19 years.

He is a short haired, tight-muscled kid who, under normal circumstances is considered by society as half man, half boy. Not yet dry behind the ears, not old enough to buy a beer, but old enough to die for his country.

He never really cared much for work and he would rather wax his own car than wash his father's; but he has never collected unemployment either.

He's a recent High School graduate; he was probably an average student, pursued some form of sports activities, drives a ten year old jalopy and has a steady girlfriend that either broke up with him when he left, or swears to be waiting when he returns from half a world away.

He is ten or fifteen pounds lighter now than when he was at home because he is working or fighting from before to well after dusk

He has trouble spelling, thus letter writing is a pain for him, but he can field strip a rifle in 30 seconds and reassemble it in less time in the dark.

He can recite to you the nomenclature of a machine gun or grenade launcher and use either one effectively if he must.

He digs foxholes and latrines and can apply first-aid like a professional.

He can march until he is told to stop and stop until he is told to march.

He obeys orders instantly and without hesitation, but he is not without spirit or individual dignity.

He is self-sufficient. He has two sets of fatigues; he washes one and wears the other. He keeps his canteens full and his feet dry.

He sometimes forgets to brush his teeth, but never to clean his rifle.

He can cook his own meals, mend his own clothes and fix his own hurts. If you're thirsty, he'll share his water with you and if your hungry he'll share his food.

He'll even splut his ammunition with you in the midst of battle when you run low.

He has learned to use his hands like weapons and weapons like they were his hands. He can save your life, or take it, because that is his job.

He will often do twice the work of a civilian, draw half the pay and still find ironic humor in it all. He has seen more suffering and death than he should have in his short lifetime.

He has stood atop mountains of dead bodies and helped to create them.

He felt every note of the National Anthem vibrate through his body while at rigid attention, while tempering the burning desire to 'square-away' those around him who haven't bothered to stand, remove their hat or even stop talking. In an odd twist, day in and day out, far from home, he defends their right to be disrespectful.

Just as did his father, grandfather and great-grandfather, he is paying the price for our freedom.

Beardless or not, he is not a boy.

He is the American fighting man that has kept this country free for over 200 years.

He is asking nothing in return, except our friendship and understanding.

Remember him, always, for he has earned our respect and admiration with his blood.

Dare to Dream

Switching from the ordinary, the teacher talent show gave students and teachers the chance to play roles for a short 30-minute period. As teachers performed their talents, students realized they could do more than just teach.

The show started with "R-E-S-P-E-C-T" performed by Mrs. Judith Kitchens, Mrs. Jackie Stacy and Mrs. Brenda Davis. It ended with "Johnny Be Good," performed by our own principal, Mr. Justin Marchel. The student body couldn't help but cheer, yell and laugh hysterically at the antics of their teachers.

"I thought it was pretty good, considering they were old fogies," Dillon Gee said.

Mrs. Davis said she didn't feel all that old going into the production, but soon changed her mind.

"Doricia Rudd and Keirah Burrell helped us with the choreography," she said. "They were tyrants. No seriously, they were great, but I was so tired after rehearsing, I nearly fell asleep driving home."

Old or not, the teachers that participated in this year's first annual Teacher Talent Show left lasting impressions with the students.

Above: Mrs. Judith Kitchens, Mrs. Brenda Davis and Mrs. Jackie Stacy lip-sync to Aretha Franklin's "R-E-S-P-E-C-T." These women know what girls want in a relationship.

Right: Sonya Reinhardt and Burl Cato chat on stage. They had more fun being the center of attention than watching the show.

Mrs. Dugger kicks off the first annual Teacher Talent Show by leading the crowd with the National Anthem.

Above: Mr. Marchel performs "Johnny be Good," and blows the crowd away. Johnny may mind; now if Mr. Marchel could only get the rest of the school to listen.

Above: Coach Coby Bird accompanies Coach Allen in a "nosy" rendition of "Dueling Banjos." The duo used red, yellow, green and blue flashlights to highlight the lively tune. Did we mention the flashlights were up their noses?

Above: Coach Randy Allen lights up the room. A flashlight and his nose were all he needed to bring the audience to its feet.

Left: Mr. Ron Garcia breaks all the rules with his performance of "I Can Only Imagine." The audience cheered loudly for the dress-code violator. "I knew they would go wild when they saw me with my shirt hanging out," he said. "They didn't prove me wrong."

Left: Mrs. Gerner performs a jazz song and shocks the school with her talent.

I look like a dead Marilyn Monroe.
-Brenda Davis

Freshmen: Brett Hamilton, Kordell Simpson, Holly Maddox and Aubrey Tuley

Class

Favorites

Every year the student body casts their votes for class favorites. No campaigns, no catchy slogans or colorful posters. It is just an all out race for most popular person in the class.

"I wasn't really expecting it. I didn't think I was anyone's favorite until now." Cade Campbell said. He was voted senior class favorite along with Jeannie Oldham, Ceddie Cephus, Tara Keil and Burl Cato.

This year was a year for ties, and instead of the standard two boys and two girls, some of the classes ended up with some strange combinations.

