WHAT'S NEXT

As the year began, the freshmen wondered, the sophomores wondered, the juniors wondered and yes even the seniors wondered—WHAT'S NEXT!!!!

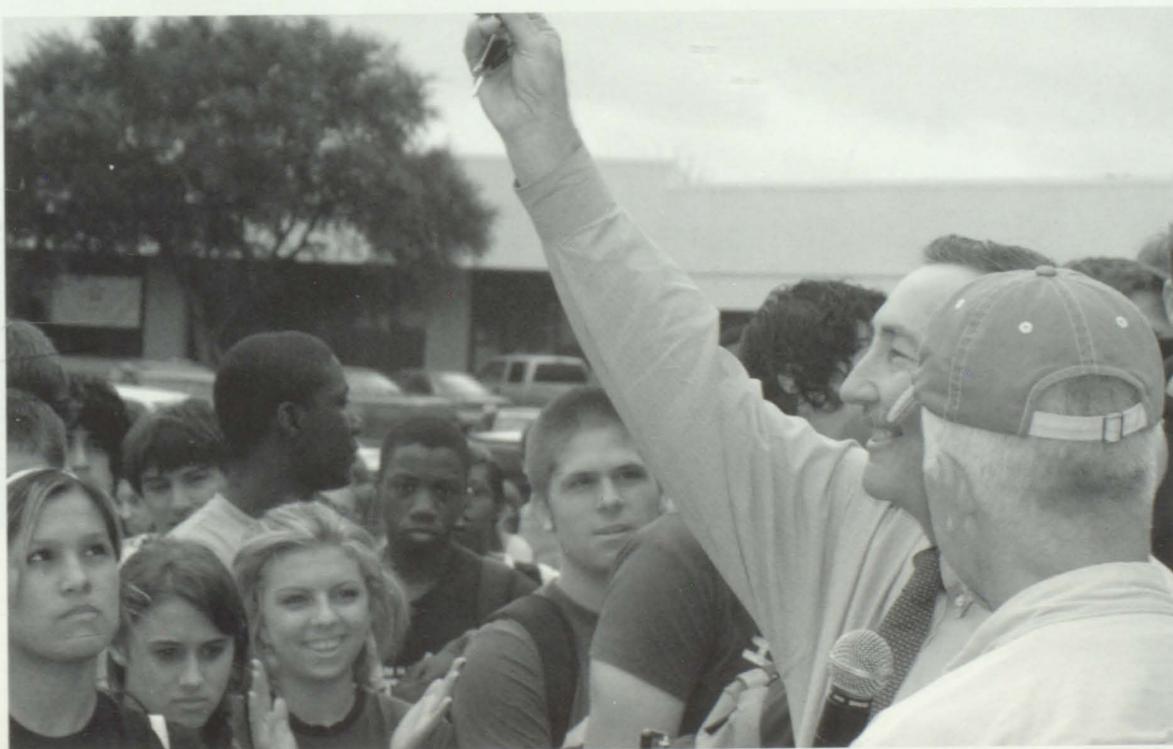

From the beginning of the school year until the very end when seniors really begin to wonder WHAT'S NEXT, the yearbook staff tried to show you in pictures and in words.

Join us on a 240 page adventure through the 2006-2007 school year. We hope you enjoy the experience as much as we enjoyed putting it together for you.

Now, get ready for ...

Playoffs again

VARSITY

During warm-ups the Lady Jackets encourage each other to do their best. It worked because the Lady Jackets returned to the playoffs again this year. Seniors Ashlie Christenson and Shelby Stinebaugh will continue their volleyball careers at the collegiate level in the fall.

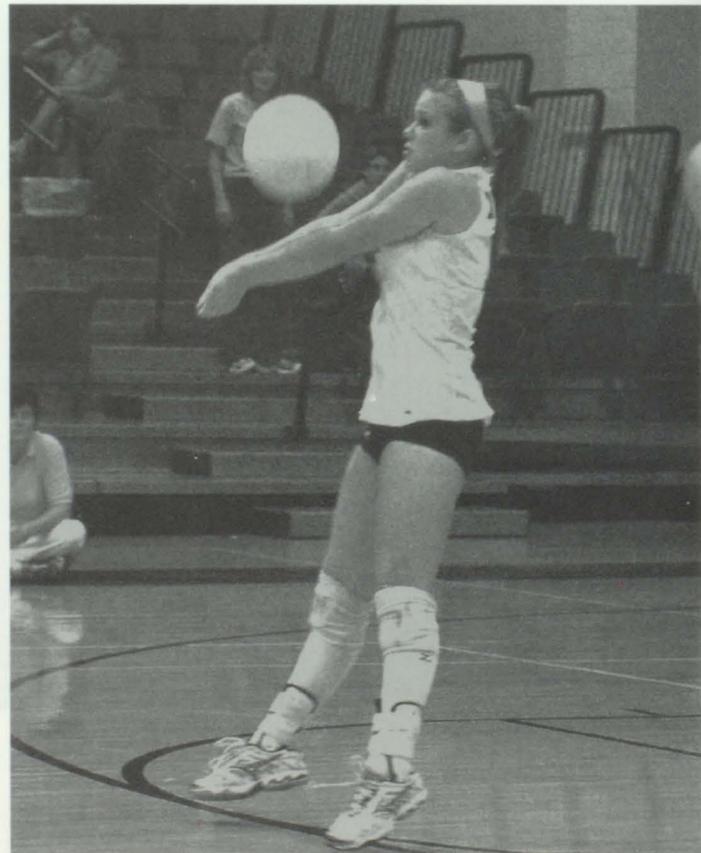

ASHLIE CHRISTENSON

Ashlie will continue her volleyball career at Baylor University in Waco.

Row two: Kristin White, Shelby Stinebaugh and Justine Forrest

Row three: Jenna Richardson, Whitney Calvert, Collin Valis and Natalie Renfro.

Row four: Coaches Amy Hughes and Floyd Rogers.

Kristin White slaps a return for a point against Joshua.

Lady Jacket playoff bid ends with loss in Vernon.

The Lady Jackets made a run to the state tournament but came up short against a tough Randal team.

"I am very proud of the team," Coach Floyd Rogers said.

"They played hard and showed a great deal of heart during the season."

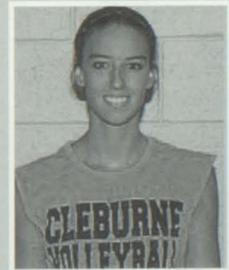

After every point, the Lady Jackets join hands and celebrate.

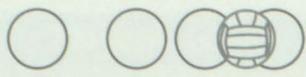

Using every body part is what makes Katie Tull a great volleyball player. The senior injured a muscle mid-season and had to sit out some key games but returned for the playoffs.

SHELBY STINEBAUGH

Shelby signed with the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo. to play volleyball.

VARSITY FOOTBALL

With a record of 3-7, the Jackets season was finally put to rest. A new head coach, Phil Young, put these fine young men through a season that some will never forget.

"There was great senior leadership and the players have a genuine belief in what and where we are going," Coach Young said. Some say the team gained more respect and knowledge throughout this season.

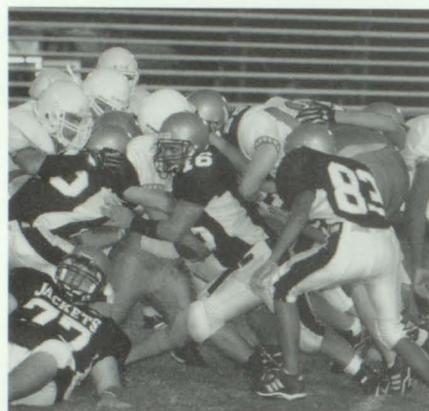

So with this all taking place, what's next?

"A hard and productive off-season getting stronger and faster. Young players will emerge to take leadership roles," Young said.

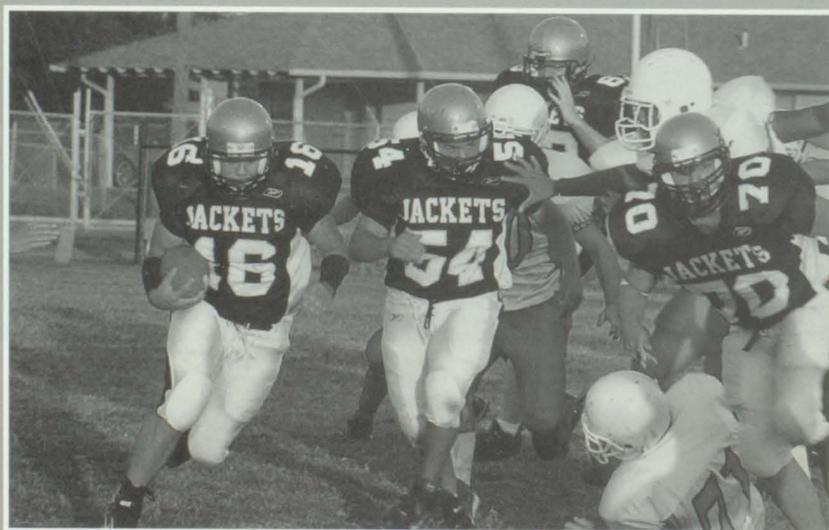

Bottom: Defense huddles up for some rehydration

JUNIOR VARSITY

Girls' Cross Country Results

The girls' cross country team finished second out of eight teams in district competition. They placed fifth out of 24 teams at the region meet. "I am really proud of these girls," Coach Coby Bird said. "They tried really hard and worked just as hard. It paid off."

