Editorial Policy

The yearbook is a student-produced publication, a product of co-curricular publication class and extra-curricular involvement. In general the yearbook provides treasured memories and records historical events and data pertaining to the school year.

As a public forum for student expression, the yearbook staff attempts to inform and entertain its audience in a broad, fair and accurate manner that affects the reader. The entire student body constitutes the primary audience, the second audience comes from faculty, staff, administrators, parents and other community members.

The content of the book focuses on covering the school year while representing the majority of the student body. While the staff allows and encourages criticism of any part of the book either before or after publication, final authority for the book's content rests in the hands of the editor and adviser. Any controversial decisions will be made by the editor and adviser.

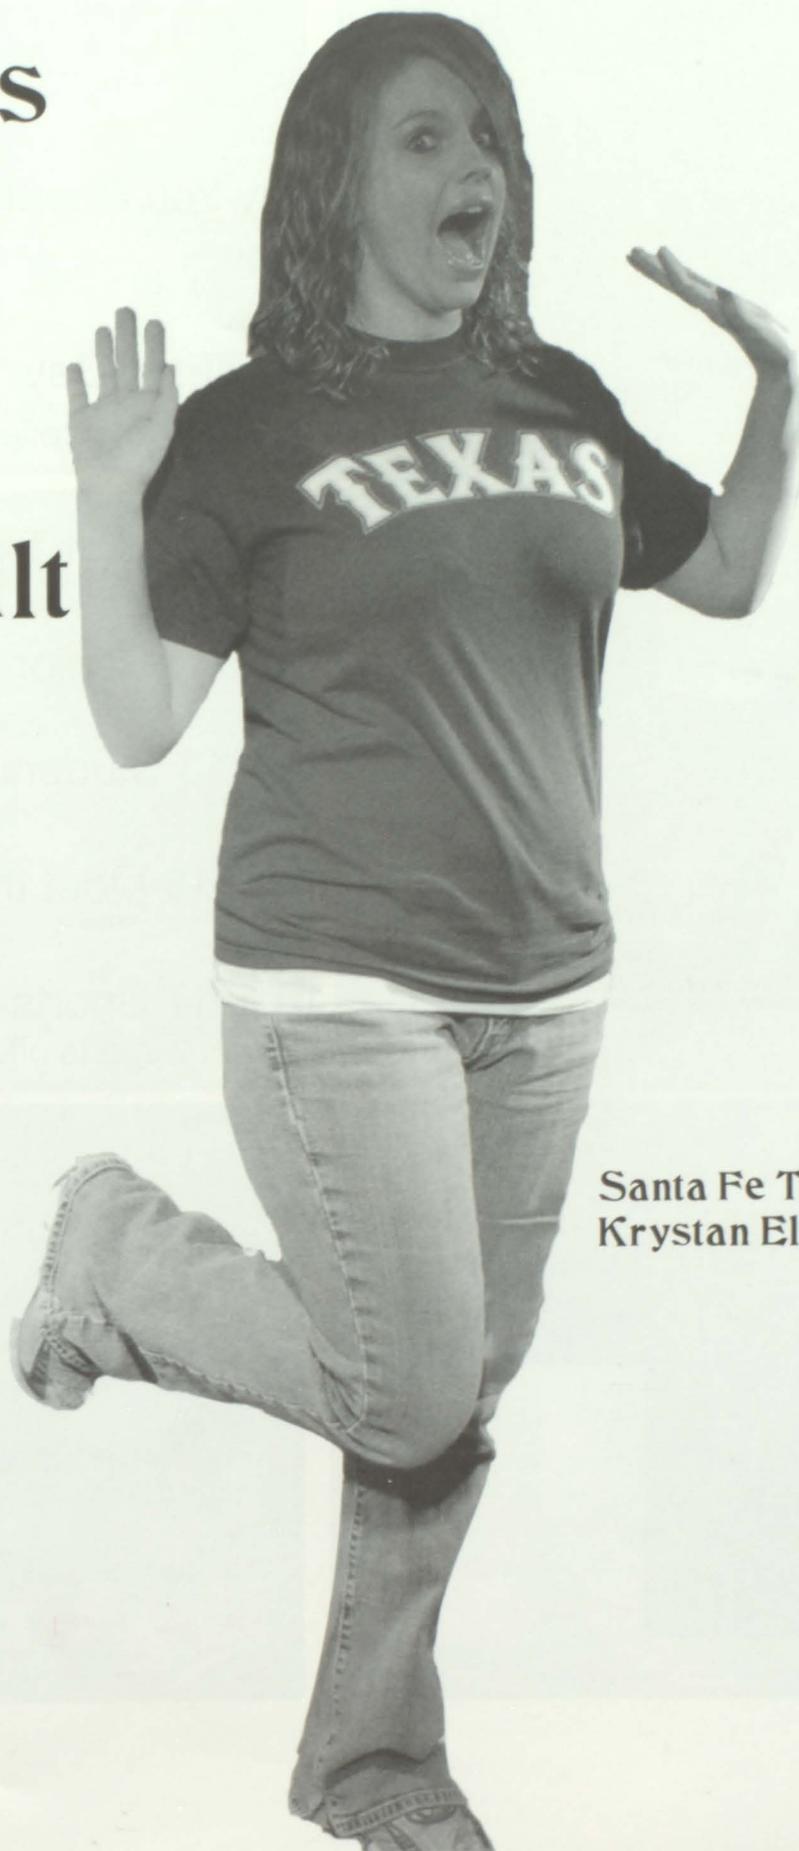

Students working on publications will strive to produce a publication based upon profession standards of accuracy, objectivity and fair play. They will not publish or distribute any material that could be construed as obscene or offensive, or cause disruption of school activities, nor publish any libelous material. Material that promotes discussion or debate does not constitute the type of disruption prohibited.

Cleburne High School and its administration assumes no liability for the contents of the yearbook.

The First Day of School

School days are always full of mixed emotions, especially the first day. Of course, each class has different views of the new school year.

"I was excited, but I wanted to leave again five minutes later. It was like, 'well, I'm here. Let's go now,'" senior Sara Longley said.

Others had different, more simple thoughts walking through the doors that day. Freshmen Jarret Rector said the first day of school was "pretty cool."

A few other freshmen said they were scared.

"I didn't know where to go," freshmen Jessica Roden said. "I headed for the band hall, but none of my friends were in there."

Looking for rooms after getting their schedules was a daunting experience for several of the freshmen.

"I got lost. I had to ask where PE was," freshmen Kacie Harry said. "I went to freshmen orientation but I still couldn't find my way around the building."

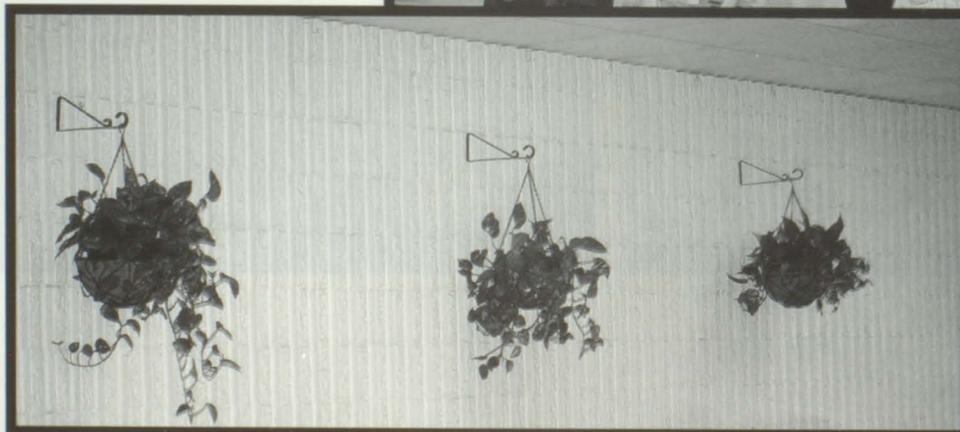

Students were not the only ones concerned about the first day. Administrators were equally concerned.