Sophmores: Osha Ellison, Brian Bachofer, Mary Mason and Sherrard Groover

Juniors: Dillon Gee, Doricia Rudd, Keirah Burrell, Lyric Lain, Kole Montgomery

“All the people who won deserve it.”
-Heather Rodriguez

“Four years of hard work and determination really payed off for the seniors. They deserve every bit of our love and respect.”
-Stephen Wolf

Seniors: Cade Cambell, Jeannie Oldham, Burl Cato, Tara KeKeil and ddie Cephus

From All Around the World...

Dreaming of continuing their education in another country, students around the world travel to far away places through the foreign exchange student program. For years there has been many young people who have given up the comforts and safety of living at home to study abroad.

Fernando Marti said the things he misses most about home are some of his Venezuelan traditions and celebrations. After a year here he wanted to tell of his new American friends

“Thanks ya’ll for everything...”

Coming from their homes in other countries, sometimes thousands of miles, three of these students ended up here in little ol’ Cleburne, Texas. Staying away from their homes for a year, sometimes more, was surely difficult, but the students here at CHS tried their best to make life a little easier... and to show them how Texans have fun.

Fernando Marti
Venezuela

What do you miss most about your home country? My family and friends and being able to drive.

What do you enjoy most about life in the United States? Living in a law-abiding, caring country.

What did you think of the United States before you moved here? The image of the best, prettiest, and fascinating country in the world.

Have those thoughts changed? In part, yes it has, because there is a bad side to this country. The drunk driving problem in this country is out of control.

What are your dreams for the future? After this year, I am going to Spain for college, and try to major in economics or something like that.

How do you feel about the family you are living with? There is no perfect family, and no perfect people. There can never be a replacement for my family at home.

Mark Matheson

New Zealand

What do you miss most about your home country? My friends and family, playing rugby, and the convenience of public transport.

What do you enjoy about life in the United States? Country music, American food, and American people. Also there are a lot more public events, like concerts and stuff.

What did you think about the United States before you moved here? Have those thoughts changed? I thought Texas was a big sandy desert full of tiny towns and country people. It's a lot more industrialized than I thought, and really a lot more with the times.

Do you plan on coming back someday? I plan on coming back this summer and coming to see everyone in Cleburne again. Maybe even come stay a couple of years later in my life.

What are your dreams for the future? I want to be a doctor either here in the U.S. or in New Zealand. I am thinking about going to college here in Texas.

Christy Makarovskaya

Ukraine

What do you miss most about your home country?

Most of all I miss my parents. Before I came here I never realized how hard it was to live so far away without them.

What do you enjoy most about life in the United States?

I enjoy the opportunity to learn about American culture, and meet new people.

What did you think about the United States before you moved here, and how have those thoughts changed?

I thought the people here were very different from the way we dress and act where I come from. I now know that we are not nearly as different as I once thought.

What are your dreams for the future?

I have always been excited about arguing for the innocence of people, and love movies about it. I think being a lawyer would be an excellent job for me.

How do you feel about the family you are staying with?

I like the family I am staying with very much, and I would like to thank everyone for being so nice and helping me to have a good time this year.

Mr. CHS

Favorite Actress: Halle Berry

Favorite Actor: Denzel Washington

Favorite Movie: Remember the Titans

Greatest Fear: Failing to succeed.

Favorite TV show: Jubilant Sykes

Something surprising about me: I am one of eight children.

Nobody knows I can sing

Greatest Achievement: All State Mixed Choir

Most Embarrassing High School Memory: The choir van left without me, and I had to bum a ride to catch it in Burleson.

Favorite High School Moment: Trippin' with the basketball team everyday before practice.

Advice for Underclassmen: Anything worth having isn't easy to get.

Joel Cross

Miss CHS

Favorite Actress: Julia Roberts

Favorite Actor: Matthew McConahay

Favorite Movie: Love and Basketball

Greatest Fear: Losing my cell phone

Favorite TV show: Friends

Favorite Band: All Music

Something surprising about me: I sing really bad!

Nobody knows I had an imaginary friend named Sally when I was four.

Greatest Achievement: Being a two year first team All-District choice in both basketball and volleyball.

Most Embarrassing High School Memory: Falling down the stairs.

Favorite High School Moment: Winning playoffs games.

Advice for Underclassmen: It's over before you know it, so have fun and be yourself.

Tara Kiel

Don't let your eyes deceive you, they're not twins. Chris and Josh Irvin actually have a three year age difference.

Although Chris is leaving, David Davis has another brother to look up to.

Right: Jacob Kelsey uses all his strength to push his big sister Jessica away as she tries to kiss him all over his face.

Above: Cheyenne Peacock, who is finally in high school with all the cute boys, says it's a bummer that Jeromy is always watching over her.

Hello

United by birth and now by school, these brothers and sisters share hallways, teachers and friends.

"It's pretty fun having him around," Cheyenne Peacock said of her brother Jeromy. "But then again I can't ever get away with anything."

Cassie Hardee enjoys seeing her sibling everyday.

"Everyday I can see her wonderful smile and give her a great big hug," Cassie said.

However, there are downsides to having a brother at the same school.

"Sometimes people mistake me for my brother, but other than that it's okay having him around," Chris Irvin said.

Then again it's not too bad having a brother around.

"I would have to say that my brother is a dancing machine," Jessica Kelsey said of her brother Jacob. "And all the girls want to dance with him at the dances."

Though complete opposites, Lauren and Lance Bennett share the commonality of attending CHS.

Tara and Brent Kiel not only share height but also share a school.