Running alone Teresa Benjumea concentrates on the finish line. Due to flooding rains, the district meet was moved from Buddy Stewart Park to areas surrounding the high school campus.

Beginning a race always starts in a pack, but by the end the great ones are way out ahead of the competition.

Teammates Shelby Clark and Jacqueline Matthews stay close together to give each other moral support, but when the finish line is in sight the two forget about each other and strive to finish first.

SWIM TEAM

Returning to state becomes a staple for the swim teams as they send 10 swimmers to the state event.

Ten swim team members were named to the TISCA all-state squad this year. The 200-medley relay team of Joseph Sarradet, Jacob Zachary, Zach Interrante and Will Hinson, who had the 20th best time in state made the squad. Joseph and Zach along with Austin Henslee were recognized in the 400-yard freestyle relay. Joseph again received recognition in the 100-yard backstroke. As for the Lady Jackets, the 200-yard freestyle team of Sara Hedges, Jady Doyle, Ashley Sartin and Sarah Chambless were all-state as well. Hillary Hagan joined Jade and Sarah Chambless on the 400-yard freestyle team. Those making the all-state team had to log one of the the top 25 times in the state for the season in their particular event.

PLAYOFFS FOR JACKET SOCCER

FOR SENIORS THE BERTH WAS PRODUCT OF HARD WORK, DETERMINATION

Coach Randy Allen was named the County coach of the year. Allen led the Jackets to the playoffs for its first post-season appearance since 2000.

District honors went to Joseph Vasquez, Brandon Morris, Juan Cuellar, Rahul Chhana, Thomas Richardson, James Mosier and Filberto Maya. Joseph was named the district co-MVP, also.

The Jackets had an overall 13-6-4 record for 2007, with a 9-3-2 record for district. This earned them the third spot in the playoffs.

Bobby Bruce allowed only one goal in the last seven district games to keep the Jackets in the playoff picture.

The team is looking to repeat next year despite losing several seniors.

LADY JACKETS BATTLE ALL SEASON

BIRD LEAVING TO TAKE POST IN FORT WORTH, ALLEN SIGNS TO PLAY SOCCER AT PARENTS' ALMA MATER.

The Lady Jackets didn't make the playoffs and they knew early in the district season they probably wouldn't, but that didn't stop them from playing with heart.

That's not to say there were not highlights of the 2007 season. Senior Katie Allen set a school record with 19 goals for the season and was chosen by her teammates as the MVP.

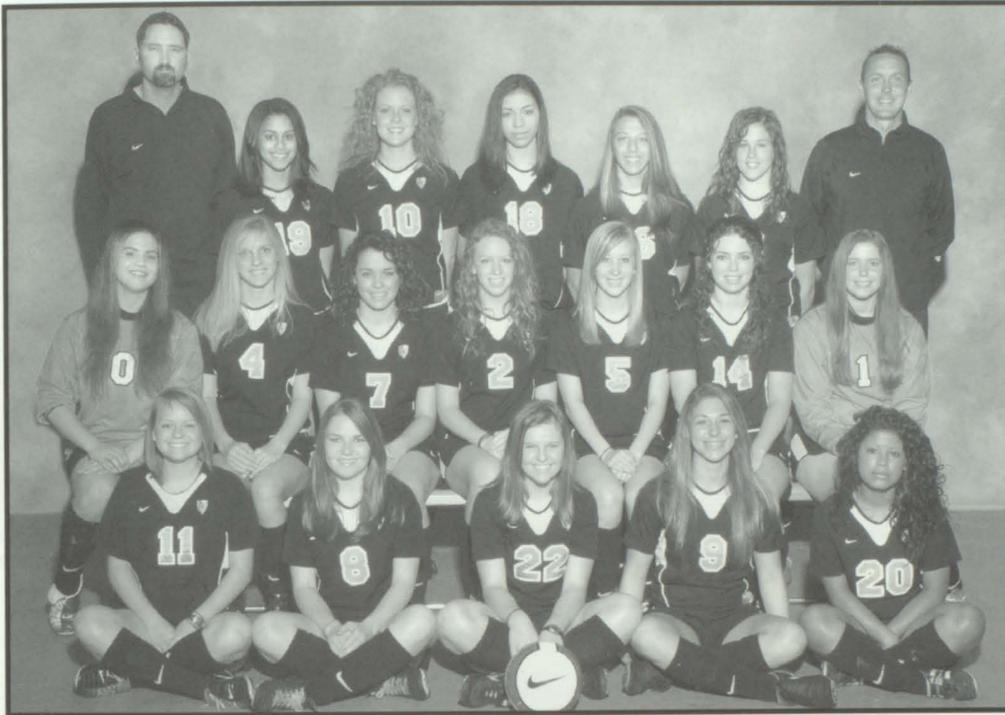

Senior Callie Maples was awarded the Lady Jacket Spirit award by her peers. Marie Gilada received the Sportsmanship award. Collin Valis was named defensive player of the year and Brittany Kirksey was picked as Most Improved.

Coach Coby Bird left at the end of the school year to take a job with Southwest Christian in Fort Worth. Bird, who coached her for 10 years, took the Lady Jackets to the playoffs for a number of years.

"I really love it here," Bird said. "I just need to spend more time with my family."

For the third time in as many years, the Lady Jackets advanced to the playoffs. With the exception of Honor Anderson, the coaching staff was new. The team looked different too with new faces at second, short and third but the drive and determination was the same. Aledo proved to be a tough opponent both in district and in the playoffs.

"We knew the Lady Kats were the ones to beat," coach Larry Zachary said. "I was not disappointed with our playing. I would have liked to beat them."

Thanksgiving boxes and Christmas Angels highlight the Key Club activities. This year's Thanksgiving donations helped more than 50 Cleburne area families.

The Key Club's annual Thanksgiving and Christmas fundraisers were a success again this year.

The annual Thanksgiving is for Sharing donations helped more than 50 local needy families have a festive and loving Thanksgiving.

The Christmas Angel project collected more than 500 toys, clothing and monies for children who would otherwise have not had a Christmas.

"It tears my heart out that little children in our town do without at Christmas when we can do something about it," Key Club sponsor Sally Maxey said. "It doesn't take much to make a little kids Christmas remarkable."

Key Club president Amy Passalugo said the organization begins working on the Thanksgiving project in early September and the Christmas project at the end of October.

"We offer the organizations, students and staff the opportunity to make a difference," Amy said. "So far they have been very generous."

Next year's goal for the organization is to double each project donation.

"I probably will not be the sponsor next year," Maxey said. "But I know the people here will once again pitch in and help. They always do."

CHARLIE AND THE CHOCOLATE FACTORY

The Children's production group took on a favorite when they staged the ever-popular Willie Wonka play. Johnny Depp would have been proud of the this talented group of high-school and elementary students. For the first time, the production was open to neighboring elementary schools.

"The turnout was awesome," drama teacher Sally Maxey said. "The teachers (from the elementary schools) read the story to the students beforehand, so the kids knew what to expect."

Several of the elementary schools offered contests for the "Golden Ticket" and those students were awarded special prizes.

What's next?... Keeping traditions alive

Story by Krystan Ellis
Pictures by Brittany Lawrence and Travis Granger

As the years go by, tradition has a big effect here. The bonfire is one of them, however this tradition may be put to rest after this year.

Many days and hours are spent building the bonfire and every detail cannot be monitored. This year fireworks were added to the bonfire without administrative approval, leading to the fire marshall proclaiming this would possibly be the last bonfire, but only time will tell.

Following in the footsteps of old traditions, a new one began with the Homecoming festivities this year. The Homecoming King, usually chosen at the Homecoming dance, was announced during pregame activities. Keeping with the old traditions, the Homecoming Queen was crowned during halftime ceremonies. Senior Katie Tull was honored as this year's queen.

"I was really happy. I'm amazed that so many students know who I am," she said. "I'm also glad I didn't fall down in these shoes."

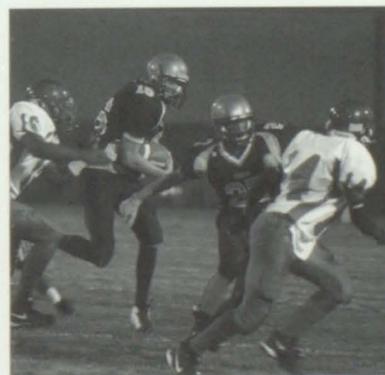

The most significant event of the homecoming activities was the football team defeating Mineral Wells.

What's in store for next year? Who knows. But with or without a bonfire, the Homecoming traditions will still be alive.

"It was really cool to win homecoming. You could see the excitement in the football players' faces. Their hard work paid off."

MR. LEGS

Each year during football season, young men here start thinking about showing their gams (legs) for money. They decorate containers, beg for coins, conjole their parents into donating—all for the honor of being named the guy with the best legs (sometimes it's debatable if they have the best or the worst). This year it was definitely the best or so Jordan thought. The monies donated helps to fund the Student Council Scholarship Fund. Thanks for sharing, guys!!!

SUNGLASSES FASHIONISTAS

What should you look for in a pair of sunglasses?
The three basic guidelines are: good eye protection, comfort and fantastic style.

Sunglass styles change every year, just like every other fashion, so you should choose a pair that never goes out of style. Gucci, Fendi and DG offer styles that are both inexpensive and stylish.