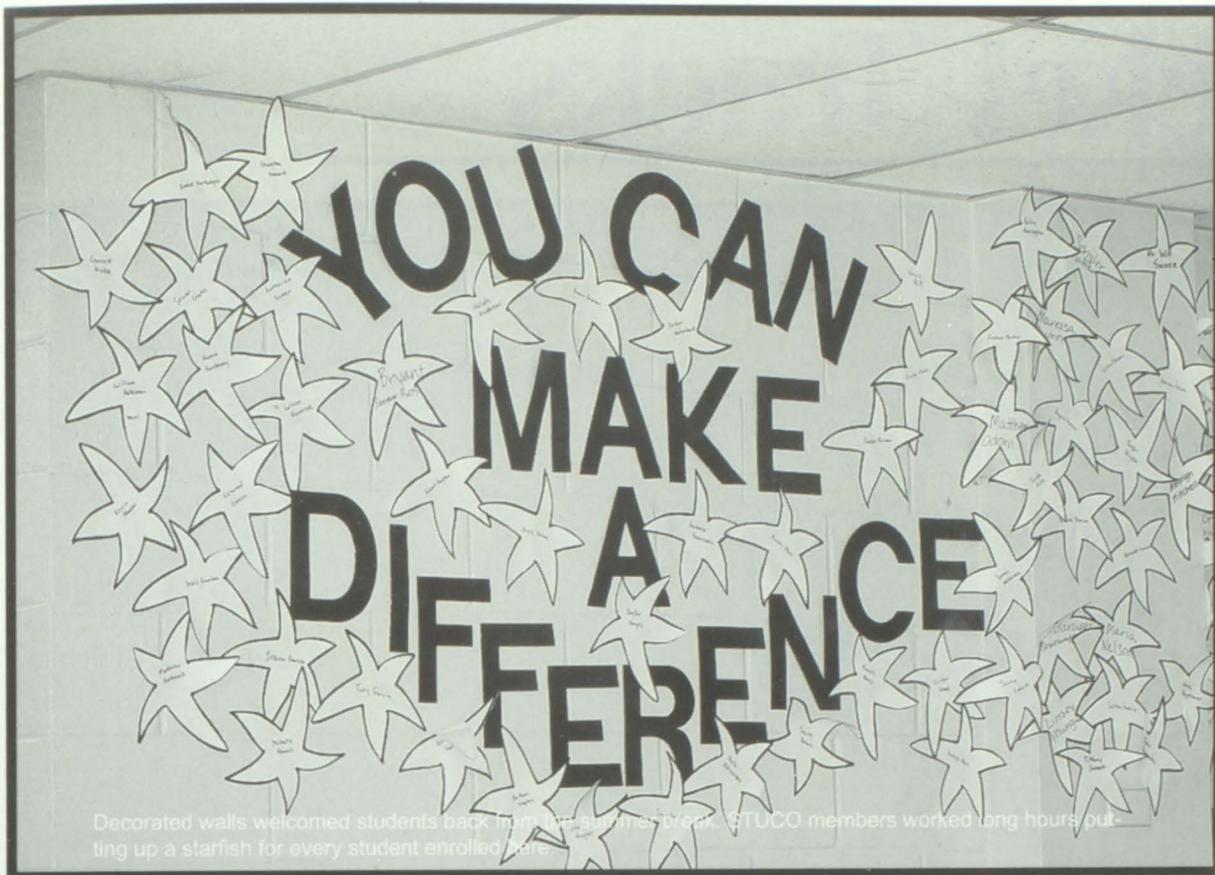

Principal Monte Pritchett said he was making sure everything worked.

"That was all I was worried about," he said.

Right: Assistant principal Fran Ramirez talks to students aides of the first day of school. Mrs. Ramirez assigned the students to various classrooms where they helped teachers with various tasks.

Bottom: Hanging baskets greet students on their return to the campus. Principal Monte Pritchett added the greenery to help promote school pride.

Returning students were surprised by all the changes greeting them the first day of school. During the last days of summer, the Student Council members were busy applying starfish to the commons walls. The starfish were adorned with the names of all the students who were enrolled here.

"I've looked and looked for my name but I never found it," sophomore R.J. Blakenship said. "Some of my friends haven't found theirs either."

Along with the starfish, baskets of ivy hung from hooks in the entry halls by the front doors. New principal Monte Pritchett said he hoped sprucing up the building would help students have more pride in their school.

Along with the new things came a few unpleasant surprises. The ceiling in parts of the school collapsed during the new roof process leaving big-gaping holes looking out to the sky. The air conditioning units didn't work in parts of the building and in other areas the units worked too well. Temperatures in the rooms ranged from the boiling point all the way down to the freezing point.

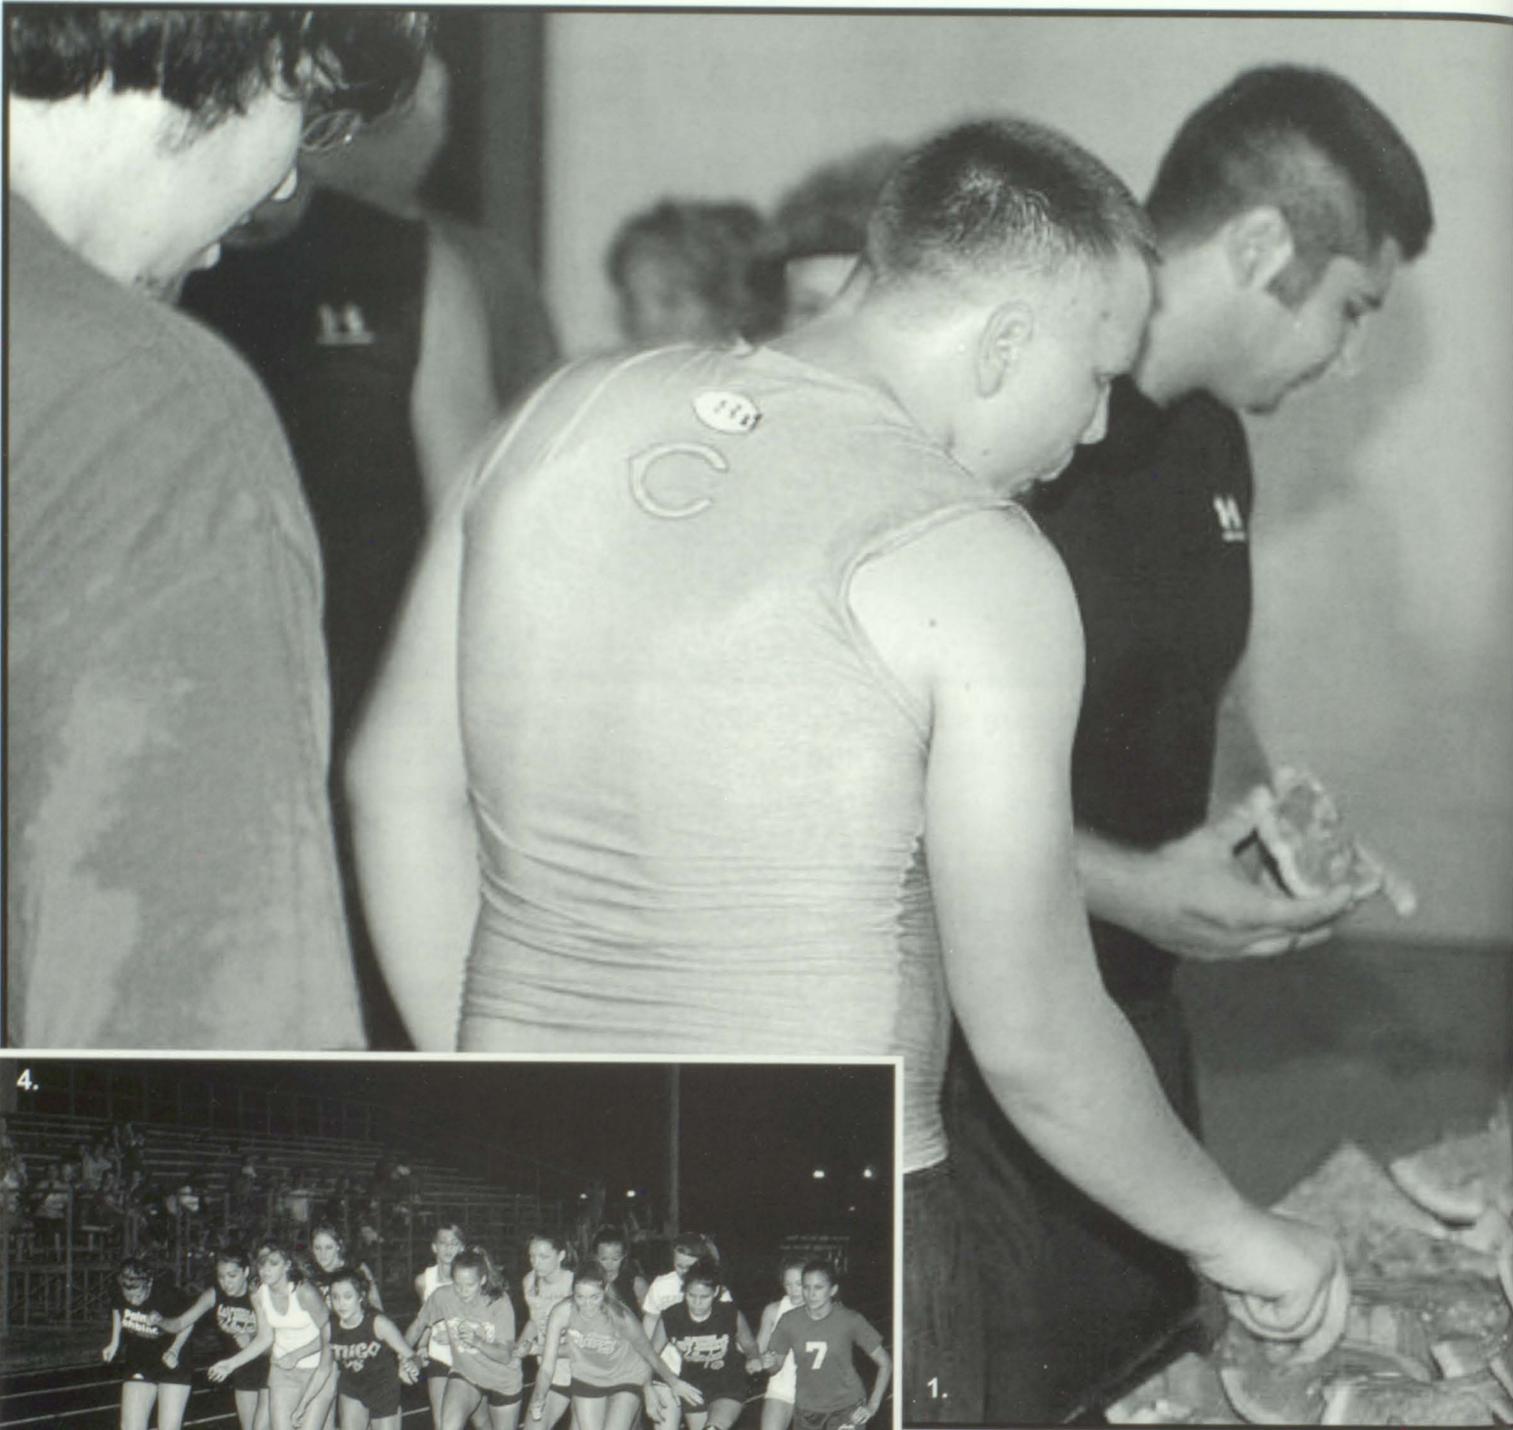

Areas of the parking lot was off limits to students and teachers alike due to the roofing crews trying to finish the before the fall rains began.