It is now Taryn Hall's turn to be the big sister to freshman Cameron. Taryn's older sister was a senior when she was a "fishie."

Jessica and Cassie Hardee can show off their sisterly love at school.

Leigh Wallace moves on to Texas Tech but leaves her legacy behind in brother Rob.

Goodbye

Organizations

As a teen, time is tight. Schedules are filled with learning and working, balancing family and friends, and getting all the homework finished on time. Although students have packed itineraries, many took on another time-consuming project: community service.

Clubs sponsors announced at the beginning of the school year that they were taking new applications. Students flocked to the office to pick up forms, thinking of why they'd be an asset to Key Club or why the Prom Committee really needed them.

GPA's were checked by Beta Club and National Honor Society. StuCo held its first meeting. The Exchangettes sent out evaluation forms to the teachers and the Golden Pride fine-tuned its marching show. Throughout the year, points were added up and students struggled through classes trying to maintain a 4.8 GPA. Students made sure to keep their shirts tucked in so a dress code suspension wouldn't revoke their club membership.

Organizations weren't just about buying the shirt or attending meetings. Key Club took donations for its annual Thanksgiving Food Drive, and Beta members brought in toys to donate to underprivileged children for Christmas.

StuCo hosted the usual dances and DARE week. Members wore their clothing backwards, donned silly hats and dressed as twins in accordance with each day's theme. Key Club also sponsored the Meals on Wheel project. Every Wednesday the participating students missed lunch to deliver meals to the elderly and shut-ins. These students were rewarded by getting to stop and buy lunch at local fast food restaurants, but only if they had time.

All students have crazy schedules. Many wak up in the wee hours of the morning or go to bed extremely late to get everything done that needs finishing. Extracurricular participants made their days even more full, but the effort was rewarding enough to make up for lost sleep.

Key Club's annual Thanksgiving food drive brought in Thanksgiving dinner for many unfortunate families.

It's good to be involved.
-Danyelle Barber

I got really involved this year. I like helping out.
-Casie Fruin

Judging the judges

Land Team: Chris Boedecker, Cameron Kirkland, Kacie Christenson, Casey Reeves, Tommy Russell and Mr. Barney

At Cleburne High School, competition is a familiar aspect of extra-curricular life. Participants in many different events are well accustomed to being judged. But one program actually does the judging. The local FFA Chapter thrives on its judging teams. Whether it is in horse or land judging, the teams work hard and have proven over and over that they are the best.

other events has its own expectations and stress.

"It's a lot of fun," Cara said. "But it's a lot of pressure, too."

The land judging team members included Blake Beavers, Chris Boedecker, Christina Harris and Josh Hines. They competed at the state level and placed high enough to advance to the National competition.

"I am very proud of the teams," adviser Justin Lacy said. "These people are some of the best in the state, and I've been fortunate to have worked with them."

Lacy left CHS at the end of the year to return to his roots. He will teach at a small high school near his hometown of Sherman.

This spring, the horse and land judging teams won the right to represent CHS at the state competition. The horse judging team members include Cara Scoggin, Lindsay Dunn, Jessica Hulce and Ashton Bellville. As if being judged by a professional isn't stressful enough, Cara Scoggin admitted that judging

'Romeo and Juliet' Proves Miracles do Happen

District Championship, District Championship, where for art thou District Championship? It's in the hands of Waxahachie and Waco — at least for awhile.

One Act Play revived one of the most remembered love stories of history when Mrs. Sally Maxey chose one of Shakespeare's most famous plays. The play, Romeo and Juliet, presents a challenge and a risk for high school students, especially when performed on a bare stage. Students, who have read and studied the play in English, now have seen it acted out by fellow classmates.

"The students learned a valuable lesson through the study of Shakespeare. I am very pleased with the final performances and the awards our students received," Mrs. Maxey said.

Mrs. Maxey asked for miracle when the cast was named alternate in District competition. She received her answers upon learning of an invitation to compete at area due to Waxahachie's disqualification. They won the competition and advanced to Regional.

Followed by many hours of practice Juliet, Cara Cook said, "This year has been such a learning experience for everyone, even for the veterans in the class. Some of us didn't learn acting lessons, we learned life lessons. I am forever grateful."

All the hard work payed off, Cara was named Best Actress at District, placed on the All-Star Cast at Area and at Regional received an All-Star Honorable Mention.

Other Students who received UIL awards were: Trey Estes, Stephen Eyre and Michele Morris.

"The drama department helped me throughout high school," Trey said. "It let me run away to places and become another person."

...And the band played on

The CHS Gold Pride Marching Band had another triumphant year with "The Rise and Fall of Rome"--the obvious choice to follow up 2001's "Jesus Christ Superstar." At games and competitions throughout the fall, football fields were transformed into coliseums with the help of tall pillars, the saber-spinning Color Guard and "Roman legions," marching boldly with instruments in hand.

Though the timed feats, bold musicality, and quick-footed movements may have appeared seamless and smooth, the preparation for the show was far from easy; after all, "Rome wasn't built in a day." Mandatory camps and squad practices started as early as July for the band members tough enough to brave the heat. Hours were dedicated to make even the most difficult of maneuvers appear effortless. All of that hard work paid off--the season was met with success after success on and off the field.

According to Alan Reed, head band director, the show topped all previous in both marching and playing skill. Although this was not a state year, the Golden Pride was given its due respect at every competition, taking home numerous trophies and awards.