When purchasing sunglasses, try on as many styles as possible. If you can get permission to walk outside with glasses on, then do it!! That way you can find out how they actually work in the sunlight.

The 29th annual Golden Girl and the second annual Golden Jacket pageant saw senior Jordan Wright and junior Jacob Zachary crowned winners. Sponsored by STUCO, family and friends rocked and rolled with sounds from the '50s. STUCO girls donned "poodle skirts" and the guys dressed like "the Fonze" bopped their way across the stage to Elvis music. Other STUCO members acted as emcees or pulled double duty as emcees and contestants. STUCO president Joey Gorman wore both hats. "It was hard, but I didn't have to think too much about the competition," Joey said. "I was able to really have fun." Senior Lynden House and junior Lucy Morales were voted Mr. and Miss Congeniality by the other contestants. "I was awesome," Lynden said.

GRADUATION 2007

Rain forces graduation inside.

For the first time since 1990, graduation was held in the Performing Arts Center. Graduates were each given a specified amount of tickets for family and friends. The overflow crowd watched the ceremonies from closed-circuit TVs on the commons and in the gym

Principal Justin Marchel delivered his last commencement speech before taking a job with the Texas Education Agency. He told the standing-room only crowd that the Class of 2007 received more than $3 million dollars in scholarship monies.

A tribute was paid to the graduates who will serve in the armed forces after graduation. The graduates presented incoming principal Monte Pritchett with an American Flag.

Valedictorian Nick Passalugo challenged graduates to go out and face the challenges ahead. Salutatorian Neil James delivered a humorous and non-traditional speech directed at the habits of the Senior Class.

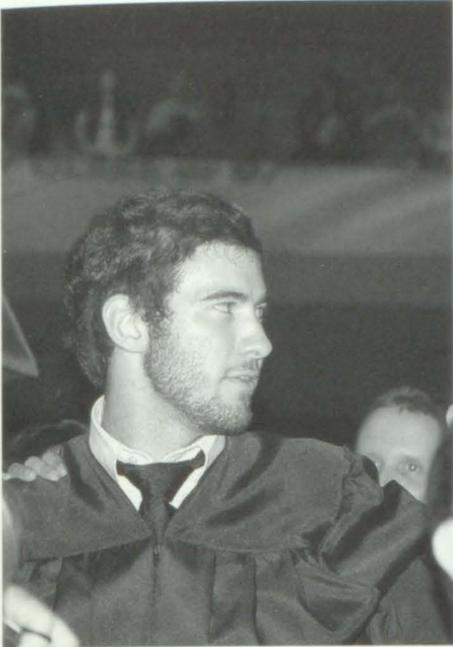

Diplomas were handed out by school board members. The graduates left for the NEXT phase of their lives.

LIFE IS A DARING ADVENTURE

Class of 2007, today is our day. We made it! All our hard work and hours of schooling have finally paid off. With the support of friends and loved ones, we now get to join the leagues of other CHS graduates and walk across this stage today. I truly believe that the Good Lord blest us by allowing us to be born in our great country and be given the opportunity to determine our own destiny. According to Luke: 12:48, "To whom much is given, much will be expected." This definitely applies to each and every one of us. I know that we will live up to these high expectations.

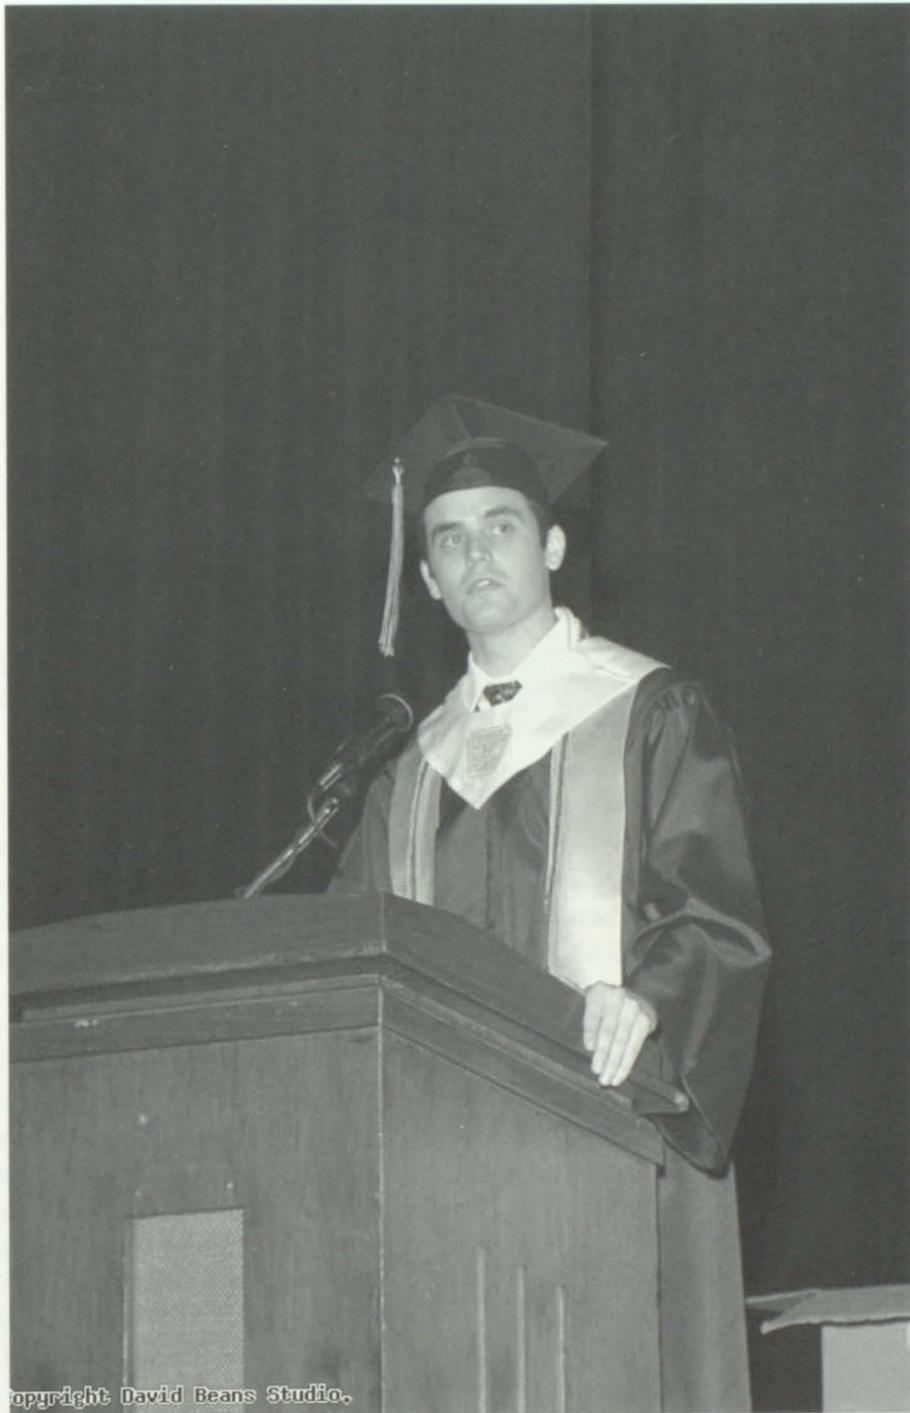

Seniors, our journey began long ago. Before we were Yellow Jackets, we were Colts, Tigers, Grizzlies, Alligators or wildcats; learning the basics from which we would build on. We joined Little League teams, dance studios, (well, not myself) and countless other extracurricular activities—searching for our niche. Throughout junior high and high school, our class came together while excelling in various areas as well as academics. We owe our successes today to all the teachers, friends and family who encouraged us along our path. Along the way, these bonds developed since kindergarten, have grown into amazing friendships that will truly stand the test of time.

Today is a celebration of the changes to come. Once we walk across that stage, we will no longer be high school students. Most will move on to college, the armed forces, or the work force. We leave the familiarity of high school and enter an inconsistent world full of success and failure as well as joy and pain. The world is not full of sunshine and rainbows. In fact, the world we live in will continually try to knock us down. However, in the words of the fictitious boxer Rocky Balboa, "It's not about how hard we get hit, it's about how hard we can get hit and keep moving forward." I know our class. We are fighters and will continue to work hard once we leave this stadium tonight to accomplish our dreams. The world had better be ready for the Class of 2007 from Cleburne High School.

Seniors, do not be afraid of the unavoidable trials that always accompany change. In order for us to succeed, we must get out of our comfort zone and push ourselves to a higher level than before. As Helen Keller once said, "Life is either a daring adventure or nothing." Right now, we are beginning our adventure, and Cleburne High School has helped pack our bags.

It has taken 12 long years to get to this point in our lives, and this is a tremendous accomplishment. Knowing this, the potential for future success this class has to offer is even more remarkable. So congratulations Class of 2007, for an amazing past and even brighter future.

A Non-traditional Speech

When I became aware that I was salutatorian and would have to give a speech, I panicked and then did nothing. I waited a day, and then did nothing. I finally started a speech, became frustrated with it, and then did nothing. At my wit's end, I firmly decided to do what I and my fellow peers have perfected over the past 13 years of school: seek out the great men and women before me, observe their carefully chosen words in their speeches, and copy those words while slyly making them appear to be my own. While doing so, I seemed to unearth a formula that can be found in nearly every graduation speech. It is a "successful formula for successful speeches on future success," and I intend to shamelessly take advantage of it.