All-in-all the new year started off well. Despite all the inconveniences, the students settled in well and the atmosphere around the campus was one of pride.

The new year started off with a bang. 1. The annual watermelon feed for the football players and their families was a huge success.

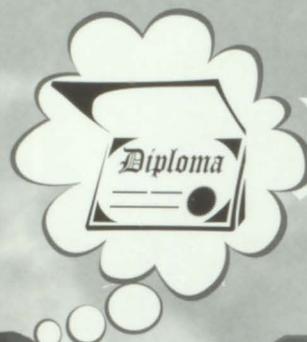

2. As usual band camp was hot and humid, but it didn't stop the band students' enthusiasm.

3. The first dance of the year drew hundreds. Sponsored by STUCO, the annual event allows the students to reacquaint with each other.

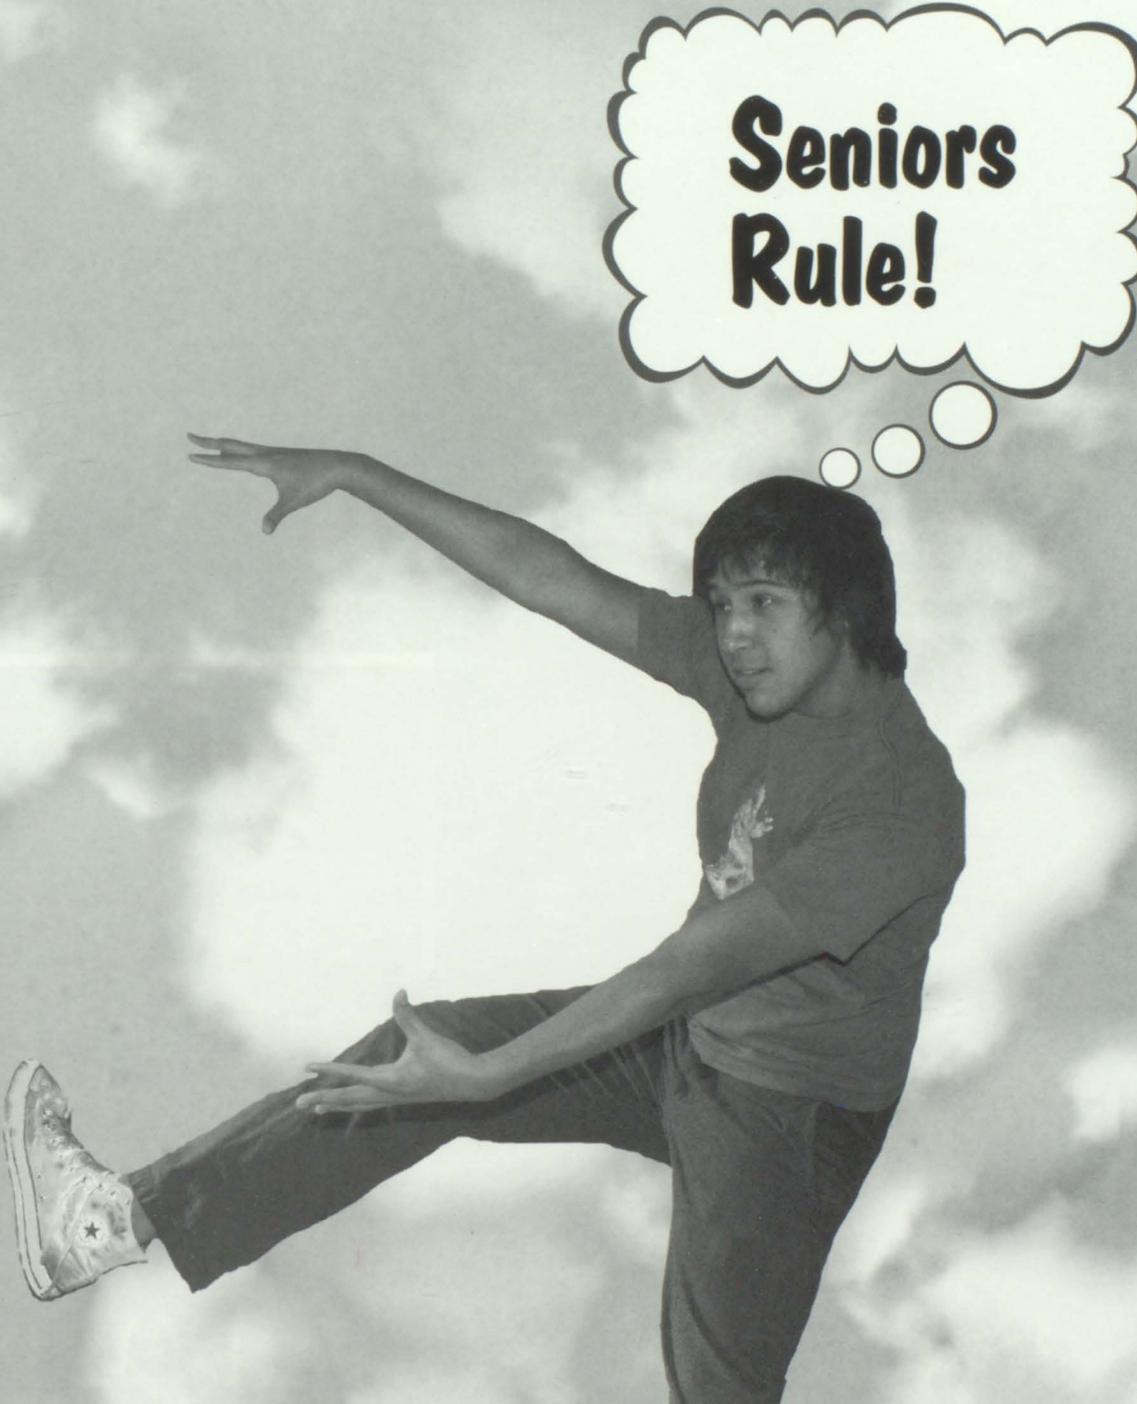

4. The volleyball night run kicks off the 2008 season. The annual event allowed the coaches to observe incoming talent.

Fashion is a right not a privilege.

The yearbook editor and staff went to the fashion icons and asked. Brittany and Whittany Braswell were considered the fashion experts for four years. Before leaving CHS, they passed on their fashion advice.

First, you can never have too many shoes. Second, shop sales. Third, accessories. "Buy belts and scarfs to match different outfits. You can change those and the whole look changes," Brittany said. Fourth, it also helps to have doting parents.

Children's Production Presents: Cinderella

Young audiences were mystified by the transformation of the Cinderella character during the annual Children's Production. Twins, Whittany and Brittany Braswell played the part of Cinderella. On alternating days of the productions three day run, the twins swapped roles of the servant Cinderella and the "Princess" Cinderella.

"Fooling the children was just awesome," Brittany said. "The kids really believed the Fairy Godmother was real."

Austin Swearingen, Prince Charming, said playing this part has been a life-long dream for him.

"Getting to bring this young boy looking for love character to life was amazing."

Cinderella was not the first acting assignment for the three aspiring thespians. The twins also appeared in the Wizard of Oz and Charlie and the Chocolate Factory while taking drama classes here. Austin appeared in the same productions but also acts for the Carnegie Players, an acting troupe that performs in local theater.

Drama teacher Sally Maxey said Cinderella is one of her favorite productions.

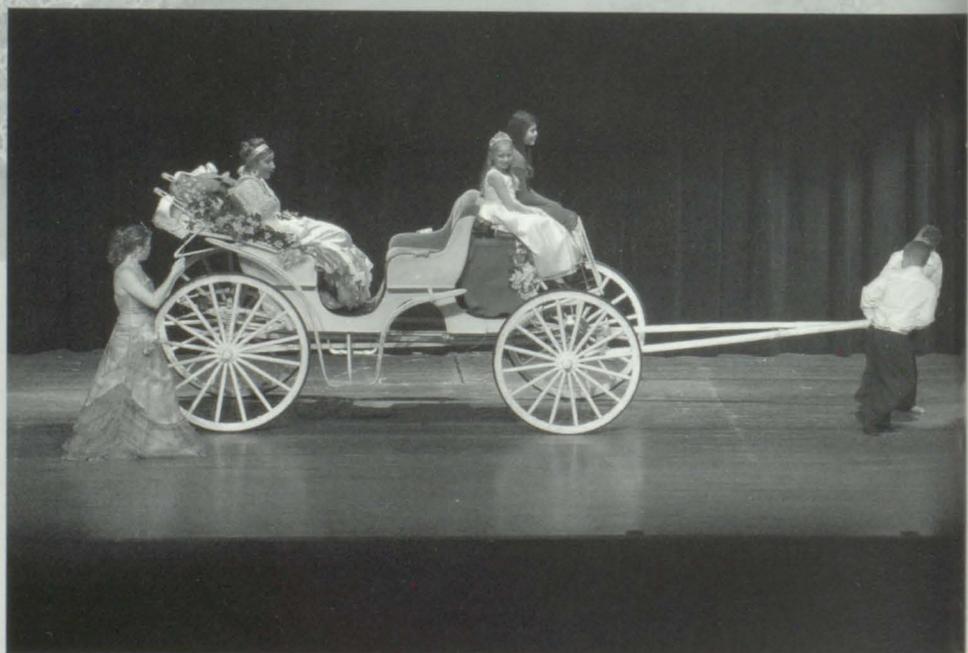

"I like being able to give parts to the young students in town," she said. "It gives them a taste of the theater that I hope carries over into high school."