For the first time, the marching band took an out-of-state trip during the season, traveling to Nacadoches, Louisiana to play at Southwest University for an invitational competition. The band had a phenomenal performance, and was awarded Division I ratings for all aspects of the show.

Not only was 2002's marching show important because of its success, but also because it was Mr. Reed's last year as head band director. He was very pleased with his last marching show, and many of the band members shared his enthusiasm.

Even though togas didn't show up in the routine, the Roman theme managed to find its way into many aspects of the marching season; Roman numerals replaced the usual digits on shirts, signs, and shoe-polished car windows, and even plastic swords and armor managed to make their way on to the practice field.

During the last movement of the show, the Color Guard twirled fiery flags as pillars fell to the ground, in a synchronized reenactment of the burning of Rome. As the drumline set the final rhythm of the show, the clear sounds of the last fanfare echoed through the stadium, followed closely by applause. According to the old saying, "All roads lead to Rome," and this year, "Rome" was in Cleburne, Texas.

They lined up on the sidelines, listening to Mr. Reed's usual pre-performance speech. They readied themselves for action, getting into their positions for the march. Fans of the football teamed crowded the stands, and they looked on as the half-time clock ticked down the minutes.

But this year, instead of somewhat uncomfortable band uniforms, the cymbal players fidgeted with their new costumes, a layered look that resembled the Color Guard's.

Dramatic Additions

The band would sound just as good—rhythm would still get the crowd moving, but without the color guard the flair would not be there.

“The color guard is an important part of any halftime show,” director Alan Read said. “It adds zip to the routines and is always a crowd favorite.”

The girls spend many hours rehearsing their various routines to entertain and capture the attention of the audience. The color guard worked daily to perfect the routines all the while looking forward to participating in the various halftime shows and band competitions through out the year.

“The color guard works a week even before band camp. We have our own camp. We have night practices above and beyond what is considered normal. We work really hard, but it’s all worth it at the end,” Amanda Skelton said.

Precision, timing and flair give the color guard the unique style that dazzles the crowd.

Relationship Success

According to the teen leadership program called Pass Program, the key to success in life is relationships. It teaches students how to create and maintain quality relationships with friends, spouses, teachers and parents. It also deals with standards and values of life. After completing this class, the students have gained self-concept, self-awareness, social skills and goal setting. The students for this all freshman program are recommended by their middle school teachers and coaches. Students are selected for their leadership potential not their grades. Each subject and trait has its own special teacher. CHS faculty include:

Mrs. Diane Crosby-Math
 Mrs. Roxy Sherwood-English
 Mrs. Karen Owens- Geography
 Coach Coby Bird- History
 All of these teachers went to a Ropes course which works on team building concepts. In order to teach the teen leadership teachers must attend a workshop. The following teacher completed all the requirements.
 Coach Lyle Lackey
 Mrs. Lorna Smith
 Mr. Ron Garcia
 Mr. Jim Phillips
 Coach Coby Bird
 The program is in more than 500 schools statewide, and the program's organizers hope to expand it in the future.

These classes offer more connection with the students and teachers by allowing more personal time for teachers and students to interact.

Statistically, 70 percent of students are more likely to graduate high school after participating in the program.

The PASS Program was started Flip Flippin, a noted motivational speaker. He went to schools promoting the program to teachers and students. The program is rapidly growing and has a proven positive result.