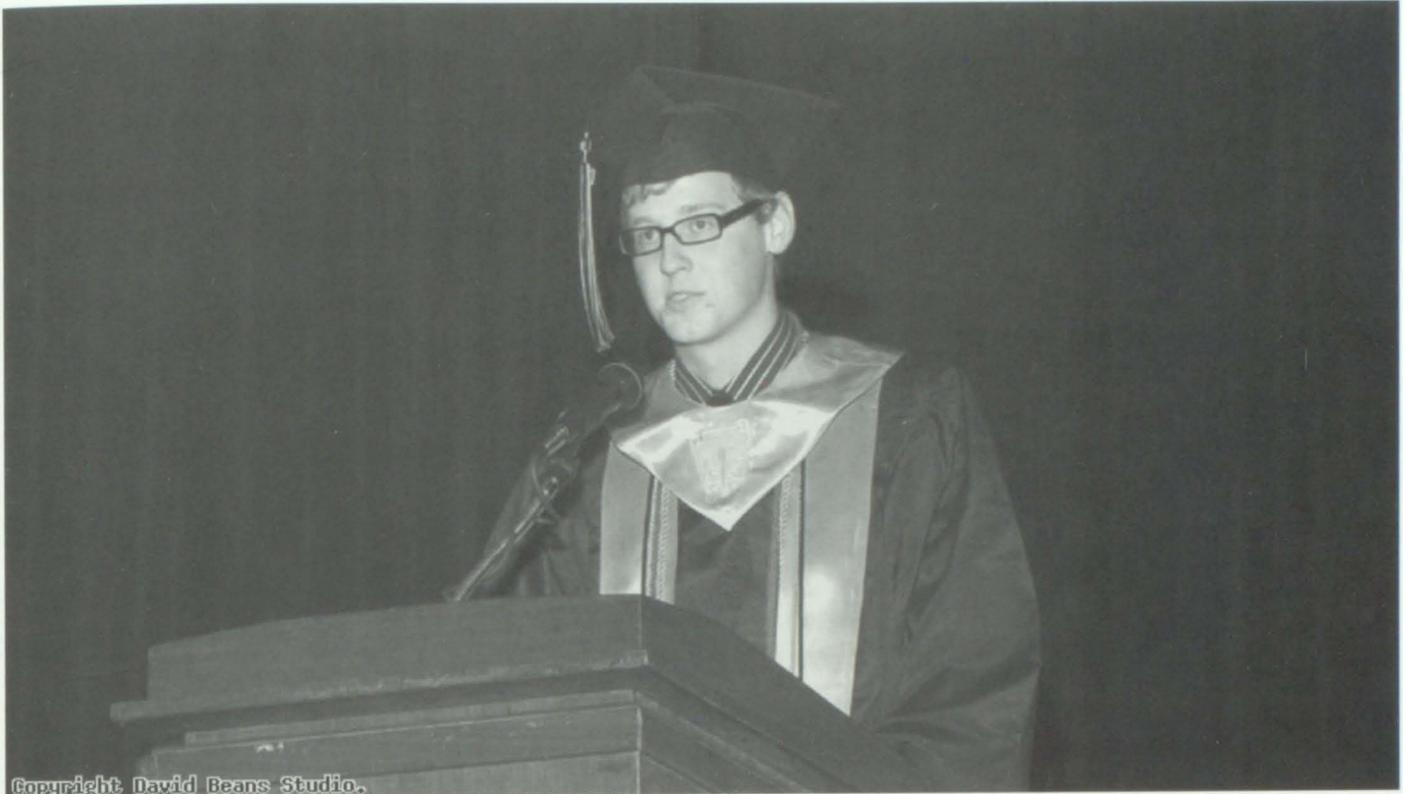

The first important part of this formula is the use of an appropriate personal anecdote, a real heart tugger. The greatest graduation speeches tell the stories of a sudden epiphany of life's meaning, of overcoming a great obstacle, or of a spectacularly unique memory until they become excellent exercises in self-congratulation. I wish I had one. The closest I ever came involved the mention of a cheeseburger and JFK, but one would have to ask Zach Hewlett about that one. Unfortunately, I only defeated the--at the time, anyways--seemingly impossible barrier of watching television far too late at night. I can proudly say that only LOST, The Office, and Heroes sucked away my free time. Curse my computer for managing to pick up the pace and taking the rest of the time. This is merely a mediocre impediment when overcoming such painful obstacles such as living in an upper-middle class household wherein the student's parents both have graduate-level jobs are running amok in today's society. Indeed, being able to put aside distractions to accomplish a little work from time to time is nothing remarkable. I suppose this is where I can supply my peers with my first bit of wisdom--something which constantly occurs throughout these speeches. I urge all of my class to find some moment of high school to hold onto, some memory or moment. If no such moment can be found, make one up. Make it remarkable, make it amazing, make it fantastic but believable. I highly recommend avoiding making up any memory which involves the use of dinosaurs, aliens, or futuristic technology as these, somehow, come across as unbelievable. This, it should be noted, does come from personal experience.

After this, the great speeches move on to the 'thank you list.' Normally, these are accurately long and generally prove to be the most captivating part of the speech. After all, if hearing a list of names called out in a usually monotone voice does not get ones senses riled up, nothing ever will. Obviously, I thank my parents, the rest of my family, and my friends. However, I think a good deal of thanks should be given to that which hardly ever gets thanked: the school supplies. Needless to say, many pens, pencils, and pieces of paper put me where I am today. Most importantly, I would like to take this time to personally thank Texas Instruments who without I would surely have been destroyed by my math classes from Mr. McHargue's Pre-Algebra class to Mrs. Mariott's AP Calculus class. Anyone who thinks calculus is difficult should try it without the use of a TI-83 Plus Silver Edition calculator. Apparently, I have been told people did calculus for hundreds of years before calculators; though I have never seen any real proof of this and cannot believe it to be true. I would also like to take this time to thank the wonderful standardized test known as the TAKS. While I will not elaborate too much on it, I would just like to say that I feel the TAKS has left an unremovable, scar-like impression on me that I will likely never, ever be able to shake.

Perhaps one of the most important components to the graduation speech formula, the 'challenge,' as I like to call it, is where the speaker (I) becomes a sage on the stage, dispensing wisdom to his peers. Apparently because I am the salutatorian, I have been granted some incredible wisdom that my peers, with perhaps the exception of the valedictorian who was likely granted a greater amount of wisdom, do not possess. Thus, after brooding over this subject for probably too little of an amount of time, I have realized that the most important thing I can discuss is a problem we all know very well: procrastination. It is a vile, poisonous, and destructive habit if used ineffectively, so I pray my fellow students have spent particularly the past four years honing this very useful skill. If used correctly, procrastination can be a very effective tool for finding time to other, incredibly important things. As long as the work gets finished last minute, no harm is done, and the student is able to do many other activities. With the introduction of products such as the iPod and Tivo and websites such as MySpace and Facebook, distractions are only a push of a button away, leaving no excuse for the ill practice of this necessary art.

Indeed, I find myself practicing it quite a bit, as shown with my reaction to writing this speech, and it has truly helped it. Doing so has left it riddled with the sarcastic and dry comments many of my friends know me for or, if the friend is Katie Allen, label me "cray" because of, and made it, quite obviously, rather different from most other speeches. However, I find its greatest benefit lies in how it has increased my feeling for graduation. Because I wrote this speech literally the night before I would give it, I was suddenly smacked in the face by the realization that graduation was actually upon me, and no matter what smart comment I could make or witty statement I could use to poke fun of a cliché in my speech, it was only to cover up the fact that I am so scared about everything from this point on. The guidance we have had in the past is gone; it is the most breathtaking and frightening emotion I have ever experience. I can say, quite honestly, that I have never been so scared about anything else in my life, nor so ready for anything either. No matter what happens, though, I know I will always have my home. Late night speech writing can apparently make one realize this. No matter what experience my classmates and I have had here--whether one has loathed, loved, or been indifferent about every moment, whether one faces graduation with applause, fear, or sadness--this is Cleburne; this is our home; part of us will always be here. For better or for worse, Cleburne is where we are from. As my friend and classmate Trey Hudson noted in his poem for our senior anthology, this is his town, this is our town. Much like what he wrote, I feel I can join him in saying I am proud to call this my town.

SALUTATORIAN GUY NEIL JAMES II

Inevitably, the speech must come to an end, and it frequently does so through the use of an archaic quote by some scholarly philosopher so the speaker can secure his intelligence upon the crowd. Though I do read philosophers, I feel myself and my class are far too practical for such common pretension. Bluntly, we are a class who rocked. We are a class who will still rock a year from now, ten years from now, twenty years from now, and beyond that. Thus, I feel it is appropriate to end this untraditional speech from an untraditional class with an untraditional quote. In the slightly adapted words of the legendary Brian Johnson, the second lead singer for AC/DC for all those with blank stares right now, "For those who about to rock, [I] salute you." We have rocked the past eighteen years '07, let's go take on the rest of them now.

RELAY FOR LIFE JUNE 13, 2007

Breast cancer is not limited to women. It affects men as well but not as often. Men need to examine their breasts regularly.

The local organization raised more than $130,000 this year. About 1,500 volunteers on 65 teams participated. The race raises money for cancer awareness.