Cinderella's wicked step-mother offers advice to her three ugly offspring. The step-sisters were portrayed by Shanna Lundy, Maressa Quinn and Nicole McDonald. Monica Hardeman played the wicked step-mother.

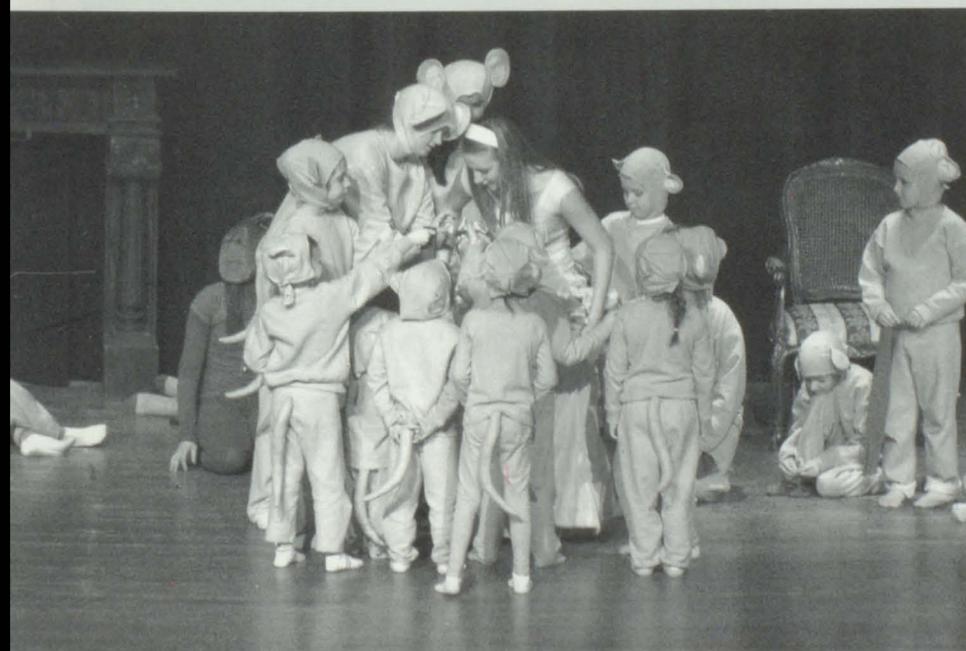

Cats are supposed to scare mice away, but this young feline befriended by Cinderella helped to make the Prince's Ball a success for Cinderella. Callie ??? portrayed the feline.

Below: Cinderella arrives at the ball in the carriage provided by her Fairy Godmother. Her friends the mice and other critters were transformed into coachmen and footman to act as escorts for the soon-to-be princess.

Business Professional of American members gather boxes full of canned goods to give to the Salvation Army. StuCo members sponsored two drives this year. The major food drive was during Thanksgiving.

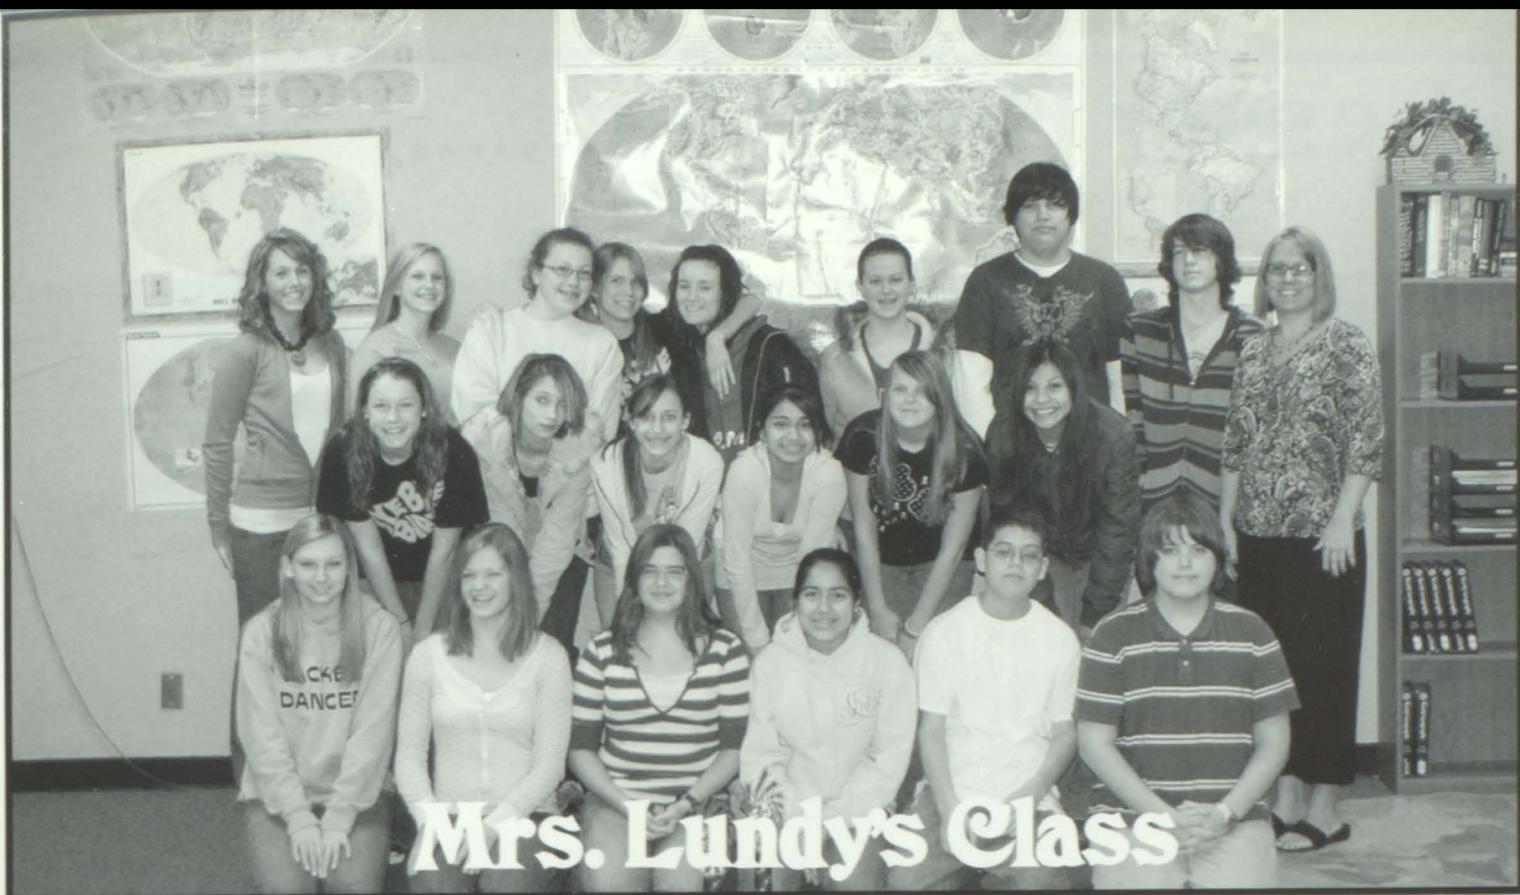

When the Salvation Army food bank shelves become empty, the leaders pick up the phone and call CHS. Students here have never let them down. Just before Thanksgiving this year, the Salvation Army put out the call and CHS rose to the occasion by donating enough food to feed more than 50 families a Thanksgiving meal.

"It never ceases to amaze me what our students can achieve," StuCo advisor Earl Wall said. "Every year they just keep giving and giving."