Reminiscing

Me and my friend Cade while driving around in the hill country saw a weird creature (in which we named "Jerusulus") dart across the road. No one believes us. Looks like were taking it to the grave. Kincade Benson I remember when we went to TCU for our college day. Jeannie, Joey, and I ran around causing havoc on the college while Preston and Jeromy were taking their campus tour. Cade Campbell I remember parties, dances and staying out late for no reason at all. My friends stick with me through everything. Long live the WNP. I love you guys. WORD IS BOMB! Burl Cato My greatest memory from high school has been meeting new people. People who are completely different than you, but who become your best friends, who will stay in your heart forever. Ashley Coplin There are so many things that I remember from rappin' with Amy Fuller to watching Nectar play for the first time. Becoming friends with some of the best people in world like Trey Estes, Stephen Reynolds, Sonya Reinhardt and DJ May. Seth Crisp Remember when we took a random road trip at 10:30 at night. Remember when we raided certain cabinets in our parents' kitchens. Shannon Crum Foreign Language Festival in San Angelo. Countless track meets away during school. Sweet! French 3 "class" aka football practice. High velocities and straight aways and minor citations. Jaime Degollado Morp 2001... and the shirts we made to commemorate it. Larry Dyer I remember when Chris Bergman and I were tackling trashcans at the UTA track meet our sophomore year and Coach Naylor threatened to kick us off the team. Brandon Fuller I remember when the choir had just got back from All-Region try-outs. We were getting out of the van and Codey Whitt fell out of the back. Braxton Hall I made so many memories from painting pants to taking pictures with a cow. I will never forget this great group of friends that I shared my senior year with. Selena Hall My memories...TAG Team, K-C Mer and Monka-T, Best Guard 2002, Dusty Dr. Pepper, "We were just makin' memories," Tamaryl and Chelle, SENIOR girls rock, "Swing, swing, swing," "Good-bye to you." Taryn Hall I remember Romi and Michelle's HIGH school reunion, "Jeanie-O," "Get UM!," junk food, "Moluhand Drive?," goodwill, guys, dark room, journals, love, guys in bands and halloween. Megan Helton My greatest memory from high school would have to be participating in the first Shattered Dreams project at CHS. The impact it had on me will live in my mind forever. Brandye Henninger Remember when we were freshmen and an army of crickets stormed the band hall. It seemed like a bad omen. What a way to say, "Welcome to high school." Chris Homan My memory is walking the halls with my friends, the first time I put on a Lady Jacet Uniform and hit the court. Ashley King I remember when I met Tim, my first boyfriend. Freshmen year, third trimester, third period, World Geography. I still treasure the memories we shared. We finally made it. Erica Leverett I remember when Winstion Dawson carried the American flag out on the field and fell. I laughed really hard. I remember the time I told the Viagra joke at the baseball game. Jamison Newby "My car"...da bug...Lucky... Joey's timeline of my future... parked cars... blinker fluid... "Rac E Car"... "da der da der it'll be ok" Amber Oakes All the dances... the stolen red saturn... car wrecks...hanging out at Poppy's... #78..."the subsitute"... "boot-tuck"... the dark room... taking pictures at the football games... "watching my back"... my friends... Burl's "hot" pticture...my speeding ticket... Sonya putting a sheet over her and running down the hall to the commons like a ghost...and all the proms April Oakes "The best day ever" of my senior year was when Cade Campbell, Joey Sanabria and myself took a college day at TCU. It was the best day of my life. Jeannie Oldham I am going to leave with great memories. We've done some stupid things that we thought were funny. Things I'll remember the most are the '03 pep-rally streak and the games. Joe Palomares I remember the time I was having an alcohol-free party at my house and the cops came anyways, or at least that is what I was told because I wasn't there. Preston Pohler I remember all the support I got from my friends and teachers. When me and my family needed it the most. (Which was the day of my accident). Thanks for everything. Jesus Ramirez My tay chika bea. Joel Ritch Pep Rallies...met my future husband...may-tay-chika-bea in the winnd..."my feet!"...me and Oakes twins equipment room ghost...Pat Green concert with James and Aaron! Sonya Reinhardt I remember when I was running around the track and someone had to go to the bathroom and he messed in his pants. Trey Silva Lunchtime takes place of recess, it is a time to let free of your worries and have a great time. My friends and I always had a blast, I'll always remember. Sarah Thomas My greatest memories through out high school was making new friends and traveling to different places for different events with my new found friends. Kolby Wallis I remember making Varsity Cheerleading this year and being excited to watch my sweetie, Trey, tackle the other guys in football. But I never got to see him up close and personal because I got kicked off! Brittany Way

Jordan Holmes & Ashley Chism Friends Forever

Ashes,

You have truly turned out to be a remarkable "young lady." You've not only had to grow up quickly, being responsible and independent, but you are very compassionate and loving, as well. Your beautiful smile not only lights up my world, but those around you as well. Congratulations to you! I have no doubt that you will succeed in everything you set your mind and heart to do.

I love you,
Mom

Jordan Holmes

We could not be more proud of the person you have become. You have such incredible qualities of kindness, compassion, sense of humor, intelligence and the most amazing determination we have ever known. We love you with all our hearts. Carpe Diem!!

Mom & Dad

Jordan,

You are a beautiful and wonderful girl. Ash has been lucky to have a true friend like you. I hope you forever remain close.

Good Luck to You!
Teri

Thanks for the Memories

In 30 years, Alan Reed went from a galaxy far-far away to the ancient ruins of Rome. No he didn't visit—these were half-time performances.

Reed began his career at Fort Worth's Northwest High School, but it wasn't until he came to Cleburne High School that he developed his innovative style. Not content with pop music or generic marches, Reed tackled projects like Star Wars, Jesus Christ Superstar, (which he staged twice) to his finale The Rise and Fall of the Roman Empire.

"This year's show was by far the best," Reed said. "Marching and playing was at its all-time best."

His said the most memorable performance was at Memorial Stadium. Utter silence greeted the band as they marched onto the field, to present Jesus Christ Superstar

"It felt like walking the streets of Jerusalem," he said.

Then the crowd just started roaring—even though they were from different bands and various schools. Cheers and standing ovations erupted from the crowd when the cross appeared on the field.

"This was my favorite show to stage and perform," Reed said.

Courtney,

Watching you grow from a tiny infant to the wonderful young lady you have become has filled me with great pride. You have wonderful qualities, which will help you go far in all your endeavors. Never forget how much you are loved. Look always to God first in all you do. He will never let you down. Dream your dreams and then go out there and capture them. We have faith you will go far.

All our love,

Mom, Kayla, Tom and Harrison

Good Luck

Sonya,
From the day you walked in and introduced yourself, I knew you were someone I was going to remember for the rest of my life. I just didn't figure on you finding a place in my heart. I want you to be happy and follow your heart.

April,
I didn't have any idea how much I would grow to depend on you. You have been my right and left arm last year and this year. You will always have a special place in my heart. I hope all your dreams come true.

Best wishes to you both,
Mrs. Davis

Loni Marie

Lonsford Jean Marie,
It's been a long, hard, fun and adventuresous 15 years of school for you. You started at three and have finally made it at 17. I know whatever you do, you'll do the best.
You always have. I pushed you hard because I knew you could do it. One last piece of advice from your Mama — please learn to be on time.