Cancer is the No. 1 killer in America. Cancer does not know social, ethnic or economic boundaries. It strikes people of every gender and nationality.

Relay for Life was established in the mid-1980s by a Tacoma, Wash. colorectal surgeon.

◀ Randy and Dana Allen walked with the math department team.

The Math Department sponsored a team to help bring awareness to breast cancer.

“The relay is an opportunity for cancer survivors to show their enthusiasm for life.”—
Cancer survivor

◀ Fun and fellowship highlight the 24-hour event.

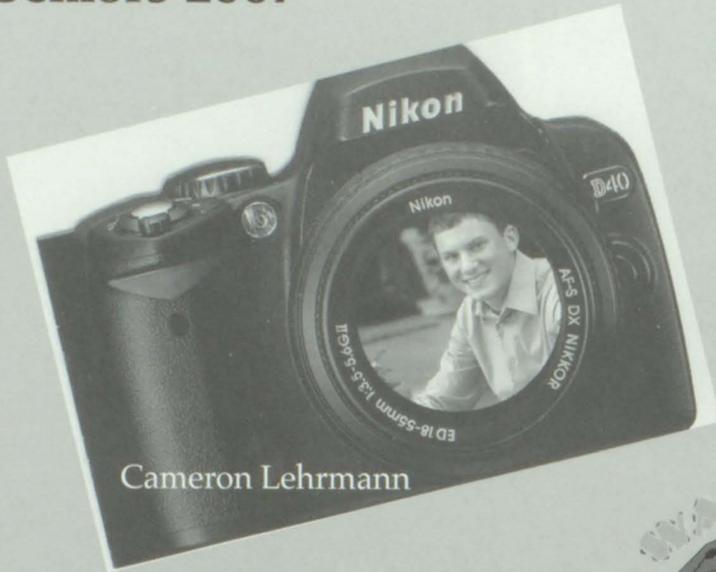

Sponsored by the American Cancer Society

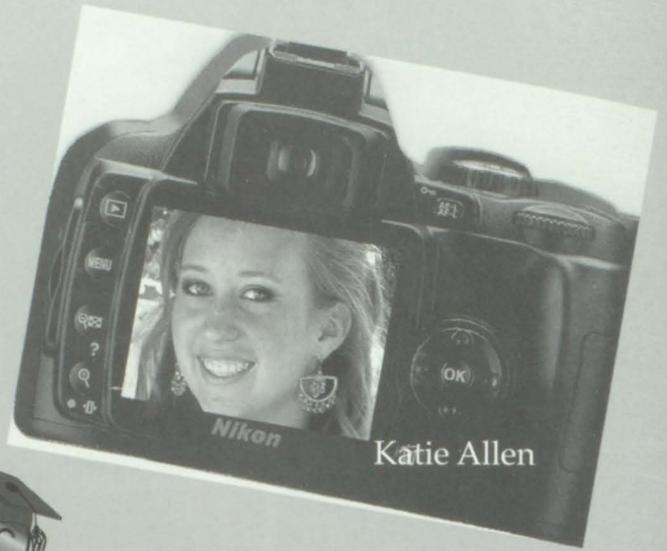

▶ Running is part of the annual event here. Teens are encouraged to participate in the events. “It’s not too soon to learn about cancer awareness.”

PEP RALLIES

An important part of the school year is the Friday pep rallies. Designed to cheer on the sports teams, the pep rallies take on an air of friendly rivalry as each class competes for the coveted spirit stick. The Seniors want their last chance as taking the trophy, while the juniors want to excel as their first time as upperclassmen. The Sophomores just don't want the Freshmen to beat them and usually they don't. The Freshmen come into the first rally without a clue, but by the end of the season they are just as competitive as the rest. The Seniors own the crown for another year.

STUCO takes care of the announcing at the pep rallies. This week is Amy Lawrence's turn.

Athletic director Phil Young discusses pep rally agenda with assistant principal Fran Ramierz.

The ever popular Mr. Legs pep rally raises money for the STUCO scholarship fund.

The Black and Gold pep rally is popular with both students and staff. Dressing in black and gold on Friday encourages their teams.

Face painting is only a part of the Black and Gold pep rally, although some students really get into the spirit. They have to wash the stuff off before returning to class.

The volleyball team is another organization that the pep rallies honor and encourage. It must have worked because the team made the playoffs again.

The girls paint their faces and cheer louder than the guys.

Standing on the rail is an important part of pep rally because it affords the best seat in the house.

GOLDEN PRIDE BAND

With time change is inevitable, and the band is not any different. New this year to the program is head director Jason Jones, and assistant directors Chris Goodwin and Keith Davis, along with about 50 freshmen.

"I am excited to be teaching at the school I went to," Jones said.

The members of the band performed at many competitions including the Sam Houston State University Marching contest.

"The best part was watching all of the really good bands perform after we did," junior Garrett Watson said.

After marching season was over the band did not even skip a beat. They quickly began to prepare for their annual Christmas concert.

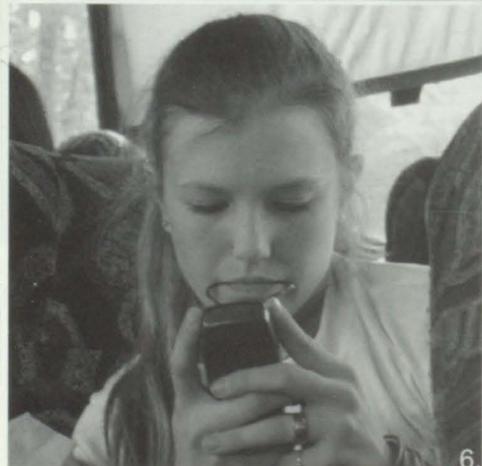

"I like the Christmas concert because it is a time to just relax and enjoy playing music that everyone knows," freshman Kari Smith said.

Many people think that just because the band is not marching around on the field that they are not doing anything. There are many other aspects to band that people do not realize.

"My favorite part of band is concert season because the music is more fun, and there are many contests we can participate in," senior Dustin Rhodes said.

What's next for the Golden Pride Band? Everyone is hoping that they will continue their success through every year.

"I really just want to be successful throughout my entire high school career," sophomore Kaitlyn White said.

1. At the Christmas Concert the clarinets, sophomore Kelly Ward and junior Christina Roye entertain the crowd with their musical sound.

2. Jazz Band prepares to play Christmas music at the elementary schools.

3. The bass drums keep the beat during the half-time show.

4. Awaiting the results of the Sam Houston Marching Contest the drum majors junior Garrett Watson and senior Taylor Mangrum along with Senior Colorguard Captain Carrie Lyon stand anxiously on the field.

5. The flutes stand in a straight line and play the fight song after the performance.

6. Text messaging on the bus helps sophomore Kaitlyn White keep in touch with some friends on the way home.

JACKET DANCERS

'It was the most amazing feeling I've ever had, and the best experience of my life.'

—Senior Amy Tuley

This year's dance team exceeded all expectations. Placing in every event they competed in the team danced and strutted through each competition with ease.

After finishing football season, the team began their competition reign by placing first at the Dallas Mavericks competition. The win gave them the right to perform at a Maverick's half-time game.

"I was the most amazing feeling I've ever had," senior captain Amy Tuley said.

After qualifying at regional and bringing home a truckload of trophies, the Jacket Dancers competed in Nationals at the University of North Texas. They won in three divisions and received first runner-up in the medium division, falling short of first by only four points.

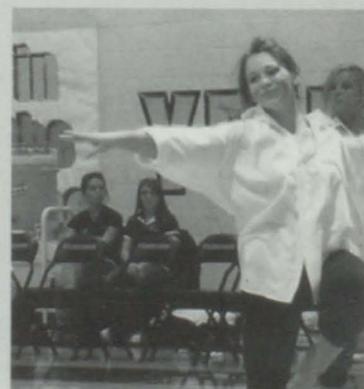

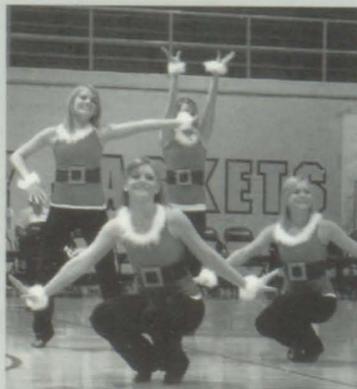

The Jacket Dancers proved themselves this year.

They showed the entire student body what true Jacket Pride is.

Director Lesli Cox said she is proud of the team and amazed that in such a short time the team has accomplished so much. This was the fourth year the team had danced together.

"I was excited to win our senior year because we were here from the beginning and worked hard," senior co-captain Jordan Wright said. "It paid off."

What's next for the team? For seniors Meagan Earley and Amy Tuley it's off to UNT to dance with the pom squad. For others, they are looking at other pursuits. One thing is certain, the discipline and hard work this team put into the program will pay off long after they leave here.

Top: The competition squad stunts at the national competition.
Bottom: The freshmen squad stepped up and did the best job ever.