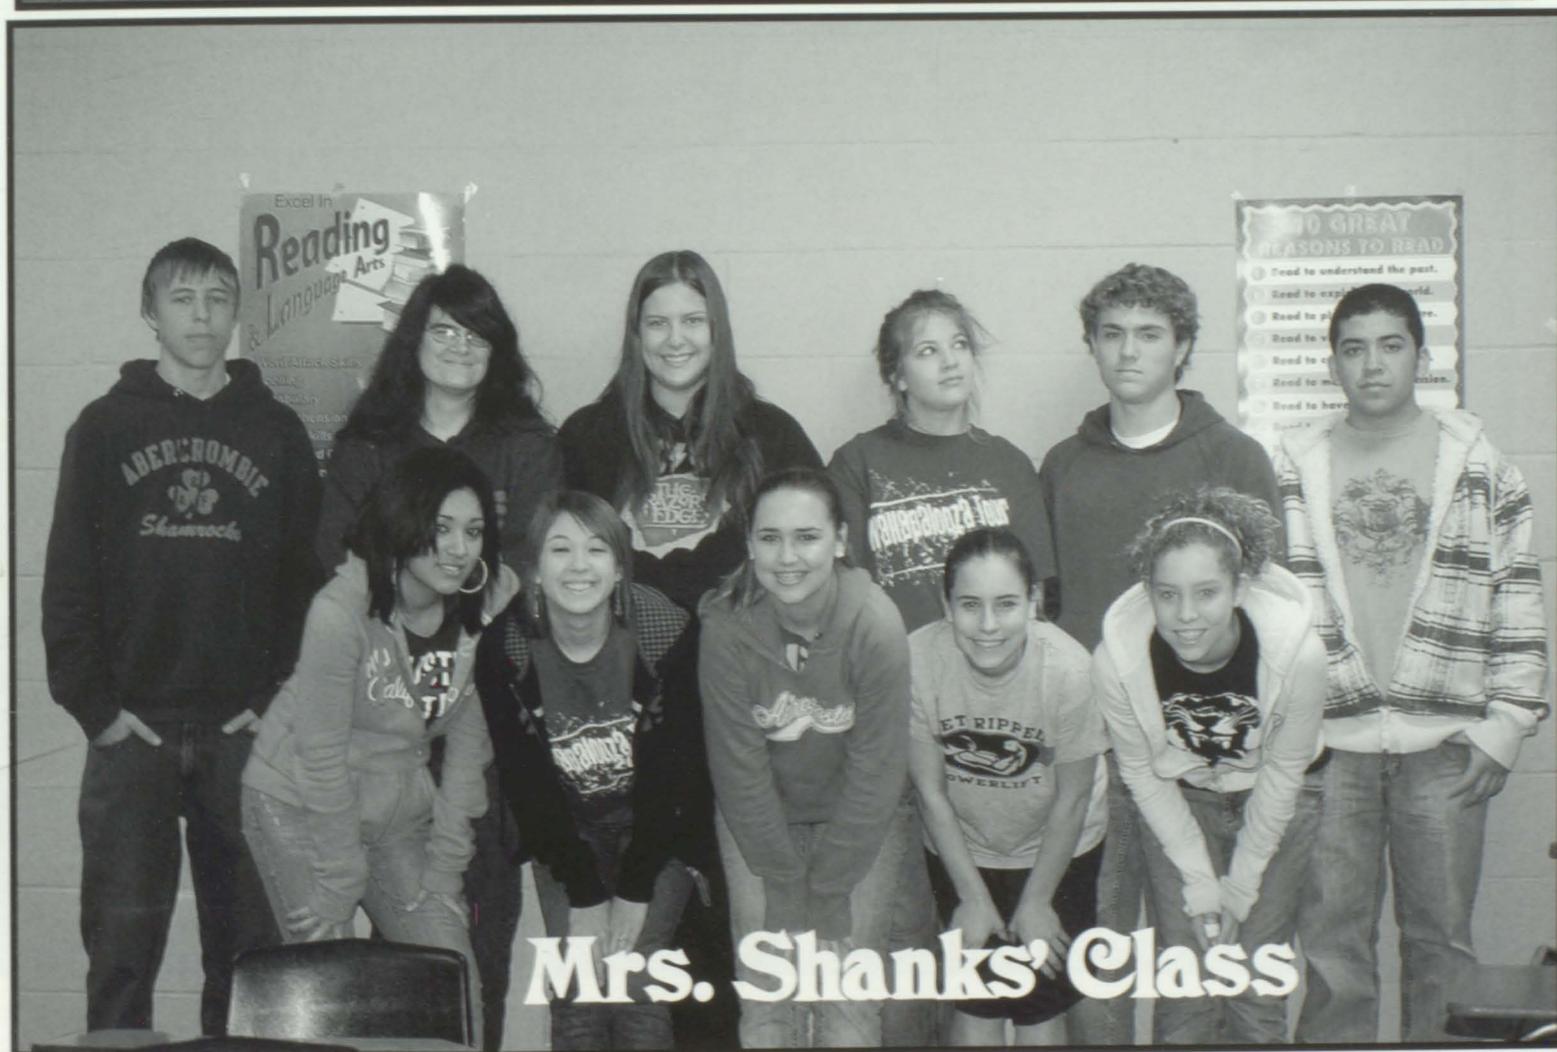

This year StuCo offered pizza and ice cream parties the classes or organizations that donated the most food. This year the classes were Mrs. Lundy's, Mrs. Shanks' and Mrs. Marriot's. Good work everyone.

Long-time StuCo advisor Earl Wall announced his retirement this year. Mr. Wall will be missed by his students as well as the teachers and staff. They all wish him a great retirement and a happy future.

What's your New Year's Resolution?

History of New Year's Resolutions

The first day of the calendar year is one of the world's oldest holidays. The Babylonians are thought to have celebrated the new year more than 4,000 years ago and are credited with starting the tradition of making resolutions.

The first day of the Babylonian year was not January 1st as we celebrate but rather March 23rd and a common Babylonian resolution was their custom of retuning something borrowed from a friend over the course of the previous year. So if you borrowed something from a friend this year, in keeping with the Babylonian tradition please return it.

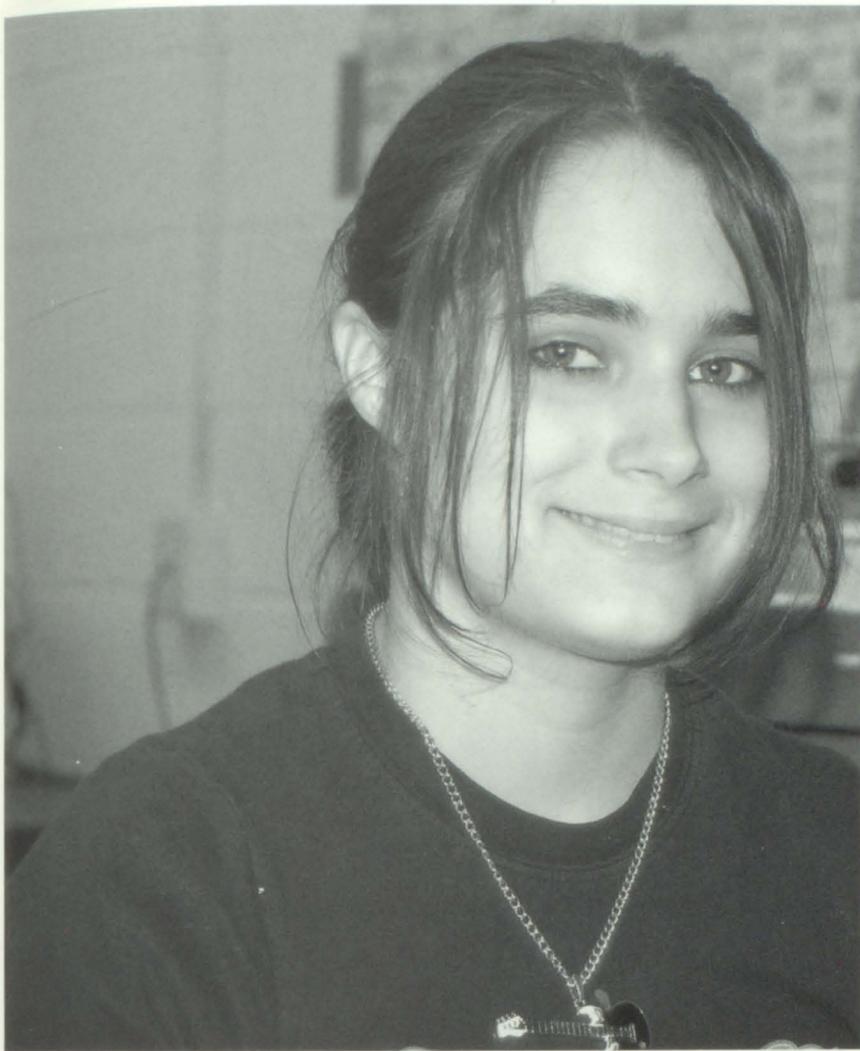

Popular modern resolutions include losing weight or stopping bad habits. According to the New York Times, the average American breaks a resolution within the first three days of the new year. Happy New Year, everyone!

"My New Year's resolution is to take all the math classes I can," sophomore Issac Ballard said.

"My New Year's resolution is to give my dog a bath at least once a week," freshmen Amber Huffman said.

Freshmen Emily Hamrick has lofty goals for her New Year's resolutions. "I want to eat 1,000 Twinkies, make a new word for the dictionary and find my true talent," she said.

Faculty and student here are just like the average American, they made New Year's resolution then broke them just a few days later.

Senior Reed Prine said he doesn't make resolution because he doesn't want to get depressed when he breaks them.

"In the past I would make a resolution," he said. "Then before the end of the week I would break it, then I would feed guilty for not having will power."

Senior Brooke Littlejohn said she normally does not make resolutions but this year she made an exception.

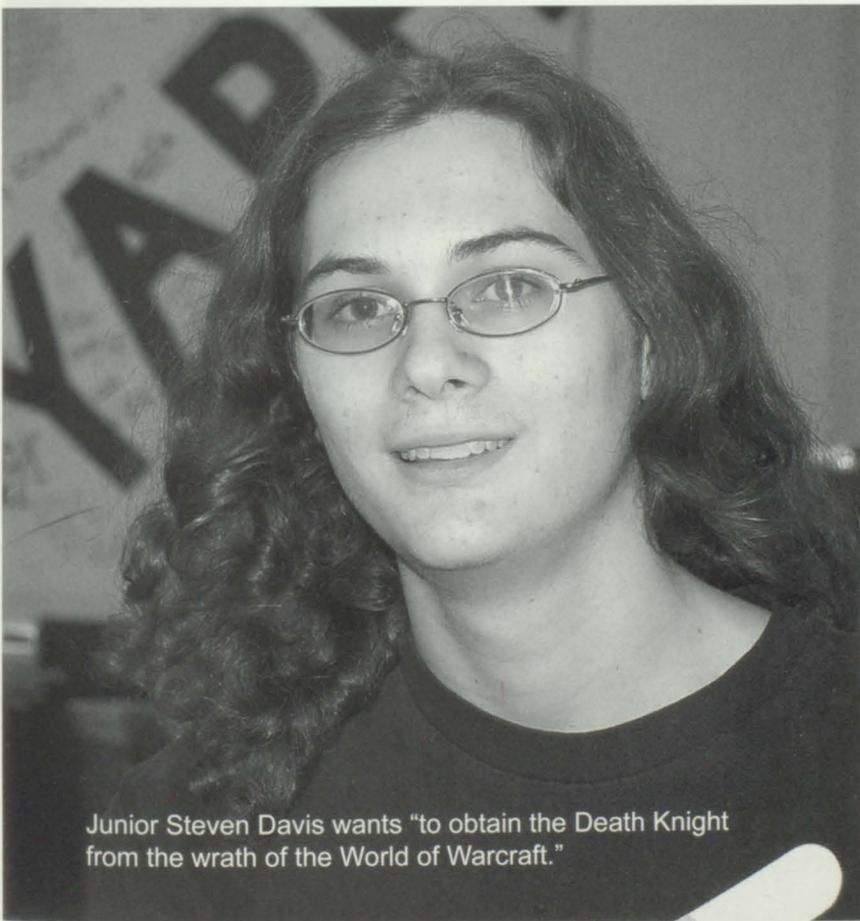

"I made one this year about making a cheer team at college," she said. "Maybe that isn't a resolution but a wish."