Love you always,

Remember.....

Remember the joyful times we've had
From being so sweet to being so bad.

Remember we were going to be in a band called "B.K.B.," which stood for Brittany, Kristi and Bree.

Remember us jumping off Kristi's roof into her pool,
And how every guy made us drool.

Remember ET was Kristi's big fright.
And us staying up late all through the night.

Remember us dreading morning time,
but at night it was our time to shine.

Remember Bridgette always tripping in the hall.
And when we got bored, we would make crank phone calls.

Remember Brittany's loud and crazy laugh.
And how we would cheat off each other in math.

Remember us sneaking out just for a moonlit walk, and writing on our friends driveways with chalk.

Remember in Cheerleading being in trouble and always the center of attention.

We came close, but never got a detention.

We promised our friendship would never end,
and in our hearts, we'll always be best friends.

Love is patient. Love is kind. It does not envy. It does not boast. It is not proud. It is not self-seeking, it is not easily angered. It keeps no record of wrongs. Love does not delight in evil but rejoices with the truth. It always protects, always trusts, always hopes, always perseveres. Love never fails.

1 Cor 13:4-8

Be joyful always; pray continually; give thanks in all circumstances, for this is God's will for you in Christ Jesus.

1 Thes 5:16-18

I hope you never lose your sense of wonder. You get your fill to eat but always keep that hunger. May you never take one single breath for granted. God forbid love ever leaves you empty handed. I hope you still feel small when you stand beside the ocean. Whenever one door closes, I hope one more opens. Promise me you'll give faith a fighting chance. And when you get the choice to sit it out or dance..... I hope you dance...I hope you dance!

I hope you never fear those mountains in the distance. Never settle for the path of least resistance. Living might mean taking chances but they're worth taking. Loving might be a mistake but it's worth making. Don't let some hell bent heart leave you bitter. When you come close to selling out—reconsider. Give the heavens above more than just a passing glance. And when you get the choice to sit it out or dance...I hope you dance...I hope you dance.

How time flies when you're having fun. It seems like only yesterday that you were born. You truly are our gift from God. Watching you grow from a precious little boy into such a fine young man had made us very proud. There are no words to express the love, joy and happiness that you have brought into our lives. Thank you for all the wonderful memories.

Continue to keep your faith and be true to yourself. May your future be filled with much success and happiness. Just know that we will always love and support you in all you do. Good Luck!

Love always,
Mom and Dad

SISSY,
YOU'RE AWESOME AND I LOVE YOU VERY MUCH.
ASHLEY

I remember the day you both were born,
Being so tiny and hooked up to all those machines was scary.

I remember the late nights we shared,
Trying to get one of you to sleep without waking the other was hard.

I remember those frogs you always had at your side,
Without them, there were temper tantrums to be made.

I remember Amber's first hair cut,
When April snuck the scissors and revealed a new fashion.

I remember your first day of daycare,
I didn't think I was going to get out with both legs attached.

I remember your first field trip,
Following secretly behind the bus to make sure you make it okay.

I remember the day Amber's Barbie Corvette broke down in the driveway,
April pushed Amber in her car all the way back home.

I remember your first fight,
Amber was in the corner and April had a bloody nose.

I remember when Granny said to make a pretty face,
Oh what a sight that was!

I remember the pink boots on Christmas Eve,
Your daddy drove through the ice to get them.

I remember the first day of high school,
And how you both thought you were grown.

I remember the day you both got your driver's license,
I told everyone to steer clear — double trouble was on the way.

I remember Amber's first wreck,
When she lost control and hit that parked car.

I remember April's first speeding ticket,
And the radar detector was bought soon after.

I remember that anytime you both wanted something,
You would come to us with your puppy-dog faces and get it.

I remember seeing the first and last prom,
Oh how gorgeous you both were!

I remember getting the senior pictures taken,
I was the goofy mom smiling every time he asked you to smile.

Now I will remember the day you graduate and move off on your own,
Holding my head high and saying that we raised you both so well.

We love you both and wish you good luck in everything you do.

Mom, Daddy, Paige and Bubba

Oh what a Godsend
 Two little girls
 Angels in disguise
 Oh, so tiny and frail
 God did so well
 Everything perfect in every way
 Two little girls sent on the day
 Twins just alike
 You have to look twice
 To see if you have it right
 Now to find names to tell it all
 My mind wanders and I think out loud
 I find myself dreaming
 Oh what will it be?
 A name for angels; sent on a cloud
 One name for season, one for color.
 April is for spring, that has such a ring.
 Amber is golden with soft hues
 I prayed for a granddaughter
 Little did I know
 What God would send, would make me sing
 Thank you sweet Jesus for those
 Two precious angels with wings.

With Love,
 Granny & 'Paw Paw

The Remix

We love each other more than rice and cheese nachos, fried ice cream, the Cadillac, Star Bucks and our prom dresses. We will never forget things — like the time we captured everyone for an early morning breakfast at Chaf Inn or when we laid the seats down in Shannon's car and sat in front of Lezlie's house and talked forever.

In our "fishy" years, we dreamed about delicious seniors and how our perfect weddings would play out, with each other as bridesmaids.