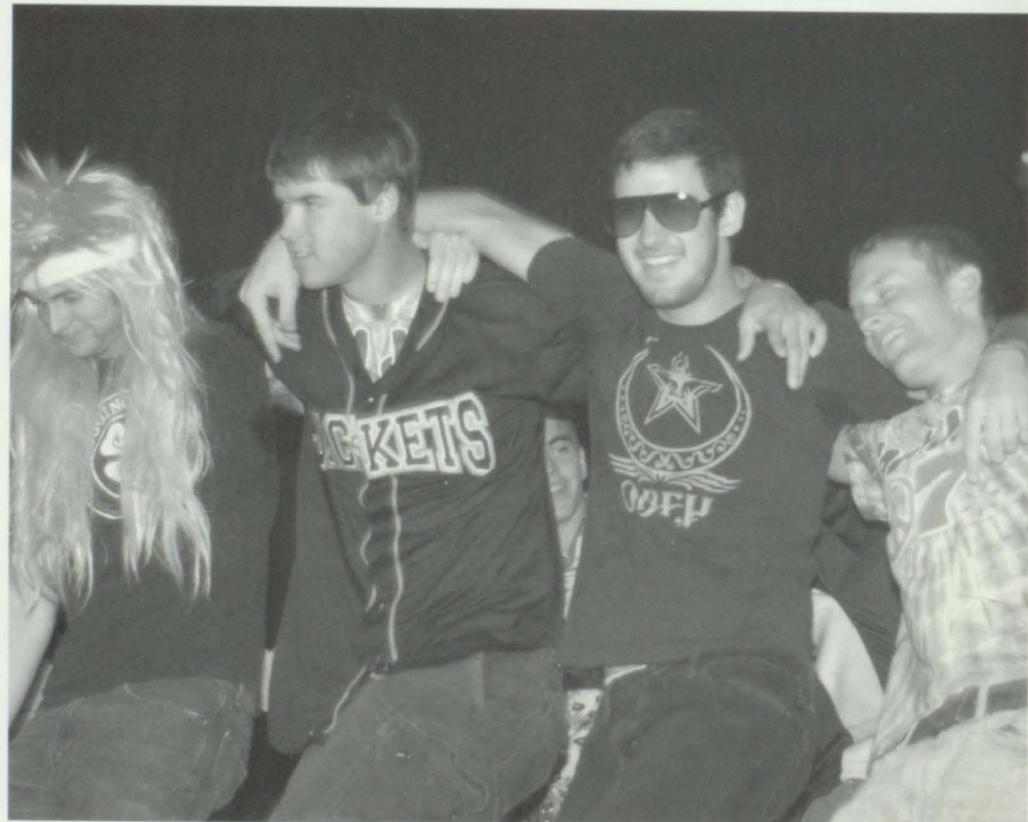

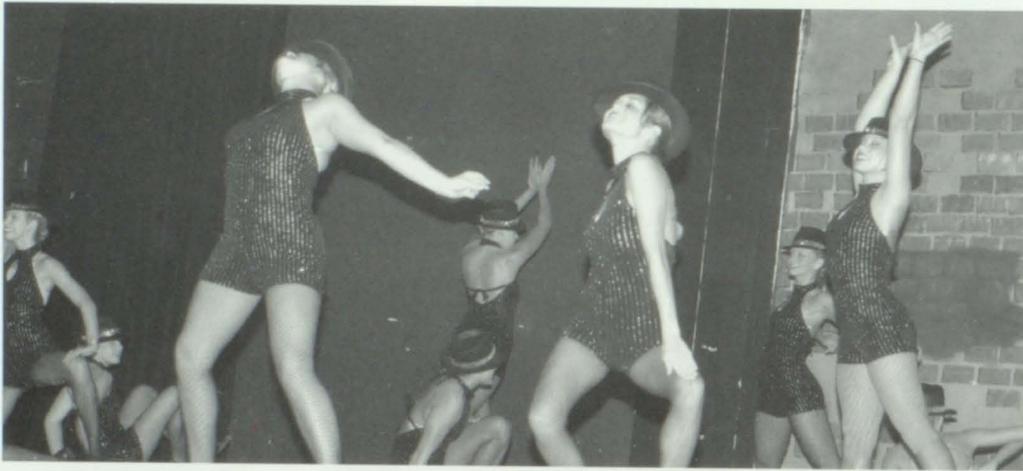

Competiting at nationals was a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for the high school squad.

LOOKING TO BUILD A BIGGER, BETTER PROGRAM

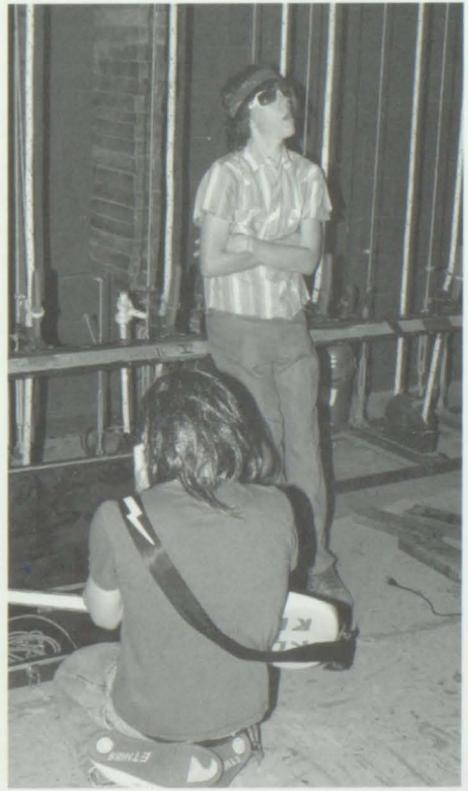

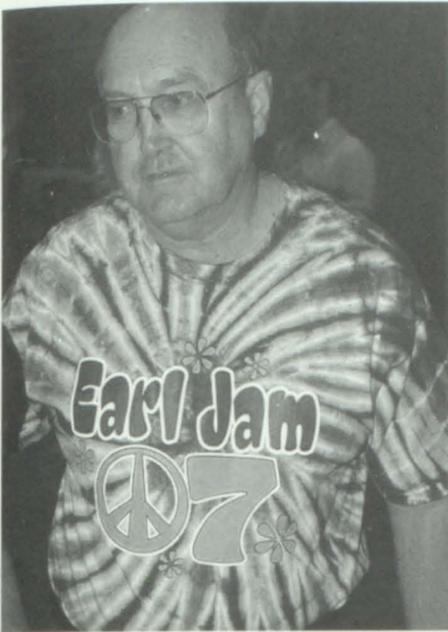

The season got off to a rocky start when five of the varsity cheerleaders left the squad. However, the remaining members dedicated themselves to making the 2006-2007 season the best ever. The group proved itself during pep rallies and by taking a competition squad to nationals this year. They returned with several trophies. Senior Jade Doyle, who left the squad mid-season for work related reasons, said the varsity squad dedicated itself to proving a small squad could handle the duties involved. "I think we did well despite our size," Jade said. "We didn't hear any complaints during pep rallies or during the football games. I think a smaller team works better together."

SINGERS TAKE HOME 20 MEDALS AT STATE MEET.

Choir students earned 20 medals from performances at the UIL state solo and ensemble competition last May.

The contest took place the Monday after summer break began, but the students did not mind. Earning first-place solo were Jared Cappers, Michael McClure, Lauren McWilliams, Amanda Morgan, Mark Porras and Sarah Stacy. Second place medals went to Chelsea Cunningham, Amanda Adams, Sarah Benke, Renata Gazizova and Bryce Hagan. Ensemble awards went to first place Sarah Benke, Chelsea Cunningham, Hannah Hardaway, Lauren McWilliams, Andy Benke, Bryce Hagan, Michael McClure and T.J. Smith. Michael McClure was also named the 2007 Outstanding Performer, one of 94 presented throughout the state.

SWEENEY TODD ACT ONE: SCENE PERFECT

Near right: Natlie Renfro needs dental work.
Far right: Sweeney Todd, portrayed by Michael McClure, collapses after slitting the throat of another victim.

The cast mills around during a pivotal scene. Lynden House's character took Sweeney Todd's daughter after he framed Todd for murder.

Below left: Jordan Wright and Trey Hudson played star-crossed lovers. The two were an item in real life.

Lower left: Sweeney discusses a haircut and shave with an impending victim.

Choosing Sweeney Todd as the UIL production was a risk for Mrs. Sally Maxey and the One Act cast. Maxey said she knew she might be pushing the envelope with a play with so much violence. Apparently the judges didn't have a problem at all. The play advanced at area and district. They fell just short of making it to region. Kathleen Rader was named best actress at area with Michale McClure, Jordan Wright and Garrett White being name to the all-star cast.

Above: Judge Turpin restrains Anthony Hope after the Beggar woman said he was with Johanna.

THE MANY FACES OF RIPPLE

From Indian chief to pep-rally motivator, Ripple filled many roles during his tenure here. "The things I remember most involved the students," Ripple said.

RIGHT: Anyone who came in contact with "Ripple" will remember his ready smile and quick sense of humor.

BOTTOM: Joe took a little of Cleburne with him with this framed letter jacket.

TOP: Early on in his career, Ripple was on the sidelines motivating football players.

Right: One of the characters Ripple used to entertain students was his "Professor Ripple" disguise.

GOODBYE JOE!

Joe Ripple leaves Cleburne to become superintendent in Brazosport.

It is with great honor that the 2007 yearbook staff dedicates this yearbook to assistant superintendent Joe Ripple. Ripple leaves Cleburne to take over the helm of the Brazosport ISD.

Ripple came to Cleburne in 1990 as principal at Coleman Elementary. He eventually became principal here and remained at the high school until accepting his post at the administration building.