Yearbook adviser Brenda Davis said she makes realistic resolutions.

"I've made the same one every year for the last five years and I've never broken it," she said. "I plan to gain weight. If I break this one, then I surely will not feel guilty."

An unofficial student poll found most students don't make resolutions. Those who do make resolutions promise to be better students, be nicer to their parents and siblings, visit their grandparents more often and make better grades.

Let's hope 2008 is a great year!!

Auditions were held in early January and rehearsals began soon after. The productions was not limited to just choir. The drama students also participated as did the art students who built the stage props. The band students helped with music.

The performances were well attended and nearly everyone left the PAC with fond memories.

Familiar Faces in a Different Light!

Can you guess the identity of the five familiar gentlemen? One of them has a very important position, two retired this year, one teaches math and the other is a social studies teacher. Need more help? One of these fine gentlemen collects coupons, another has advised StuCo for a number of years, the math teacher was once the math teacher of Mrs. Davis's daughter and another is a former football coach. If you still can't tell who they are look for the answers at the bottom of the page.

Seniors charge down the basketball court to stop the Juniors from scoring. The Senior won the battle.

The senior guys cheered for the senior girls. At left: they attempt a pyramid. The guys try to dance but look more like a poor version of the Village People.

Although the seniors won by two touchdowns, they look a little tired. The cheerleaders on the other hand, look like they could continue for hours.

The junior guy cheerleaders practiced for day before the big event and it showed. Their pyramid was very good. Will Holleman showed the student body moves that would made Paula Abdul envious. Good job, guys!

Sweet Nothing in my Ear

One Act play advances to area behind strong performances.
Robert Ortiz voted best District Actor.

This year drama teacher Sally Maxey chose Sweet Nothings in My Ear by Joseph Sargent for the UIL competition.

"I picked this play because it had a strong lead for a male and a female," she said. "Robert (Ortiz) surpassed my expectations for the lead role and Caitlin (McCoy) was just amazing. Her facial expressions as the deaf Laura left the audience speechless."

The district judges thought so too. Robert was chosen best actor at the district competition and Caitlin made the All-Star cast along with her speaking counterpart, Kathleen Rader.

"Kathleen and Caitlin worked well together that you forgot they were two separate people," Mrs. Maxey said.

Along with Caitlin and Kathleen, Jo Jo Starks and Bryce Hagan also were named to the All-Star cast. Allison Waldrop was named All-Star Production staff member.

As the play begins, Dan Miller (Robert Ortiz) asks the court to grant him custody of his son. He and his wife, Laura, disagree over surgery allowing his son, Adam, a chance to become a hearing person.

During a pivotal scene, Laura explodes and slaps Dan after he accuses her of needing him more than he needs her. The end of their marriage began with this scene.

Jo Jo Starks signs for Callie Hardee during a court scene. Each hearing character was assigned an interpreter and each deaf character was assigned a speaking counterpart.

Adam, Garret Whitehead, listens as Max (his grandfather), Bryce Hagan, asks him why he tried to speak. Mercedes Paniagua spoke for Adam and Seth Cunningham spoke for Max.

Dan explains to Dr. Weisman, played by Whittany Braswell and spoken by Brittany Braswell, why he thinks Laura missed their appointment.

Dan strokes Adam's face as he recalls the story about the cobbler that wanted a real boy. Dan thinks having a hearing son will make Adam a real boy.

Laura, along with her speaking voice Kathleen Rader, tries to explain to Adam the reason why Daddy will not be living at home.

Jo Jo pulled double duty as an interpreter and as Sally the grandmother. In this scene, she describes how she felt when she knew Laura was a deaf child. Speaking for her is Julie Morrison.

Laura reacts after she learns she was not born deaf and that her parents kept the knowledge from her. This does not change her mind about the surgery for her son and this surprises Dan.

BD BLOOD DONOR
Lifesaving gifts suitable for all ages. ®

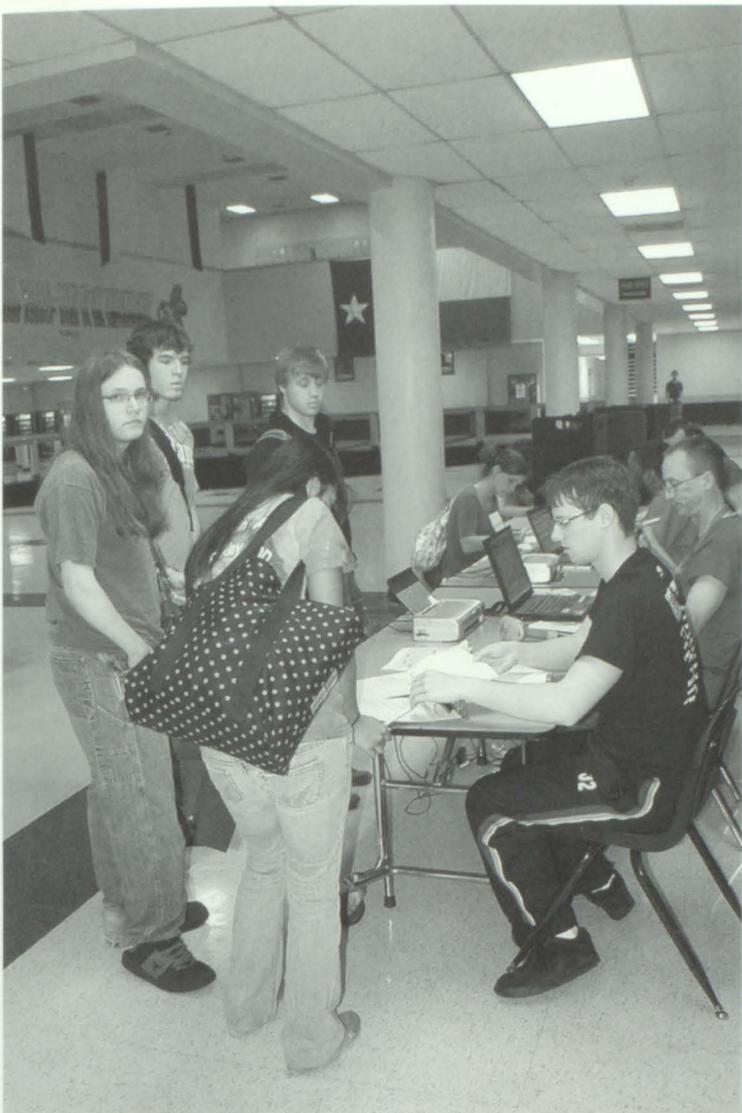

Students here have always been giving. The Salvation Army and the area food bank have been recipients of their generous contributions.

More than 1,000 units are needed daily to fill the needs of area hospital patients. Thanks to the students here those needs are being met.

The most generous life-giving donations has been the gift of life. In 2007, under the direction of StuCo this school ranked 30th in the area by donating 225 units of blood to Carter Blood Center. In keeping with Carter's motto students here "gave blood often and became a part of something good."