It makes us sad knowing distance will split us, but we know we won't ever lose that sisterly love we all share.

As your senior year comes to a close, it is a time for happiness and a few precious tears. A "brief moment" in your life is ending but never to be forgotten. Take a deep breath—reflect on the fun years gone by and take all the special memories you and your friends share and hold them in your heart.

Now, like a butterfly emerging from its cocoon, you have ended one small phase of your life and are embarking on a new, great and wonderful journey. college opens a new door — a beginning — a door that wil bring to you gremendous opportunities and adventures yet to be witnessed through your eyes. It is a fun and exciting time—grasp it an d grow with it—unfold your wings and fly!

We are so proud of you and love dearly. We wish you the very best for you throughout your life. Continue to be a strong leader. Keep your determination and desires in balance with your strengths and goals. Stay focused on the future. That's where the best is yet to be.

Through God's light, the world will shine bright on you.

This short journey has ended and a new one begins. We are so very proud of what you have accomplished and the man you will become. Walk softly, choose boldly and remember who you are in good times and bad.

Work hard, play hard, have fun and when you fall down get up and move on. Your best weapon against hard times is your smile and a sense of humor. Live by the Scout law, and never pass up a chance to dance. Never let uncertainty lead to inaction — take a chance and explore. Without fear there can be no change.

Well done!

Acknowledgements

The 2003 Santa Fe Trail Staff thanks many people for the help and encouragement they received throughout the year. Their assistance and encouragement was very appreciated.

Thank you Mr. Marchel for your input and guidance. We were a little apprehensive about your vision for the book. Our fears were exaggerated. Your help was invaluable.

Thank you Mrs. Laning, Mrs. Borden, Mr. Phillips and Mr. Mitchell all your efforts in helping us put out a quality book. A special thank you to Mr. Mitchell for dealing with "picture problems" and listening to Mrs. Davis after every Mr. Bobby visit.

Teachers, thank you for your support and cooperation. We hope you weren't too upset when we had to re-shoot the organization pictures. We are sincerely sorry for Mrs. Davis's bullhorn incident.

To our publishing representative, Tammy Hollier, thank you for answering our dumb questions, guiding us through the new software and showing us that change is okay. (No matter what Mrs. Davis thinks)

To David Beans Photography and T's Photo, we say a giant thank you. Without you and your continued support we could not have finished this book.

Thanks to all the Seniors who endured having their pictures taken three times. We know it was a pain, but you showed your class by not complaining too much.

To the rest of the student body and staff, thank you for allowing us to disrupt your life by taking pictures of you when you least expected it and trying to not to pose for the camera. You made our lives easier with Mrs. Davis.

We could not let the year end without pointing out that Mrs. Fort has her picture in this book twice.

Colophon

The 2002-2003 Santa Fe Trail edition was printed by Taylor Publishing at their plant in Dallas. The cover was designed by April Oakes and Danyelle Barber during a meeting with a Taylor graphic artist. The theme was inspired by the movie "Willie Wonka and the Chocolate Factory." It focuses on students current dreams as well as those of the future.

The opening pages were designed by Danyelle Barber and incorporated spot color to emphasize the many facets dreams take on. The end pages were designed by Heather Dickinson and the poem is titled "Dreamers of Dreams" by Arthur Shaungenssy.

The book was produced using Adobe PageMaker 6.5. The staff was composed of 17 students, give or take a few depending on the trimester. April Oakes served as Editor-in-Chief and Danyelle Barber as assistant editor. Section editors included Heather Dickinson and Ashley Allen. Photography editor was Burl Cato, and copy editor was Leah Parker.

The staff picked the theme during a yearbook camp in Dallas. The Gloria Shields Publication Workshop taught the staff everything from design to how to deal with relationships. They also learned the "beauty pageant" wave. While attending the camp, the staff learned that disasters can and probably will happen, but in the end everything usually works out.

Editorial Policy

The yearbook is a staff-produced publication, a product of a co-curricular publication class and extra-curricular involvement. In general, the yearbook will provide memories, a record of historical events, data regarding the year and educational opportunities for the staff, including a chance for staff members to plan, to write, to take pictures and to design the yearbook.

As a public forum for student expression, the yearbook attempts to inform and entertain its audience in a broad, fair and accurate manner on subjects that affect readers. The entire student body constitutes the primary audience for the book, with secondary audiences including faculty, staff, administrators, parents and other members of the Cleburne community.

The content of the book focuses on covering the school year, meeting the needs of the majority of the student body. While the staff allows and encourages constructive criticism of any part of the book before and after publication, final authority for the book's content rests in the hands of the yearbook adviser and student editorial board. Any controversial decisions will be made by the editor, staff and adviser. Despite the court ruling in Hazelwood v. Kuhlmeier, administrators rely on the adviser and staff to make content decisions.

Students working on the publication will strive to produce a publication based upon professional standards of accuracy, objectivity and fair play. They will check all facts and verify the accuracy of all quotations. They will not publish or distribute any material that is construed to be obscene, in accordant with state law. They will not publish any libelous material or any material which could cause a material and substantial disruption of school activities. Material that stimulates heated discussion or debate does not constitute the type of disruption prohibited.

The school assumes no liability for the content of the yearbook.

*It's been

Sweet dreams dear friends.

May you rest in peace. We will miss you.