During his time as high school principal, Ripple left his mark with students. They remember his sense of humor, his infectious laugh and his big heart.

"Joe was known to give gifts to students for many reasons. The problem with that was he usually took the 'gifts' from my office," administrative assistant Paula Allen said. "He also was famous for giving out candy, but you had to watch the expiration date because he bought most of it at the Salvation Army."

Mr. Ripple will long be remembered by everyone who knew him. He touched many lives and he will be missed.

Ripple presents W.C. Curry with a retirement gift. School personnel districtwide knew Ripple by face although some said they recognized him more from his hearty laugh.

'Joe was known to give gifts to students for many reasons. The problem with that was he usually took the 'gifts' from my office.'

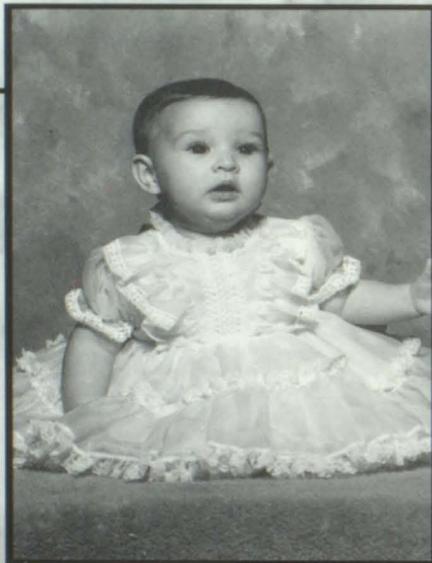

—Paula Allen

Brandon Morris

It's hard to believe these 18 years have flown by so fast. You have made me so happy and my life so complete. I have so many precious memories and I thank God each day for giving me such a wonderful son. We have been through some very sad times, but I know that it has made you a stronger person and that God has a special plan for you. I am so proud of the wise choices you have made in your life and to see what a caring and good-hearted person you have become. I am so excited to see what your future holds. I know you will succeed in whatever you do. Remember to keep God first in your life and don't forget to say your prayers. I love you so much and will always be here for you.

Mom

Brandon,

You have made me smile from the day that you stood in the front seat to see out until today. I'm most proud of your commitment to God and your sense of humor. As you cross this milestone in your life, I hope your dreams will come true and you'll keep on the funny side of life.

Love,
Don

Brandon,

My heart has smiled watching you grow from an adorable infant into a gentleman. Sharing vacations with you and your mom are highlights in my life. Thank you for loving your "Aunt Brenda" I love you. We'll continue to make joyous memories.

Always,
Aunt Brenda

Taylor Mangrum

Our little Tay-Bear, it is hard to believe that you are graduating. From the moment you were born you have brought us so much joy and happiness. No two parents could be more proud of their beautiful, fun-loving daughter then we are of you. You always continue to amaze us with your strength and determination to make your dreams come true. Our hopes and prayers for you is that you always stay strong, always be yourself and never let anyone stop you from living this life to the fullest. You truly have been a blessing. We love you so much and always remember we are here for you.

Love You Forever,
Mom & Dad

We love you Taylor!
Thank you for being our sister and taking care of us. Love, Trent and

COLOPHON

Jostens Publishing Company printed the 2006-2007 edition of The Santa Fe Trail in Kansas.

The theme "Whats Next" was thought up by Micheal Lawrence, Brittany Lawrence's little brother. "Whats Next" was the original idea. "Where's Super Jacket?", suggested by Brenda Davis and inspired by Gamal Hernandez's suitcase, was the first theme.

The cover design was was chosen from an Art 2 student picture, by Juan Olveras. Thanks to Mrs. Jana Trimble and Mrs. Dana Kerbs for all of your help.

This year, the editor was Gamal Hernandez. Brittany Lawrence and Krystan Ellis were the assistant editors. Travis Granger and Alex Poole were our photographers. Staff members included Amy Lawrence, Jessica Wilmoth, Destany Williams, Lyndsey Shaw, Meagan Earley, Jade Doyle, Amy Passalugo, Amanda Whitley and Rita Traylor.

Mrs. Brenda Davis and Brittany Lawrence look over yearbook pictures.

EDITORIAL POLICY

The yearbook is a student-produced publication, a product of co-curricular publication class and extra-curricular involvement. In general, the yearbook will provide treasured memories and record historical events and data regarding the year.

As a public forum for student expression, the yearbook staff attempts to inform and entertain its audience in a broad, fair, and accurate manner on matters that affects the reader. The entire student body constitutes the primary audience of the book, the second audience being faculty, staff, administrators, parents and other members of the community.

The content of the book focuses on covering the school year while representing the majority of the student body. While the staff allows and encourages criticism (hopefully the constructive kind) of any part of the book before and after publication, final authority for the book's content rests in the hands of the editor and the yearbook adviser. Any controversial decisions will be made by the editor and adviser.

Students working on the publication will stive to produce a publication based upon professional standards of accuracy, objectivity and fair play. They will check all facts, and verify the accuracy of all quotations. They will not publish or distribute any material that could be construed as obscene or offensive, or cause disruption of school ativities, nor publish any libelous material. Material that promotes discussion or debate does not constitute the type of disruption prohibited.

Cleburne High School and its administration assumes no liability for the contents of the yearbook.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Normally, the yearbook editor would write the acknowledgments. However, due to an unforeseen situation the editor left before the end of the year, so I took on the duties of thanking those who made this book possible.

First, I would like to thank Kristin Ellis for stepping in and helping finish the yearbook. This prepares you for next year. I know you will do a great job.

Second, thank you Justin Marchel for allowing my staff the freedom to create the book without too much interference (just kidding).

Thanks also to my yearbook staff. Jade you made me laugh when I needed it most. Meagan your willingness to step in and help someone else finish their pages was very appreciated. Destany and Rita, I don't know what we would have done without you. You two are amazing. Jessica, I am going to miss you so much. Your calmness kept me sane when I thought I would not make it. Amy Lawrence, you made yearbook camp interesting and your quick wit kept everyone in line. Thank you. Travis and Alex, your readiness to take on photo assignments did not go unnoticed. Travis your football and band pictures were awesome. Alex, I look forward to seeing more of your work next year. I promise I will get you help. Did I mention that your Golden Pageant pictures were the best we've ever had? Gamal, even though we had our disagreements, I did appreciate your hard work and creativity. Lyndsey, you brought a breath of fresh air into the yearbook room. Your unique way of looking at things helped us to break out of our rut. Amanda, what can I say. I underestimated your photography skills. You took some amazing pictures. I look forward to working with you again next year. Last but not least, thank you Amy Passalugo. I wish you had come to the staff earlier. You are amazing and your organizational skills ALMOST rubbed off on me.

Tiphannie, thank you for all your hard work on the baby ads. You made a tedious task bearable. I look forward to you coming back and helping me. I promise to stay here until you are ready to take my job.

I couldn't let this year end without thanking the teachers for their patience with my staff. A special thank you goes to the English department for allowing us to interrupt your classes for class favorite elections. It made my life so much easier. Monte Pritchett, thank you for allowing me to meltdown in your office and the endless supply of tissues. I promise things will be better next year.

Thanks also goes to David Beans for supplying us with pictures we either couldn't take or missed. As usual, we thank you from the bottom of our hearts. Another thank you goes to our Jostens' rep, Doyle Walker. I appreciate your patience with the deadline delays. Your wise words did not go unnoticed. The new and improved commercial ads in this book is due to a new ad rep, Angie Ellis. Thank you Angie and staff for bringing the level up a notch.

I have a very special thank you to a remarkable person — David Boles. He went above and beyond finding pictures I needed to finish this yearbook. I now understand why Seth is such a remarkable person.

Hannah Coleman, thank you for letting my staff be kids. I know we probably got on your last nerve sometimes but you never complained. I really appreciate it and so do they. We probably will do it again next year, so I apologize beforehand.

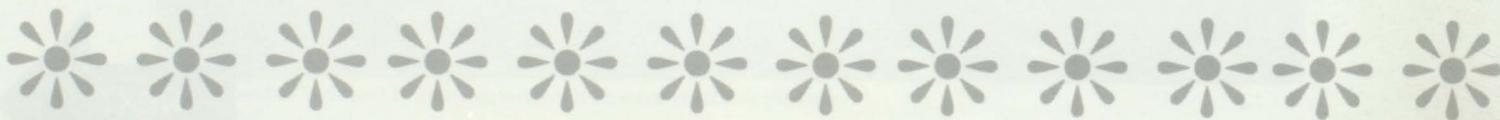

Sally Maxey, thanks for being my friend, my sounding board and supplying me with endless trips to Chili's for chips and hot sauce. You will never know how much I appreciated your thoughtfulness.

Finally, I thank my husband, Donald, for hardly ever complaining about all the nights I was away from home attending to yearbook business and for giving up your free time to accompany me to Austin for workshops.