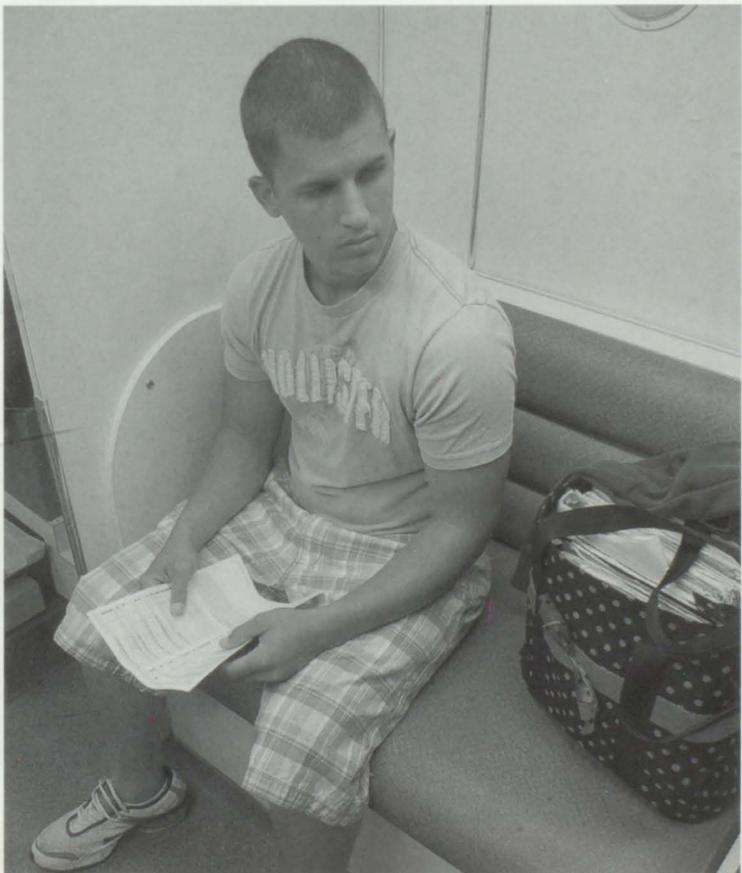

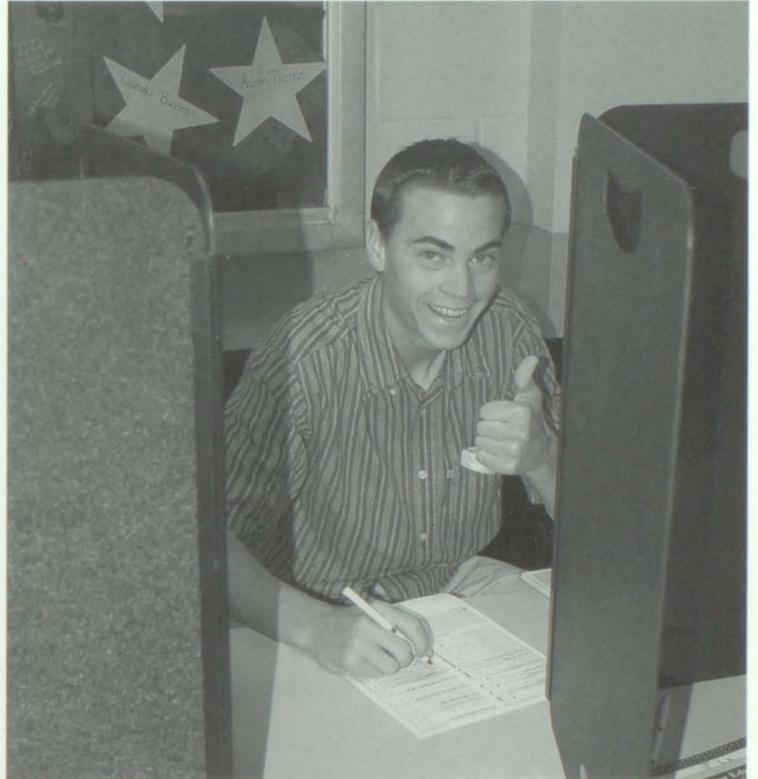

Katie Worsham and Krystan Ellis show off their colorful arm bands after donating blood.

3rd Place State Pole Vaulter
Lauren McFarland

Out of all the gifts I have received in the last 18 years, my favorite is a rock. I know that probably seems like an extremely odd thing to say, but this rock is special. There's nothing extraordinary about its appearance. It's just a small, smooth stone that fits perfectly in the palm of my hand, but this rock means the world to me. It was given to me near the end of the eighth grade year by my best friend. She had taken by yearbook to her class to sign and brought it back to me during the next passing period. However, when I extended by hand to take the yearbook from her, she slipped a rock into it instead. I opened my mouth to question her, but before I could say anything she handed me my yearbook also and said, "Just read what I wrote. It will explain. It's the orange." She then turned away and walked to her next class.

I was both confused and curious so I hurried to my next class to read what she had written. It didn't take me long to find the orange writing in the corner of the last page. What I found written there shocked me. My friend's message talked about how I had been her rock through the past year and that no matter how hard life got she knew I would always be there for her to lean on when she needed me. This surprised me, because I believed the exact opposite to be true: that she had been my rock, the reason I had made it through the year in one piece. I felt like I had done nothing that compared to the friend she had been to me. Knowing that our friendship meant as much to her as it did to me was an amazing feeling. She also wrote that she spent a long time searching for the perfect rock to give me and that I better still have it at graduation. I still have it, and I always will. It will be something I treasure forever.

Over the past week as I thought about what I wanted to say to my class in this speech, this story kept continually coming to mind. This is because it reminded me about what is really important. Each of us has worked extremely hard to the last 13 years to be sitting where we are today. Academics are very important and we've accomplished something real. However, there are things that are more important. These include the moral decisions we make on a daily basis, the integrity of our character, and the type of friend we are to others. So what I have to say to you today is, to be a rock. Strive to make an impact on the lives of those around you everyday. Be the friend who never fails to extend a hand to those who have fallen. This is a way each of us can truly make a difference.

The rocks we've had to lean on our lives so far are the stepping stones of the path that have lead us here to walk across this stage. So I would like to thank the parents, other family members, fiends, teachers, counselors, coaches, principals, lunch ladies, youth ministers, and everyone else who have been the strength for us at the times when we were lacking. Thank you for being our rocks. Thank you for the constant support and for letting us know that we are loved. We couldn't have made it without you. Each of you was a true blessing.

Class of 2008, we have been given all we need and more to follow whatever path we chose to travel. Don't be afraid of the future, be excited. I have no doubt we will achieve great things. Congratulations. Go follow your dreams.

Good evening! On behalf of the class of 2008, welcome to tonight's graduation ceremony. If I wanted to be a hero in the eyes of my classmates, I'd end this speech right here. However, far be it from me to mess up a traditional graduation.

I'd like to express heartfelt thanks to my teachers, my parents, and several other relatives in attendance tonight. Your presence means so much to me. I could not have accomplished graduation success without you. To my friends and fellow classmates, I say: you are an important part of this event too.

Now, I would like to share with you a memory about a special day that helped shape who I am. My story will likely trigger your memory about a special person or a special event that helped shape who you are.

It started out as a simple voluntary practice on an early 4th of July morning. The buzz of my alarm startled me as I lay sleeping soundly in my bed. The jolt sent me flying out of my bed and into my swimsuit. This was it, the first annual 4th of July swim practice. I scrambled out the door at six in the morning to start my holiday swim. I figure that this practice would be like any other; swim a few laps and call it quits. Boy I was wrong.

The ride to the pool was almost unbearable. I was so excited, and the only thing holding me back was the seat belt strapped to my eleven year old body. Despite my enthusiasm, I arrived at the pool with a tinge of disappointment because not many people showed up. We all gathered around our coach, hanging on his every word as we tried to stay awake and listen. He gave us the workout, and my mouth nearly dropped to the floor. "Two hours of non-stop swimming," he said, "Oh yeah, we will also be swimming long ways across the pool." We were given four things to do: free swim, kick board, pull buoy, and swim with a golf ball in one hand. We had to swim six sets with eight laps in each set; this was a grand total of forty eight laps in all. In addition to the swim, we had to eat an Oreo between each set. That was the weird part. I thought my coach was crazy.

The water was frigid. The first few laps were enjoyable, but my body became tired quickly. As I put one hand in front of the other, I started to wonder what I was doing there. I realized I was there because of my internal drive to be successful. I wanted to go the extra mile and get better. I knew from that moment on I would always try to do my best in anything I would attempt.

It started out as a simple voluntary practice, but there wasn't really anything simple about it, I learned a lot about myself that day.

My fellow classmates, I am not unique. At some point in our lives, we all realize something about ourselves. It usually takes that one person or moment in our life to realize we have the potential to succeed. The proof is in this moment. Here we are: the CHS graduates of 2008.

The great American football player Tony Dorsett must have had a similar revelation when he said, "To succeed... you need to find something to hold on to, something to motivate you, something to inspire you." Seniors, according to the cartoon character, Dennis the Menace, "The best thing you can do is get good at being you." So, let's look back only to remember our past for all that its worth and move forward to make a positive difference. Find that special pursuit in life; let it motivate and inspire you. You will surely succeed.

It's hard to say goodbye

Where has the time gone. It seems like yesterday that I walked into the first yearbook class and looked at those 40 eager faces and thought "Oh my God, what I have I done." After several trips to the counseling center (the current counselors are not to blame for 40 students in yearbook) we finally came to terms about a manageable size class and the rest is history.

For seven years I had some awesome editors, like April Oakes, Leah Parker, Shelley Fowler and this year's editor Krystan Ellis. I've also had some not so awesome editors who shall remain nameless. I've had great photographers: Heather Lezon, Josh and Jonah to name a few, but none that can compare to the three I've had this year. Alex Poole, Amanda Whitley and Mirja Roetting you have been a blessing.

Throughout the seven years, students have come and gone. Some have remained in my heart and I take them with me where ever my journey leads. Sonya Reinhardt was the first of my "babies." She made me laugh and cry. She drove me crazy but could just as easily make me feel so loved. The next "baby" is Jayde Rice. At first, I didn't know what to make of Jayde but after getting to know him he just needed to be accepted as Jayde and loved unconditionally. Then there was Tiphannie Meeks or PH as she likes to be called. She came to me as a freshmen. She was going through a Gothic stage, black lipstick and fingernail polish, black clothes and shoe polish black hair and an amazing writer. She told me that first day, "I'm going to state, Mrs. Davis." There were times when I doubted she would get there. After butting heads and many hours of rewrites and countless hours of practice, her senior year she made it to the state UIL meet in feature writing. We drove through the worst thunderstorm I've ever had the misfortune to drive through and to make matters worse Tiphannie was nine months pregnant and counting. But we made and she placed sixth. She gave birth to a beautiful baby girl, Chloe, 10 days later. As I'm writing this, Tiphannie is in basic training with the Marines. She and I aren't in agreement about her enlisting, but it's her choice and I will support her as always. She and all the others know they have my support and my love. My daughter tells people when they ask how many siblings she has that she has a brother by birth and two sisters and a brother by love. That about sums it up.