Music

From hip-hop to electronica, pop to rock, no one musical genre dominated the airwaves and headphones of America. The year saw new albums from Moby, Red Hot Chili Peppers, Eminem, Leann Rimes and many more. Kelly Clarkson's career as a chanteuse took off, Lance Bass was grounded as a cosmonaut, Ozzy showed why he's an iron man, and Triumph marked his territory at the VMAs.

Forget East Coast vs. West Coast

It's rapper versus puppet as Triumph the Insult Comic Dog has a run-in with Eminem's posse on MTV's Video Music Awards.

Britney not so caliente

The divine Miss Spears is booted in Mexico City after she bails her concert just four songs in.

Still red hot

Flea and Anthony continue to assault eardrums and find creative uses for socks on the new Chili Peppers album, "By the Way."

Don't tell Elvis...

Kelly Clarkson becomes the first "American Idol" and hits #1 on the Billboard singles chart.

Bye bye bye!

Lance Bass trains to become the first member of a boy band in orbit. But when he fails to pony up the $20 million fee, the Russians say "nyet!" and send him home.

Something to Crow about

Sheryl Crow performs at the One World, One Child Benefit Concert in Beverly Hills.

Science

Zebra, king of the ocean?
Scientists discover that great white sharks are repelled by zebra striping.

Around the world in 14 days
After some 21,000 miles and two weeks aloft, Steve Fossett becomes the first person to circumnavigate the globe in a balloon.

A long way for pizza delivery
The International Space Station receives its fifth three-person crew, who live and work in orbit for four straight months.

Well, that's disturbing
Meteorologists discover that the Antarctic ozone hole has divided into two parts that are spreading away from each other.

The dog did my homework
Researchers at UC-Davis theorize that dogs have basic math skills, including the ability to count. No word on differential calculus.

That's even more disturbing
The snakehead, a.k.a. the "Frankenfish", is discovered in eight U.S. states. The Chinese fish can walk on land and decimate native ecosystems.

Walk like an Egyptian
Scientists employ a camera-toting robot to enter a previously inaccessible secret chamber of Egypt's Great Pyramid.

Trends

Styles past and future, cheap and chic blended to make the year interesting for the trend-conscious. Denim made a comeback for the 287th time in history, while new electronic devices offered functionality that James Bond would envy. Not to mention that the modern look of Starck and Oldham hit traditional department stores, surfers hit suburbia, and lots of teen girls happily got mud on their faces.

It's, like, totally exfoliating!

Seventeen magazine opens its first spa dedicated exclusively to teens just outside of Dallas, Texas.

International designers Todd Oldham and Philippe Starck bring their unique looks to products at Target.

Television

The blue light continued to mesmerize viewers with lots of big departures, epic celebrations, and naughty puppets. The cast of "Friends" waved so long to their $1-million-per-episode contracts (or did they?), while "SNL" lost its #1 George Dubya impersonator. NBC dominated the Emmy Awards, Fox dominated the market for Comedies Set Three Decades Ago, and "Crank Yankers" made us all afraid to pick up that phone call.

Kelly Clarkson, Justin Guarini, and Nikki McKibbin vie for the top spot on "American Idol: The Search for a Superstar."

Bell-bottoms, bell-bottoms everywhere...

The Fox hit "That 70s Show" celebrates its 100th episode with a flurry of polyester and feathered hair.

Bad puppet! Bad, bad, puppet!

Never let a puppet use your calling card—"Crank Yankers" debuts on Comedy Central.

Gimme an L! Gimme an A T E R!

Will Farrell jumps the "SNL" ship and takes his cheerleader sweater with him. Let's hope it's not for "Another Night at the Roxbury."

The Emmy Awards

Conan O'Brien hosts as NBC wins big with 24 awards, including nods to "Friends" and "The West Wing."

Friends no more?

Joey, Rachel, and the rest of the "Friends" weigh whether to return for one more season of their insanely successful show.

News

EVOTE

America spent much of the year remembering those lost in last year's terrorist attacks and studying ways to bolster national security. Congress and President Bush debated responses to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and allegations that Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein was building weapons of mass destruction. Meanwhile, forest fires raged across Arizona and other states, threatening thousands of homes and millions of acres of parkland.

The word in Hollywood? Sequels. Samuel L. Jackson and a digitized Yoda drew their light sabers for "Star Wars Episode II," while the fellowship continued its dangerous mission in the follow-up to "The Lord of the Rings." Will and Tommy Lee kept the universe safe for another summer as Mike Myers went for another groovalicious turn as Austin Powers. There were also a few original flicks, including a sci-fi thriller from Steven Spielberg and new creepiness from the director of "The Sixth Sense" and "Unbreakable."

Sports

It was another big year for world and U.S. sports. Fans across the globe stayed up late, got up early, and tuned in to live broadcasts of the World Cup from Japan and Korea. Ronaldo helped Brazil hoist the Copa Mundial after a disappointing loss to France four years earlier. Americans had their fair share of epic victories as well, with Lance rolling through the Champs-Élysées ahead of his European rivals and Serena Williams dominating the world tennis scene.

Great hail! We cry to the corners
From the dazzling unknown shore;
Bring us hither your sun and your summers;
And renew our world as of yore;
You shall teach us your song's new numbers,
And things that we dreamed not before:
Yea, in spite of a dreamer who slumbers,
And a singer who sings no more.