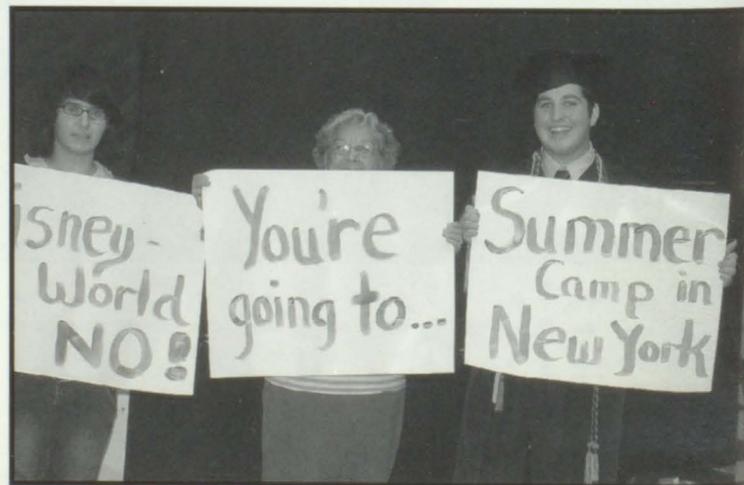

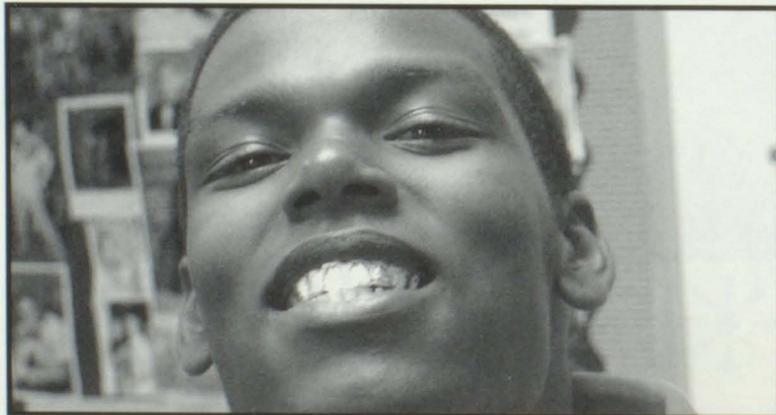

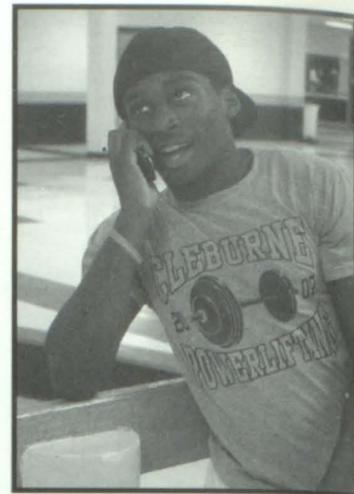

I hope all of you enjoy this book. A lot of blood, sweat and tears went into this book. I look forward to doing it all over again next year.

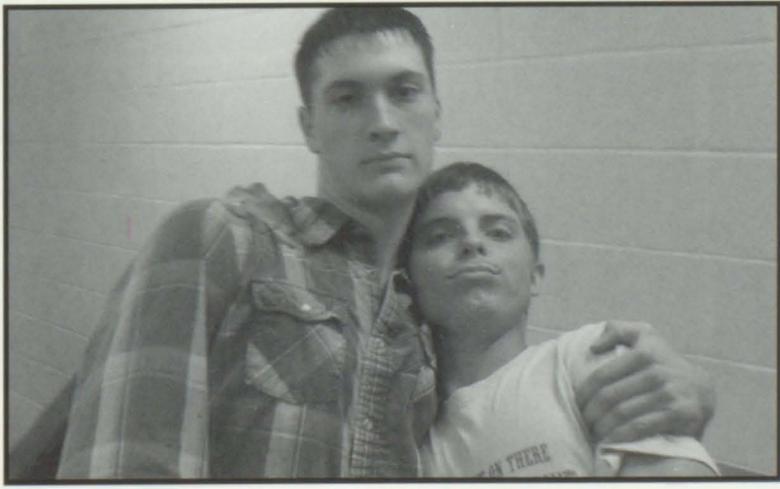

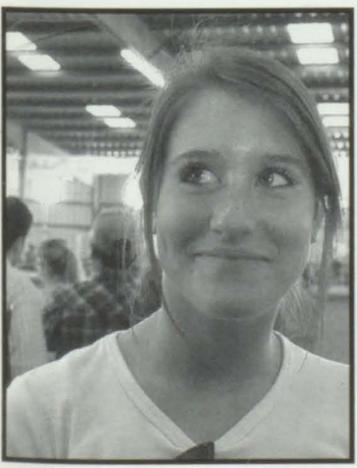

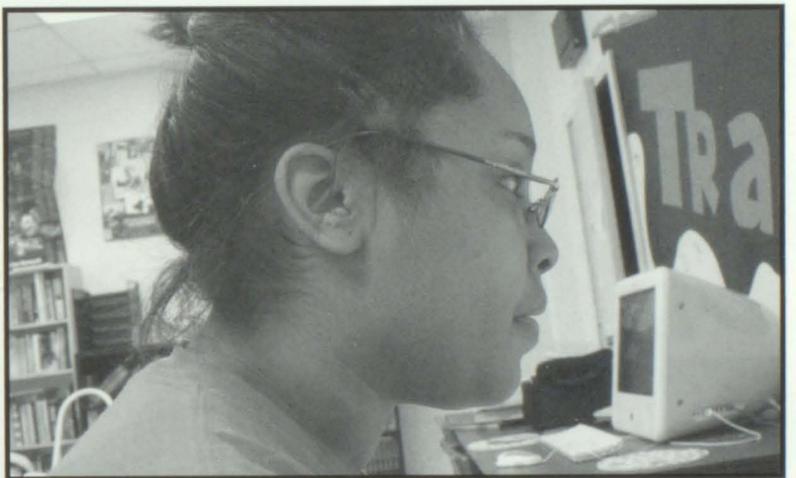

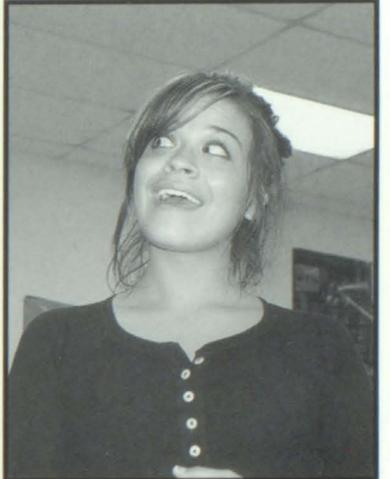

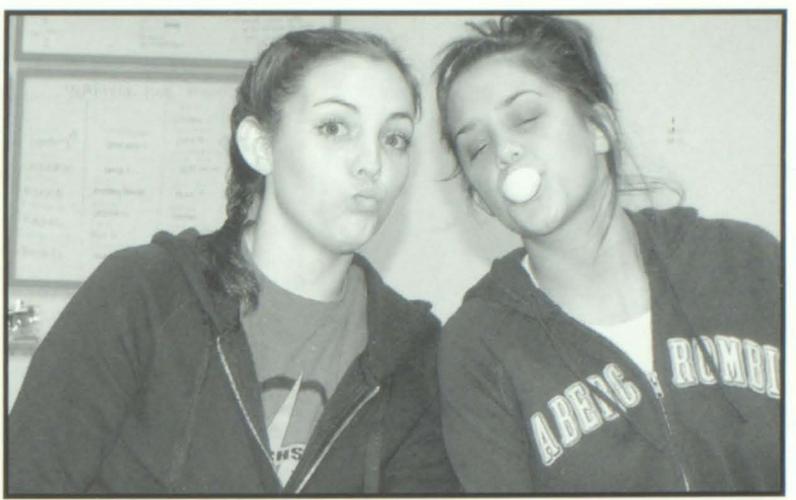

Brenda Davis

Yearbook adviser (yes, it's adviser with an e).

GOODBYE AND GOOD LUCK

Each year teachers decide to leave. They either retire or move on to greener pastures. This year two outstanding teachers left us by retiring.

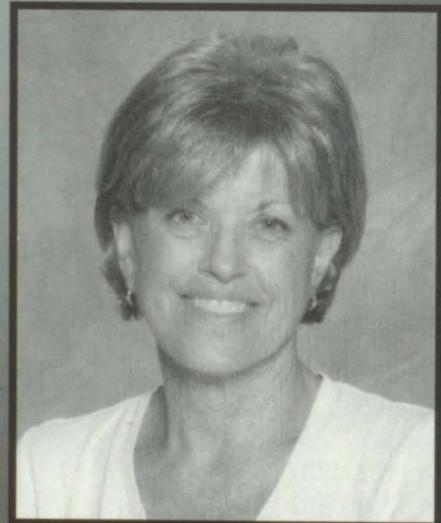

Jo Damron and Fred Sarchet will be missed by every student, teacher, principal and staff member who has had the very good fortune of knowing them.

Mrs. Damron: Your colleagues and students will miss you so much. We all know you will now get to spend time with those precious grandchildren, see what it's like to sleep late and attend a football or basketball game without falling asleep

Coach Sarchet: Every football player you've ever coached left here with your imprint on their lives. All your students will miss your kindness and easy smile.

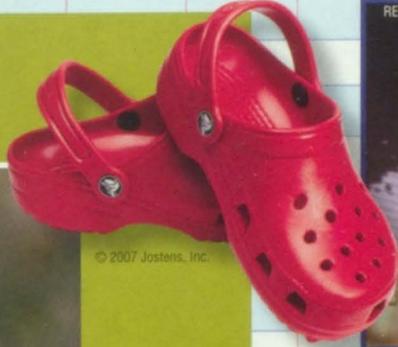

As you both travel a different road that leads you away from here, please take with you our love and best wishes for a long, long retirement.