I've made many friends here and it's hard to leave all of you. Linda Williams I've enjoyed our talks and your sense of humor is without a doubt the best. Robin Fort thank you for being the voice of reason. I needed that several times. Sherri Bell thank you for the use of the rocking chair. I think I probably owe you a new one. Ruth Garrett you are the most lady-like woman I've ever met. I wish I could be more like you. Oh by the way Linda, remember when you asked Sally why I liked Justin Lacy so much? Well I'm going to tell you now. Did you ever look at him in those Wranglers? Just kidding Justin. Randy Allen, Lyle Lackey, Floyd Rogers and Casey Harris I'm going to miss our lunches. Eating with coaches is so much fun! You guys are the best. Martino I will miss you and sitting with you on the bench during softball games. Sarah Jane, what can I say, you are one of my babies and I hope you are now a friend. Have a great life. Fran Rader thanks for answering all my countless computer questions. I will miss you. I left my two best friends for last. Ron Garcia, you have been my rock. (No, I'm not giving you a rock so don't go looking in your mailbox.) Thank you for listening. I love all your corny jokes believe it or not!! Thanks for your friendship and never giving up on me even when I was giving up on myself. Sally, Sally, Sally. We are kindred spirits. Our friendship will last long after CHS. It was meant to be. We share so much in common. Our love for the theater, our passion for justice, democrats (even though we disagree about Obama), trips to Oklahoma, eating out and our love and dedication to students. I am not saying goodbye to you or Ron because it's not goodbye. My journey is taking me to other places but you two are a part of my life and will remain a part forever. If I left anyone out. I am truly sorry. I will miss all of you very much. You have been my extended family for seven years and I take you all with me in my heart.

Acknowledgments

The yearbook editor, Krystan Ellis, asked me to write the acknowledgment again this year. I think she knew I wanted to write it since this is my last year here.

First I would like to thank Krystan. She has been an amazing editor. Last year when we decided to take the yearbook in a different direction, we were both a little scared. She jumped right in this year with both feet and I think you will enjoy this book. I hope so, but if you don't we won't be around, so oh well. LOL

Thanks also to my yearbook staff. Analaura Keith your quiet manner made the chaos around us bearable. Vicki your perspective made the yearbook unique. Mitzi thanks for sharing your stories with us. Destany thank you for taking the band and choir pages and making them interesting. Kristyn thank you for putting up with Kalin and Alex's sparring. Katie you are probably the most outspoken person, except for me, I've ever met. I hope you find what you are looking for. Although you were only here for one semester you were amazing and I wish you well Ricky. Mirja thank you for never getting upset when you had to repeat yourself 10 times or when Alex asked you to say translate something into German. Your patience was above and beyond what I would have done. Kalin it was fun having you in my class. You appreciated all my "funny" stories and I loved your sense of humor. Reagan and Carly I wish you two had come into yearbook at the beginning of the year. You have been amazing. Keep up the same work ethic next year. Marilyn thanks for being the mother hen of our group. You listened to everyone's problems when I know you had problems of your own. I wish you and your little girl a beautiful life. Now to Alex. What can I say? You are an amazing photographer. Great things are ahead for you. You just need to stay focused (a little play on words). You have more talent than anyone I've ever met. Don't give up on your dreams. Amanda I left you for last. I feel like I'm abandoning you. That was never my intention. I do know that you are the strongest of my "babies." You are a survivor. You will take next year's yearbook and make it your own. I have faith in you.

Thank you to Hannah Coleman for putting up with our racket and nonsense during first and second periods. We got loud a few times but you never complained. Thanks to all the coaches for taking time to identify students in pictures. You would think that after seven years I would know everyone. Thanks to all the club sponsors and coaches who took the time to get their groups together for pictures before school. I know it was early, but we did appreciate it.

Wow! David Beans! Thank you for seven years of great and awesome pictures. Thanks to you and Tim for taking time and patience to educate my photographers. Thanks for being my friend and laughing with me at the absurdity of certain situations. Only you will know what I'm talking about.

A big thank you to Brandy Sheaffer at the Josten's plant in Kansas City for answering at least a thousand questions this year and for taking care of the problem I had with proofs. You are a lifesaver. Your help was greatly appreciated.

A special thank you to Roxy Sherwood for holding my hand when I had my meltdown. I will never forget your kindness.

Thank you Sally and Ron for listening and being there when I needed you most. This year has been tough for my family and your thoughtfulness and kindness will be remembered. My hips remember the White Chocolate Moltan's too.

Last but certainly not least, I want to remember my friend Krista Findley. There was never a day that Krista did not stop by and ask how things were going. She said she knew how lonely it could get as a yearbook adviser, never really belonging anywhere. She made it her mission to stop by and talk. I will always remember her for that. I will also remember her for that great smile and positive attitude.

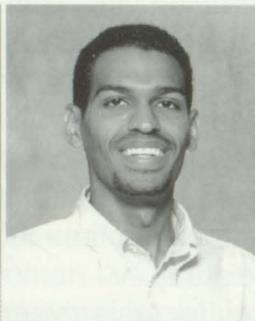

I will miss all of you. Please take pity on the new adviser. Help her out and make her feel welcome.

What's it like being a junior?

Secret Holmes

I feel like a senior. Juniors run this school, anyway.

Kellen Ray

We are bumpin'!

Geoff Cowan

That's what's up!!

Cesar Ortiz

It's fun and it's exciting.

Will Snider

We have been blessed so much by having you in our lives. We are so proud of your accomplishments. Continue on with your faith in God and to strive to meet your goals. Remember, the sky is the limit, so go for it.

We love you,
Mom and Dad

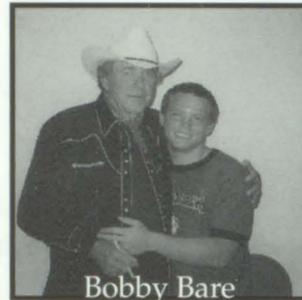

Lou Diamond Phillips

We were unsure of the change of having a teenage grandson around, but you enriched our lives. We've had fun, excitement, love and tears.

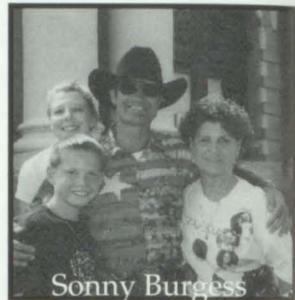

We've done a lot of things together. The biggest joy was you being saved and baptized.

A new adventure for you is starting. Jesus will walk with you. Stay close to Him and things will be OK. We love you more than you know and we'll miss you terribly. It's been a joy.

Congrats,

Trent Mangrum

Trenton,

It's hard to believe our little boy is graduating from high school. It just seems like yesterday God blessed our lives with you. From the very beginning you have been the comedian in the family—always ready with a joke or just by being your funny self. Remember making people laugh is a gift so continue to use it. This world has so much to offer, just get out there, explore it and live out your dreams. You have accomplished many things and we are so proud of you. Wherever you chose to go in life, just remember that you have a family that loves you very much and will be with you always.

We love you,
Mom, Dad, Taylor and Kaleigh

Brittany and Whittany Braswell

Whittany and Brittany,

From the beginning when you were the "babies," up to now that you are "ladies," you have been a true joy.

Thank you for embracing the "twin" factor and keeping us entertained for 18 years. You have always loved the spot light and I know you will follow that light to take you into the future of FWCCES. Thank you for being the daughters that you are. I am so PROUD of you.

Love you Bunches!

Mom

4/28/08

Twins,

From way back when we first met, you made me laugh, when you would tie each other up and drag the other down the hall. From the first time we went shopping and you both got a pair of pants and a top (you used to so easy back then) to getting your first make-up, I have really enjoyed watching and being a part of seeing you both grow into the Ladies you are. I hope and know you both will fulfill and achieve all the goals you have set for yourselves. Just remember from time to time, slow down, look up at the sky and smell the roses. It's life, so enjoy the ride.

Love,

To Patches:

It has been my pleasure to see you go from an infant to a young lady. I always thought I would be teaching you all about life and how to survive the world, and I think I did. But you, darling, taught me so much about myself and what true, undying love could be. May God always bless you. Please always love me.

Always,
Your Daddy

Rachel Finley

Patches,
God blessed us with a beautiful baby girl who has matured into a beautiful young woman. You have filled my life with laughter, happiness and love. What a true inspiration you are. Keep smiling, learning and experiencing; continue loving and living life. God bless and keep you. I love you Patch!

Holly Bicknell

Mercedes Paniagua

Mercedes,
 Congratulations and Good Luck.
 We love you.

Holly,
 You are not a baby anymore
 No Barbies and dolls strewn on the floor
 We no longer sing you lullabies
 But for your tears we are here to dry.
 At night we hear your prayers
 But no longer need to tuck you in.
 A skinned knee no longer needs a kiss to heal
 From you we are always waiting to hear how you feel.
 The days of ABCs are past
 My hox times went by so fast!
 We stand here and as you drive we wave
 Silently we begin to pray...
 Please Lord watch over this our precious baby girl,
 We've taught her that through You she can.
 Today she goes forth on her own, ready for You to take a stand
 She will never be alone, You will always be there
 Comforting her when things go wrong
 Always guiding her to be steadfast and strong
 As she is learning to spread her wings
 Having a heart like hers what a blessing she will bring!
 We could not have asked for a more precious baby girl than the one that God has blessed us with in you!
 Congratulations Baby Girl!!
 Daddy, Mommy, Taylor, Madison,
